The Young Voters

They're Outnumbered 9 to 1 by Elders in the U.S.

By DICK BARNES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Behind all the public manifestations of young America's political power and influence stands the actual voting strength of the young, and it adds up to this: They're outnumbered, 9 to 1.

The U.S. Census Bureau estimates that only 11.7 million of all persons of voting age for the November election will be 24 or younger—able generally for the first time to cast a presidential ballot.

The figure represents just 10 per cent of the 116.6 million Americans old enough to vote.

Against the backdrop of Chicago's demonstrations, campus unrest and swarms of youthful workers, are these cold statistics compiled by government and private research agencies on the youth vote:

Participation — Young voters have historically diminished their impact by turning out on election day at a lower rate than their elders.

In the 1964 presidential election, for example, only 51 per cent of the 21-to-24-year-olds voted. That compared to 65 per cent of the persons between 25 and 34, and 73 per cent of the persons 35 and over. The average voter is 45 years old.

Unity—Young voters are subject to many influences besides age on their voting behavior: parents, education, economic status and the like. In recent presidential elections they have swung in the same direction as their elders, although slightly to the Democratic side of the over-all population.

Education—The tendency is to picture young voters as ranks of college students. But only about 16 per cent of the 21-24 age group is on campus and the greater part of it never has been. About 3.7 million of the nation's 6.7 million college students are too young to vote even though the voting age drops below 21 in Alaska, Hawaii, Kentucky and Georgia.

Furthermore, the 1964 participation record even of college trained 21-to-24-year-olds was worse than the turnout of 45-to 64-year-olds who had only an eighth-grade education.

Despite the young voter's record, each major party devotes countless time and energy to enlist his support. For the politicians, more than a vote in November is at stake. There's the chance to recruit volunteer labor for the foot-soldier jobs of politics, and the prospect of winning a young voter's lifetime allegiance.

As usual, the Young Republicans and Young Democrats handle the job of wooing the young voters. Somewhat parallel but in business only for the campaign are youth divisions of Citizens for Nixon and Citizens for Humphrey.

The Democrats, trying to soften the impact of antiwar dissidents on college campuses, are setting up a Student Coalition for Humphrey-Muskie.

The Coalition, according to a headquarters memo, "will be billed as an autonomous, or semi-autonomous, group composed of former McCarthy-Kennedy-Rockefeller students basically opposed to the war but committed to the election of Humphrey because of his domestic record and nonporporate image."

"Talk of the war," it adds, "should be avoided at all costs."

The Coalition chairman is Teddy O'Toole, former vice

Nixon

Now in Second Gear

By DANIEL RAPOPORT

DENVER (UPI) — Richard Nixon's stepped up attacks on Hubert H. Humphrey are following a prearranged plan that calls for an even harder hitting posture later in the campaign, sources close to the GOP presidential candidate said today.

"We have shifted from low gear to second gear," said one Nixon associate. "By mid-October we'll move into high gear. We want to win going away."

Nixon increased the tempo of his campaign, jabbing at Humphrey this week in Milwaukee, the Dakotas, Idaho, Washington State and Colorado.

The Republican nominee was heading for St. Louis and Louisville, Ky., today where he was expected to pursue the same strategy.

Nixon has been linking Humphrey with—if not blaming him for — such modern-day American ills as the rising crime rate, big city riots and campus protests.

He also has been indirectly accusing the vice president of helping to foster inflation, diminish U.S. prestige abroad and prevent the farmer from getting a fair price for his products.

A speech given Wednesday in a parking lot in downtown Denver illustrates the aggressive style Nixon has adopted of late. In the speech he noted that Humphrey had said he was proud of the records chalked up by the administrations of Lyndon Johnson and the late John F. Kennedy.

Seizing upon the word "proud," Nixon then launched into a litany of questions which asked "is he proud of that fact" that:

—Violent crimes in the United States "have almost doubled under those last two administrations."

—Churches in Washington, D.C., had to close after services and bus drivers in the same city have to use scrip instead of change in order to prevent robberies.

—Under the Johnson administration, "a violent mob" burned down much of Washington, the first time that has happened since the British put the capital to the torch.

Nixon also indirectly connected Humphrey with the seizure of the USS Pueblo by "a fourth rate military power" like North Korea, the loss of American gold to foreigners and the fact that the working man's pay raises over the last three years have been wiped out by taxes and inflation which were caused by policies Humphrey "helped to create."

Nixon Girls All Smiles Before Binghamton Boos

Two daughters of GOP presidential candidate Richard Nixon tour the New York state capital city of Albany Wednesday with Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz as their beaming escort. Tricia, left, and sister, Julie, addressed crowds at the Capitol Building and then travelled to Binghamton where they got their first campaign battle scars. An estimated 50 college-age hecklers interrupted their speeches at a rally in the Southern Tier city. Julie, the 19-year old fiance of David Eisenhower, had told a reporter during her tour of Albany "We haven't had one demonstration so far. We've been very lucky." Their luck ran out later in the day. Humphrey

A New Strategy for World Peace

HUBERT MAKES IMPROMPTU POINT

By MERRIMAN SMITH

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey today suggested use of an international army under the United Nations to keep the peace in Vietnam, as well as other international hot spots, once hostilities are halted.

His proposal for an international peace-keeping force in Southeast Asia was part of what he called "a new strategy for peace." The Humphrey plan was contained in a campaign speech prepared for early afternoon delivery to the Commonwealth Club of San Francisco.

"As president of the United States, I will do everything in my power to place international peace-keeping soldiers in troubled areas, rather than American soldiers," Humphrey said. "Nowhere would a United Nations peace-keeping force be more welcome than in Vietnam to administer free elections and verify the withdrawal of foreign troops."

While the Humphrey speech contained much of what he has said before, it was his first major foreign policy document since his nomination in Chicago.

It was significant from another standpoint—he made no mention of President Johnson and there were certain aspects of his foreign policy outline that turned away from current, established policy of the State Department under Secretary Dean Rusk.

Humphrey said the peace-keeping capacity of the U.N. should be enlarged, but that this could be done only if its members, particularly smaller nations, would earmark and train units of their armed forces for international assignments.

To help this effort, he suggested three steps:

—To use U.S. military assistance programs to help less developed countries prepare units of their armed forces for U.N. and regional peace-keeping assignments.

—A new effort to resolve the financial and constitutional crisis now hampering the U.N.

—To have this country take the lead in establishment of a U.N. peace-keeping fund beginning with $20 million to help the U.N. launch emergency operations "without delay."

The vice president told the Commonwealth Club that if he is elected one of his first steps to put his "new strategy for peace" into action would be to call a new San Francisco conference to rededicate the United Nations on its 25th anniversary in 1970. He would use this occasion to seek new ways of making the U.N. more effective as a peace-keeping organization, he said.

Underlying Humphrey's foreign policy were two somewhat philosophical ideas.

He said first that a new generation in this and other industrial countries rejected "old premises of war and diplomacy" and wanted instead to see greater emphasis "on human and personal values—having enough to eat—being able to learn—living free of fear."

Wallace

Stronger Methods by Police

NEW YORK (UPI)—Third party presidential candidate George C. Wallace, in an interview with the New York Times published today, called for increased use of police force to control anarchy and violence.

"Proper use of the police power is the only thing left now to try to curtail anarchy in the country," Wallace said in the interview.

Expanding his views on disorder and violence in the nation, Wallace said, "We have tried everything else" except stronger police methods to meet the problem.

"The previous administrations have passed every civil rights bill known to man to placate the anarchists," he said. "And the more bills they passed and laws and judgments they rendered, the more activity we had in the streets."

Asked if the only solution to this was "beating them on the head" Wallace replied:

"We have tried every other solution. I haven't seen a police force yet that I didn't think was great."

Wallace is seeking the presidency under the third party banner of the American Independent Party.

Meanwhile, Jack Bell, Associated Press political writer, said that Richard M. Nixon apparently is scaling down his Border State victory claims in the presidential race in recognition of the growing threat of former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace in the South.

Nixon expressed confidence shortly after his nomination that he could carry almost all of the states that ring the Deep South, but the Republican nominee now is counting only Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky and Virginia as safely in his column.

HIS CANDIDATE—Trucker Jimmy Smith of Lynchburg, Va., doesn't leave any doubts about his support of presidential candidate George Wallace. Smith, who arrived in Savannah, Ga. from Brownsville, Tex. bought 200 Wallace stickers in Mobile Ala., the candidate's home state. Smith and his partner will have plenty of miles for their promotion. They were to leave soon for New York. Now, how will they get the stickers off when the November election is history? (UPI TELEPHOTO)

He says he thinks he has a chance of carrying North Carolina, Georgia and Texas, but is less positive than he seemed a month ago.

Admittedly, he has found Wallace's third-party candidacy stronger than he expected in the South. He contends, however, that Wallace's support is tailing off in the North, where the GOP nominee is talking of something approaching a sweep of the large industrial states.

Nixon, taking his campaign into Kentucky today on his way to Tennessee and Florida, says his major opponent in the South is Wallace and not Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, the Democratic nominee.

He has forecast that Wallace is likely to make the best third party showing since Robert M. LaFollette's effort in 1924. But Nixon remains firm in the belief that the election will be settled at the polls and not in the House of Representatives.

His answer to Wallace in the South is to campaign vigorously there. He plans to go into Atlanta, Ga., and hopes that Humphrey also will campaign in the Deep South.

There are some worrying reports about Wallace's strength in Tennessee, with 11 electoral votes, and in Florida, which casts 14.

Paltz President Reveals Stand on Student Power

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

In an atmosphere charged with demands for increased student power, the new president of the New Paltz State University College declared to hundreds of students yesterday that he welcomed such demands, but that power must be shared and checked in the building of a college community.

Dr. John J. Neumaier, who assumed the presidency Monday in what he admitted to be "a difficult time," drew strong applause and favorable comments from moderate as well as radical student leaders.

The new president, who served as chief administrator of Moorhead State College in Minnesota for the past 10 years, stated, "my hope is that students will develop, demand, and achieve power not just for the sake of power, but to become full citizens of the college community, respected by faculty and administrators alike, and vice versa, in virtue of the common humanity that ties us together."

Dr. Neumaier defined causes for student unrest as being the Vietnam War, the unfulfilled promise of civil rights, the sheer weight of an increased number of young people — the so-called "war babies ," and the human condition itself.

The college president, speaking in the center of the sprawling campus, followed Student Government Association President Alan Brady, who stated, "we can't ask for rights anymore, We've got to demand our rights and shake the structure loose until it bends in our direction."

Brady, head of the administration-recognized official student government which runs on an annual budget of $250,000 collected through required student fees, declared that he had made "a very mild demand of the new administration," and, "if it is not acted upon favorably by Thursday evening, there will be no peace on campus."

The student president told The Freeman that there would be "some form of protest," probably in the form of demonstrations on Friday, if the demand was not met.

The Freeman learned that the SGA demanded student controls of on-campus dormitory residents which included effective control over curfews and dormitory visitation rights between both male and female students.

Brady had been challenged by Eric Margolis in last semester's election. Margolis chairs the Free Student Government, a radical student organization closely aligned with Students for a Democratic Society.

The SDS, with organizing units on college campuses throughout the nation, is of a left political persuasion.

Another radical student organization on campus is the Blacks for Black Liberation, chaired by Joe Williams. It was Williams who, later on during the day, stated to a freshmen audience that it would be naive for black people to take "idealism in college seriously."

The day, however, belonged to Dr. Neumaier.

Speaking to the same freshmen audience previously addressed by various student leaders such as Brady, Margolis and Williams, the college president urged the students not to abuse power "as we've

SIT-IN AT WELFARE — Members of a hastily formed Welfare Mothers Action Committee staged a two-hour sit-in Wednesday afternoon in the fourth floor hall of the Department of Social Services at the county office building. The group wanted to see Harold Larsen in the welfare office about school clothing for their children. Larsen said he would see them individually and discuss each case on its individual merits. They marched into the office shortly after 2 p. m. and Welfare Commissioner Joseph Fitzsimmons again reiterated the welfare policy of hearing cases individually because of confidentiality. They still appeared to be dissatisfied when they left the office. (Gil Gray photo).

Mapping, Sales Levy, Perrines On Agenda for Solons Tonight

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

Tax mapping and reassessment, a county sales tax and awarding a contract for the restoration of the historic Perrine's Bridge will be the three major items on the agenda of an executive session of the County Legislature 7:30 tonight.

Legislator Clarence Raichle, R-Kingston, chairman of the Tax Base Study Committee has asked for consideration of the Tax mapping proposal, the first step toward county reassessment, and a county-wide sales tax, also under study for some time by the committee. It has been reported at various times that the tax mapping with reassessment is estimated to cost about $1 million.

Met Last Night

The Ptrrine's Bridge Committee which met Wednesday night has requested that the Legislature award the contract for the restoration work on the historic span. A low bid of $33,600 was submitted for the work Monday afternoon by Standard Bridge Corp., Albany. The bid was $3,600 over the $50,000 budget set by the Legislature for the restoration work.

The Perrine's Bridge Committee concerned with the overage held an emergency meeting last night. The Committee decided to recommend to the Legislature that they accept the low bid less $2,000 worth of masonary work.

The committee said the urgency of starting the work immediately should be stressed. It was pointed out that the work should be completed before the fall rains, which if flooding occurs, could place the span in jeopardy. It was noted that thhe masonary work could be done at a later date. A representative of Standard Bridge, the low bidder, who attended, said if the contract is awarded, work on the restoration could start immediately.

$20,000 Expended

A total of $20,000 has already been expended for the initial repair work and shoring up in preparation for the total restoration. This work is being done by Cross Country House Movers Inc., Albany, who have been lifting the span at a gradual pace using special beams to bring it to its original level. This work should be accomplished in a day or two, a spokesman for the committee said, Attending the session were Legislators Roger W. Mabie, (D) and E. Stirling Potter (R), both of the 7th District. Mabie is minority leader. Both are on the bridge committee.

Also at the emergency meeting were Albert E. Milliken, who donated his services as architect; Sherwood Davis, attorney for the committee; Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson, Elmer Carney, local historian; Kenneth Clark and Thomas Orr, committee secretary.

Urban Unrest Debate Topic

The problem of urban unrest was tackled last night by the three congressional candidates of the 28th District when they met at Hudson for the second of seven scheduled debates.

Republican Hamilton Fish Jr. called for "inner action of private and public business and of people and government in the field of human rights." Pointing to the fact that the disadvantaged are left behind in a technical era, Fish said, "They give vent to frustration, they show their alienation from the rest of society. They know there is a better way of life.

Something can be done, he advised. "Hope can be rekindled, self-respect can replace frustration. Involvement can end alienation.

"We must make welfare payments a temporary expedient, not a permanent way of life. Something to escape from, not to."

John Dyson, the Democratic candidate described the typical American city as fast becoming uninhabitable

The Millbrook publisher declared that present efforts to solve the urban crisis were insufficient: "In the past we have generally ignored these problems and placed the burden on the city to solve its own problems." This is inadequate as the growing rate of deterioration testifies," Dyson said, adding, "We must immediately implement a massive program sponsored by the private and public sectors to revitalize and rehabilitate our urban neighborhoods, to make the cities liveable once again."

The Liberal candidate, Peter Kane Dufault said that "no matter how much help the ghetto area receives through Black cooperative efforts, from the government or the private sector, most of the residents are still trapped there."

He advocated a program called "proportional resettlement volunteers." Communities throughout the country would receive federal subsidies in housing, schools, transport and job development when they adopted policies of assistance and welcome.

Teamsters Elected, 18-10

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Teamsters Local 445 was electeed bargaining agent for the Kingston Water Department by an 18-10 vote over the Civil Service Employes Association yesterday afternoon.

Voting took place at the Knights of Columbus building on Broadway. Thirty persons were eligible to vote in the election called for by the State Public Employe Relations Board.

Donald MacCollam, business agent for the Teamsters, termed the results "gratifying" in a statement to The Freeman today. "We worked very hard for this victory," he said.

The election was requested by CSEA after the union discovered that the Kingston City Clerk, Thomas R. Lyle had failed to publish the designation of the Teamsters as bargaining agents for the Water Department last December.

The Teamsters had succeeded in obtaining a majority of the Water Department employes' signatures on union cards and were recognized by the water board.

However, the PERB ruled that failure to publish the results in an official newspaper constituted a violation of the Taylor Law which outlines procedures for bargaining agents for public employes and ordered yesterday's election.

Francis Loeffler has been named shop steward for the Teamsters and Terrance Griffin, assistant shop steward.

The Teamsters have two important items on the immediate agenda, signature of the current (1968) contract and negotiation on a contract for next year.

SIT-IN AT WELFARE — Members of a hastily formed Welfare Mothers Action Committee staged a two-hour sit-in Wednesday afternoon in the fourth floor hall of the Department of Social Services at the county office building. The group wanted to see Harold Larsen in the welfare office about school clothing for their children. Larsen said he would see them individually and discuss each case on its individual merits. They marched into the office shortly after 2 p. m. and Welfare Commissioner Joseph Fitzsimmons again reiterated the welfare policy of hearing cases individually because of confidentiality. They still appeared to be dissatisfied when they left the office. (Gil Gray photo).

Mapping, Sales Levy, Perrines On Agenda for Solons Tonight

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

Tax mapping and reassessment, a county sales tax and awarding a contract for the restoration of the historic Perrine's Bridge will be the three major items on the agenda of an executive session of the County Legislature 7:30 tonight.

Legislator Clarence Raichle, R-Kingston, chairman of the Tax Base Study Committee has asked for consideration of the Tax mapping proposal, the first step toward county reassessment, and a county-wide sales tax, also under study for some time by the committee. It has been reported at various times that the tax mapping with reassessment is estimated to cost about $1 million.

Met Last Night

The Ptrrine's Bridge Committee which met Wednesday night has requested that the Legislature award the contract for the restoration work on the historic span. A low bid of $33,600 was submitted for the work Monday afternoon by Standard Bridge Corp., Albany. The bid was $3,600 over the $50,000 budget set by the Legislature for the restoration work.

The Perrine's Bridge Committee concerned with the overage held an emergency meeting last night. The Committee decided to recommend to the Legislature that they accept the low bid less $2,000 worth of masonary work.

The committee said the urgency of starting the work immediately should be stressed. It was pointed out that the work should be completed before the fall rains, which if flooding occurs, could place the span in jeopardy. It was noted that thhe masonary work could be done at a later date. A representative of Standard Bridge, the low bidder, who attended, said if the contract is awarded, work on the restoration could start immediately.

$20,000 Expended

A total of $20,000 has already been expended for the initial repair work and shoring up in preparation for the total restoration. This work is being done by Cross Country House Movers Inc., Albany, who have been lifting the span at a gradual pace using special beams to bring it to its original level. This work should be accomplished in a day or two, a spokesman for the committee said, Attending the session were Legislators Roger W. Mabie, (D) and E. Stirling Potter (R), both of the 7th District. Mabie is minority leader. Both are on the bridge committee.

Also at the emergency meeting were Albert E. Milliken, who donated his services as architect; Sherwood Davis, attorney for the committee; Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson, Elmer Carney, local historian; Kenneth Clark and Thomas Orr, committee secretary.

Urban Unrest Debate Topic

The problem of urban unrest was tackled last night by the three congressional candidates of the 28th District when they met at Hudson for the second of seven scheduled debates.

Republican Hamilton Fish Jr. called for "inner action of private and public business and of people and government in the field of human rights." Pointing to the fact that the disadvantaged are left behind in a technical era, Fish said, "They give vent to frustration, they show their alienation from the rest of society. They know there is a better way of life.

Something can be done, he advised. "Hope can be rekindled, self-respect can replace frustration. Involvement can end alienation.

"We must make welfare payments a temporary expedient, not a permanent way of life. Something to escape from, not to."

John Dyson, the Democratic candidate described the typical American city as fast becoming uninhabitable

The Millbrook publisher declared that present efforts to solve the urban crisis were insufficient: "In the past we have generally ignored these problems and placed the burden on the city to solve its own problems." This is inadequate as the growing rate of deterioration testifies," Dyson said, adding, "We must immediately implement a massive program sponsored by the private and public sectors to revitalize and rehabilitate our urban neighborhoods, to make the cities liveable once again."

The Liberal candidate, Peter Kane Dufault said that "no matter how much help the ghetto area receives through Black cooperative efforts, from the government or the private sector, most of the residents are still trapped there."

He advocated a program called "proportional resettlement volunteers." Communities throughout the country would receive federal subsidies in housing, schools, transport and job development when they adopted policies of assistance and welcome.

Successor?

Marcello Caetano, a 62-year-old law professor, is shown as he visited ailing Portuguese Premier Antonio Salazar in a Lisbon hospital recently. Portuguese President Americo Thomaz was reported late Wednesday to have asked Caetano to form a new government. The information came from usually reliable sources but could not be confirmed immediately in official quarters. The 79-year-old Salazar has been hospitalized since suffering a massive stroke Sept. 16 and it was the doctors' verdict that ended the age of Salazar in Portugal. Informed sources said Caetano already is mapping out a new cabinet. He is expected to be more liberal than the quietly stern Salazar. Observers predict new faces at the head of ministries of economy, foreign affairs, defense and education. Caetano was the man who provided the theory and some of the technical expertise that went into the founding of Salazar's "corporate state" authoritarian rule in 1932. (UPI TELEPHOTO.)

The Fortas Foes Admit Debate Dip

By ROY MCGHEE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Filibusting opponents of Abe Fortas' nomination to be chief justice admitted a decline in their strength today but insisted they still had enough votes to prevent Senate confirmation.

The latest count showed 36 solid votes against any move to choke off debate on the controversial issue, said Senators Robert Griffin, Mich., and Howard Baker, Tenn.

The two are in the forefront of Republicans allied with southern Democrats in the fight against the nomination, a battle that appeared destined to consume some two weeks.

If their estimate is correct, they are two votes over the minimum needed to deny Fortas supporters success in halting the talkathon that is preventing a vote on the issue, a technical motion to take up the nomination. Another filibuster could be mounted on the nomination itself.

If all one hundred senators were present and voting, 34 no votes would be sufficient to prevent the two-thirds majority necessary to invoke cloture, parliamentary argot for shutting off debate.

Griffin conceded some "erosion" among the 45 senators he once felt he had lined up against cloture, but expressed confidence he retained enough strength to meet any test.

He cited Johnson administration pressure and the press of Senate business as the causes of the defection. A $71.9 billion defense appropriation bill remains stalled while the debate goes on. And Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said "after the first of October, there will not be any money to pay troops in Vietnam."

The Senate did lay aside the nomination while it passed a compromise version of an appropriation bill for the Housing and Urban Development Department.

Baker, leading off the GOP attack as the debate entered its second day, aimed his prepared remarks at heading off any criticism that the opposition's "extended debate" was an undemocratic attack on majority rule.

"Debate is not a dilatory tactic," he said. "Frequently it is the only effective method of forming and adequately expressing public opinion and sentiment."

Wednesday's debate touched on nearly all the objections against Fortas' confirmation that have been raised in the three months since President Johnson named the associate justice to succeed Chief Justice Earl Warren.

It narrowed in on one involving acceptance of a lecture fee while on the Supreme Court, and even Fortas supporters were forced to acknowledge the practice was questionable.

Links Murder To Conditions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The murder rate in this country is connected more to social, economic and cultural conditions than to the availability of guns, the President's commission on violence has been told.

Daniel Glaser, a sociologist from Rutgers University told the commission Wednesday that the poor and under educated have the highest incidents of homicide.

Deaths from violence are much higher in the rural South and the northern urban ghettoes than in the middle class areas of cities and suburbs, he said.

When asked whether states with strict gun control laws had lower violent death rates, Glaser indicated not necessarily. Patterns of living affected the homicide rate much more than controls of guns, he said.

However, Undersecretary of State Nicholas Katzenbach told the commission Wednesday that stronger firearms controls are needed. He said the bans on mail order sales of guns approved by Congress do not go far enough.

Katzenbach, former attorney general, testified most murders are committed within the family or among friends. "You could make the case that you are safer from murder at 4 a.m. in Central Park than you are at home in bed," he said.

Katzenbach predicted the crime rate will continue to rise the next few years because the proportion of the population in their teens and early 20s—the age group which commits the greatest number of crimes—will continue to grow.

Katzenbach questioned the emphasis he said was being placed on order in the concern with law and order in this year's campaign. He said third party presidential candidate George C. Wallace sullies the phrase "law and order" when he uses it.

Pope Has Challenge On 71st

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI turned 71 today facing the most serious challenge to papal authority in modern times.

Instead of unquestioning obedience to Pope Paul's ban on artificial methods of contraception, numerous priests, theologians and even some bishops are advising married couples to do as their conscience tells them.

Other bishops are suspending priests who take issue with the papal ban. Laymen and priests in Chile staged a sit-in in a cathedral. Public opinion polls show that majority of Catholics in Britain won't observe the ban.

Paul, the 262nd pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church, came to a turning point of his reign when he pushed aside the advice of the majority on a birth control commission he had appointed and issued his encyclical reaffirming the Church stand against contraception.

Since the encyclical "Humanae Vitae" (On Human Life) came out in July, the pontiff has been besieged by an unrelenting storm of opposition from all over the world.

The wave of opposition has been so massive in the ranks of the Church itself that bishops all over the world rushed to message statements of loyalty to the Pope.

The turmoil has obviously caused anxiety and grief to Pope Paul, who has often been reported brought to the point of tears by the formidable problems confronting his Church. Nearly every week he has defended his birth control stand.

The uproar is a boon to the conservatives of the Vatican Curia, giving them new arguments against progressive theology as a danger to Church unity and papal authority.

The Pope's recurrent statements urging Catholics to heed his contraception ban have an inevitable ring of condemnation for advocates of changes. Significantly, it became known this week that the Vatican Congregation of the Doctrine of the Faith is conducting an investigation into the writings of the Rev. Eduard Schillebeeckx, the Dutch theologian who has spearheaded Catholic progressive thinking in Holland and northwest Europe.

The wave of opposition has been so massive in the ranks of the Church itself that bishops all over the world rushed to message statements of loyalty to the Pope.

The turmoil has obviously caused anxiety and grief to Pope Paul, who has often been reported brought to the point of tears by the formidable problems confronting his Church. Nearly every week he has defended his birth control stand.

The uproar is a boon to the conservatives of the Vatican Curia, giving them new arguments against progressive theology as a danger to Church unity and papal authority.

The Pope's recurrent statements urging Catholics to heed his contraception ban have an inevitable ring of condemnation for advocates of changes. Significantly, it became known this week that the Vatican Congregation of the Doctrine of the Faith is conducting an investigation into the writings of the Rev. Eduard Schillebeeckx, the Dutch theologian who has spearheaded Catholic progressive thinking in Holland and northwest Europe.

Political Name-Callers

It appears to be almost the first rule of politics that opponents must be depicted as prejudiced against something or other, as lunkheads or scoundrels. If a candidate can make out that his opponent qualifies on all scores, so much the better.

This campaign approach, carried out vigorously, may infuse a humdrum contest with an air of excitement for awhile. This is about the only thing to be said in its favor.

Candidates as a rule declare they are going to conduct their campaigns on a high, constructive plane, but in the next sentence they refer to their opponents as a smear gang, etc.

Sometimes, when the mind wanders off to Never-Never Land and the place where the woodbine twineth, it is fun to speculate about what might happen if every politician were denied the bludgeon of exaggeration. Some would be struck dumb at once. Others might be forced to do a little homework on the issues and to forget the personalities.

Exaggeration of an opponent's shortcomings is a favorite political weapon with statements approaching the ridiculous.

The battle of wild claims and bad names generally winds up as a profound insult to the voters. They deserve better than that; they deserve an honest, factual discussion of the issues.

Public disapproval of dirty campaigns can help to make this kind of electioneering unprofitable.

U.S. Carries the Load

Since stationing invasion troops along the border of West Germany, the Soviet and other Warsaw Pact nations have raised the question in Bonn that they might be planning something worse—the invasion of West Germany, too.

It was to reassure the West Germans that the wartime allies, the United States, Britain and France, jointly warned the Soviet Union and its Warsaw Pact allies against any such new adventures.

Twice, the Soviets in the recent past have told West Germany that they had a right to intervene against what the Russians called "renewal of aggressive policy." The invasion of Czechoslovakia raised West German fears that this also would mean violating their territory.

As a practical matter, the Soviets know that any unilaterial thrust into West Germany for any purpose now conceivable would bring on a major war. Unless the Soviet Union wants to unleash a holocaust, it is not expected to take any further action in Central Europe.

The mood of the NATO signatories created by the Czech crisis provides an excellent opportunity for the U.S. to talk turkey with those nations such as West Germany which have the capacity to supply substantially more money and manpower. West Germany and other European members of NATO have not been pulling their share of the load in proportion to their prosperity. West Germany, for instance, the third ranking industrial nation in the world, seeks reassurance yet it is making minimal contributions to protecting itself.

In view of the strain imposed on U.S. armed forces in Vietnam and throughout the world, this opportunity should be exploited to the fullest.

The Blood Shortage

Blood banks were established 25 years ago. At no time in the quarter century have they been as low in supply. The blood shortage is nationwide, with very few exceptions.

A spokesman for the American Red Cross in New York said the shortage is something "we have to learn to live with." But he admitted that a wholesale tragedy like a train crash would make it very serious indeed.

In city after city, the blood banks said they are running 80 to 85 per cent below what they would consider normal. That leaves a pretty thin edge in case of widespread need.

One reason is the vacation period, when donors drop. Another, and the more dangerous one, is that the riots and demonstrations have deflected young healthy men and women from the practice of giving or even selling blood to the banks.

Giving blood is a personal sacrifice for the good of all. Nor is there any reason not to sell the precious stuff. It is often life-giving. For those young and well, giving blood is one of the most rewarding arts of mercy they can perform. It is something possible to individuals to do as good citizens and human beings, without risks to themselves and results are evident.

Federal Pay Raises. The aim is parity with civilian employes. Next year, more than 5.5 million federal employes are in line for pay raises that will cost in excess of $2 billion annually. That will bring classified, postal and related workers in line with civilian workers. When 3.5 million military personnel get comparable raises next July 1, all government personnel will be on a level.

David Lawrence Says

Should United Nations Have New Secretary-General?

WASHINGTON — Maybe the United Nations should have a new Secretary-General, or perhaps the United Nations itself should decide whether Secretary-General U Thant was acting in a "neutral" capacity when he suggested that the General Assembly be asked to pass a resolution demanding the stoppage of the bombing of North Vietnam by the United States. Nowere in Mr. Thant's recommendation did he say anything about requiring reciprocal action by the North Vietnamese in their mortar attacks on the people of South Vietnam.

While George Ball, U. S. Ambassador to the United Nations, told newsmen that he did not think the Secretary General's discussion of Vietnam was "in any way helpful in furthering the serious and sensitive negotiations now in progress in Paris," there is no sign that the United Nations itself will do anything about it. This leaves U Thant free to make further comments which are not regarded by the United States and other countries as by any means "neutral."

Mr Ball said that the Secretary-General's statement on bombing was issued without any advance consultation with the United States, and added that he did not know whether there was any previous talk by U Thant with North Vietnam. It is evident, however, that the episode has produced a very unfavorable impression not merely among the countries which lean toward the side of the United States in the Vietnam War, but even in some of the countries which have up to this time not participated in such discussions at all. What has followed is a general uneasiness over the fact that the Secretary-General of the United Nations would publicly argue questions of vital importance without specific authority from the United Nations.

The United States, of course, is not contesting U Thant's legal right to express any opinion he desires. The U. N. Charter says that the Secretary General "May bring to the attention of the Security Council any matter which in his opinion may threaten the maintenance of international peace and security." But nowhere in the charter is any authority given him to project the issue to the General Assembly.

The real difficulty, however, is not in the formula whereby questions of worldwide significance can be debated in the Security Council or the General Assembly, but whether the Secretary-General himself should become an active participant. This is not the first occasion on which he has done this. He has from time to time made comments to the press on vital issues in international affairs and apparently feels that he has the unlimited privilege to do so.

But, while the U. N. Charter does authorize the Secretary-General to call the attention of the Security Council to matters which he believes may threaten the peace, it does not, by word or implication, authorize him to take sides in a dispute between states — except at the direction of the organization itself. The moment a Secretary-General becomes a partisan in such a controverly, he also raises doubts about whether he can be impartial in administering the U.N. organization. In particular, doubts arise about how unbiased he can be in his selection of policy-making officials for the secretariat.

On several occasions U Thant has taken verbal swipes against both the United States and the Soviet Union. Analysis of his utterances indicates that he has failed to take a neutral position even on delicate issues that have arisen between member nations.

U Thant is a capable man, and there should be a worthwhile function for him to perform in connection with the United Nations. Perhaps he might serve as one of a half-dozen counselors which the U.N. would find it helpful to appoint so that expert advice on both sides of controversial questions might be made available to all members. But the job of Secretary-General is supposed to be neither political nor one of bias on policy questions that could come before the United Nations.

If the Secretary-General of the U.N. were impartial in his statements, he could perform a great service in advancing the cause of the United Nations itself, which sadly needs a build-up in prestige. Military alliances today are in process of being strengthened and could lead to a major conflict and possibly a third world war.

Many Wallace Supporters in South Are Still Violently Racist

By JAMES K. BATTEN
Chicago Daily News Service

BATON ROUGE, La. — George C. Wallace, who once vowed after a political defeat that he would never be "outniggered" again, has barely mentioned segregation in his Presidential campaign. His big issue this year is "law and order."

But the word about Wallace's new "moderate" image hasn't yet trickled back to some of the Alabamian's more rustic supporters down south. Their approach to politics is as gamey as ever.

In Georgia, for example, there is Roy Harris, the old citizens council stalwart, now a key Wallace lieutenant. The 1968 campaign, Harris has assured reporters, will boil down to one thing — "and you spell it N-i-g-g-e-r."

But perhaps the most extraordinary player on Wallace's Dixie squad is Leander H. Perez Sr., the uncrowned king of Plaquemines Parish, La., and Wallace's most visible operator in this state.

Perez, now 77 years old but as bombastic as ever, would be unbelievable if he turned up in a novel. He left the bench in 1924, but he remains "Judge Perez" in Louisiana.

For years he has ruled his domain, a region of bayous and twisting creeks just out of New Orleans, with an iron hand.

Back in 1943, the story goes, he set up a road block of gasoline soaked oyster shells and set it afire to prevent the arrival of a sheriff appointed by Gov. Sam Jones against his wishes. Years later, Gov. Earl Long appointed a man to a ward post over Perez's objections. So Perez abolished the ward.

Judge Perez may just be the fiercest segregationist who ever lived. When school integration was impending in New Orleans in 1960, Perez was there to rally the opposition.

"Don't wait for your daughters to be raped by these congolese," he shouted to a cheering crowd. "Don't wait until the burrheads are forced into your schools. Do something about it now."

For his trouble, Perez was excommunited by the Roman Catholic Church.

Some men mellow with the passing years, but not Perez. His passions run as deep as ever, and his imagery is just as vivid.

After appearing in court there recently in Wallace's behalf to keep the Louisiana Democratic Party's rooster emblem away from Hubert Humphrey, Perez consented to an interview at his Baton Rouge hotel.

For openers, he announced that Humphrey was a "prime traitor" to America. When the reporter looked puzzled, Perez sent an aide scurrying into the next room for copies of a 1951 column by Westerbrook Pegler. "Apparently," said Perez in mock dismay, "you haven't done your research."

The column insisted that Americans for Democratic action was "Actually a Marxian socialist organization" and observed darkly that Humphrey, then a Senator from Minnesota," is a founding father of the ADA."

Referring to the Democratic representative from New Orleans, Perez muttered, "He's the worst the state has ever produced."

But things are looking up in America, Perez went on more cheerfully. The people have "Acute indigestion" from the leftist policies of both major parties. And so, he predicted confidentially, his friend George Wallace will be elected President in November.

If that happened, would he accept a position in the Wallace administration in Washington?

For a moment, Perez looked startled. Then he roared, "Washington is the hell-hole of America. Why should I want to go to Washington when I have the prettiest country in the world right here in Louisiana?"

Drew Pearson Says

French People Are Again Friendly to Americans

(Editor's Note: Though Drew Pearson has returned to the United States, his dispatches written from Europe will report further on the chaotic situation there. One from Paris is published today.)

PARIS — The people of France are trying to resume their old love affair with the American people — despite De Gaulle.

They are polite and cordial and seem to be going out of their way to make up for De Gaulle's studied affronts to the United States.

As a result, Paris is teeming with Americans once again. There was a time when the restaurants and night clubs were empty, and Life magazine featured a photo of David Schoenbrun as the lone American dining in Maxim's. Not today. Around September 1, Paris came alive again. The swank hotels George V and Plaza Athenee are busy with Americans and Air France is running comfortable full flights across the Atlantic.

Prague vs. Paris

France presents some interesting contrasts between what happened here last year and what happened in Prague one month ago.

In France, President de Gaulle gave a blunt ultimatum to the United States and all NATO powers to move out. All American military equipment, housing, barracks, telephones, oil lines, everything must be removed or else turned over to France.

This was a tremendous operation. The United States had led in making France the bulwark of an intricate defense system to protect it from a repetition of the invasions that had swept across France twice before — in 1914 and 1941. Both invasions had required American armies to be transported at great expense and loss of time across the Atlantic; so it was reasoned that the American army would set up its defenses in France in advance. These defenses included an expensive pipeline carrying oil across France.

All this — every scrap — De Gaulle decreed was to be yanked out.

The United States complied. NATO headquarters was moved to Brussels. All American troops, equipment, and that of other NATO members were removed from French soil.

In contrast, Czechoslovakia did not object to having Warsaw Pact armies — the counterpart of NATO — maneuver on her soil last summer. Czechoslovakia did not pull off the Warsaw Pact. It did not give an ultimatum to remove all Warsaw Pact communications.

Nevertheless, on the night of Aug. 20 Czechoslovakia was overrun by Warsaw Pact troops. It was as if NATO allies, instead of withdrawing from France, had overrun France.

U.S. Embassy Comes Alive

When you enter the American Embassy residence in Paris you see bicycles piled up in the guards' quarters at one side. They are not messengers' bicycles. Upstairs you hear small voices. American jazz music comes from a balcony. The garden where I once saw Secretary of State Jimmy Byrnes entertain Foreign Minister Molotov is a bit worn now. At one side is a football. Under a tree a 14-year-old is turning somersaults on a trampoline.

His mother, Mrs. Eunice Kennedy Shriver, explains that he is about to go back to Landon school in Washington, but is enjoying a vacation in Paris.

Mrs. Shriver has the gestures and mannerisms of her late brother, President John F. Kennedy. Two tragedies have left their mark. Her once auburn hair is now streaked with gray. But she is still as animated as in the days when her older brothers were influencing the American people. And she has not delegated the responsibilities of motherhood to a governess. The children come up to her at luncheon for advice and spending money for a trip downtown.

There are five Shriver children, aged three to fourteen — four of them boys. She had hoped for more girls. "You come out of the ether and ask, 'Is it a girl?' and you keep trying until you get one."

The three-year-old, a boy with a full head of hair, comes up to his mother to whisper something about going on the shopping trip. A guest remarks, "What a cute little girl."

"That settles it," says Mrs. Shriver. "He goes to the barber on Monday."

Youth on the Move

Down in St. Germain University students sit at little cafes drinking coffee. Or they mill around the streets. They are restless again. De Gaulle, who promised them new buildings, more professors, scholastic reforms, has been slow in producing. The Sorbonne is opening again with classes stuffed, sometimes 1,000 to a class.

Student strikes again are in the offing — partly justified, partly stirred up by an extremist minority.

All over the communist and non-communist world, students are on the move. It isn't merely in Paris and Mexico City, where President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz had to take over the university. It was also at the communist universities of Warsaw and Cracow, where the police cracked down much harder than they did at Columbia in New York City or outside the Conrad Hilton hotel in Chicago.

It was the force with which the poloce moved in on the universities that has movements in Poland since.

However, all over the world, young people are restless. In communist countries they want the old bureaucrats to retire, young people to step up. In Romania, Chairman Nicolae Ceausescu has promoted young men. In Poland, Gen Mieczyslav Moczar, a one time partisan leader, is demanding the promotion of young men.

In the United States, Harvard Law School graduates no longer flock to the top Wall Street law firms. They go into government, the Peace Corps or Vista. In Washington, George Crile, son of the famous Cleveland surgeon, just married to Josephs Alsop's stepdaughter, is joining the Cleveland police. Other college graduates also recognize that the big city police have the most challenging jobs facing America, and want to make a contribution to their country.

There are student extremeists bent on trouble, but most of the restlessness among young people today is healthy.

Bulgarians Are Proud to Pay Back Russia for Lavish Aid

BY GEORGE WELLER
Chicago Daily News Foreign Service

SOFIA, Bulgaria — Bulgaria loves Russia.

In the 90 years of Bulgaria's statehood, nobody ever cared about her the way the Russians do. She was the little goose girl of the Balkens, always being seduced and deserted by big powers, always innocent, honest, uncomplex, trustful.

Bulgaria's dreams always ended with the losing of her wars: Pro-Kaiser the first time, Pro-Hitler and Mussolini the second.

And then along came the impossible fairy prince, a traveling salesman with a valise full of Marxism and plenty—plenty of rubles. He gave Bulgaria a fast line from Moscow, asked her only to be obedient and she would wear colors. And it all is coming true.

In Sofia whatever the Soviets say, whatever they want is good.

Supple, foxy Todor Zhikov, the party secretary, disappeared last week. I was told simply: "He is out of town."

He came back from Moscow with a treaty. More oil, gas and electrical energy for Bulgaria. Russia lends, builds helps.

Should Romania refuse to let the Soviet kilowatts cross her frontiers into Bulgarian factories big brother Russia will simply knock Romania cold. And it will serve those Latins right too, blocking Slav Socialism that way, say the Bulgarians.

The fanciful West imagines that Bulgarians, because they are solid, honest folk, are quivering and blushing over the coercion of Czechoslovakia by their troops. Actually there is not a quiver, not a blush, to be seen. The Bulgarians are genuinely proud to be able to pay back part of Russia's lavish aid.

Thanks to censorship, the Bulgarians know nothing about how the Czech industrial machinery has run down, how the Soviets owe Prague $350,000,000 (M). The occupying Hungarians know what they are doing and are ashamed. But all Bulgarians know is that for Bulgaria "Socialism has meant an overflowing Soviet cornucopia of an incredible $1.5 billion worth of easy credit.

Three-quarter of Bulgaria's trade goes to the eastern bloc, and a whopping 53 per cent of it to Russia. Such lopsided selling spelled "servitude" to the Romanians five years ago and to the Yugoslavs 20 years ago. They got out, but not the Bulgarians. They love it and the price — civil liberty — seems cheap.

A diplomat with a lifetime of service here says: "This is not a servile people, but it is a serviceable people. In return for visiable benefits, they are ready to do whatever they are asked. It is especially agreeable to be asked by Russia, whose government helped them shake off Turkey in 1817 in the name of Christianity."

From 10 factories in the whole country to 120 is a dizzy transition from rags to riches. The Bulgarians can hardly believe it. They produced no steel in 1940 but made 1,000,000 tons this year. Their products are sometimes crude, but no matter they still can be sold in the Eastern Countries.

Mongolia, of all places, has chosen to use Bulgaria as a demonstration ground of how Marxism, plus lavish Soviet handouts, can change a rural nation. Hundreds of Mongolian soldiers are on duty in Bulgaria— besides the unseen Soviet troops which have already been protested by worried Albania.

The working class is being sweated to produce Bulgaria's almost incredible industrial growth rate of 12.5 per cent a year. Manual laborers get only $1.50 a day, and shoes cost 10 days' wages. But the Bulgarians were always hard up, even as a nation of small farmers. And they never had so much to be proud of before.

What makes Bulgaria's growth so exciting is that it has all come suddenly in their second decade of Communism, the first decade was difficult. The original small clique of Communists, with the Soviet army standing smilingly by, legally murdered 2,138 members of the opposition, according to official figures, they sent 3,629 people to jail for 10 years to life. Britain and the United States nevertheless were conned into signing Peace treaties.

Suspicious Period

Then Joseph Stalin went through a suspicious period when he turned against the Bulgarian Georgi Demitrov, first secretary of the Communist International. Only after the Bulgarians buchered legally their leading Communist nationalist Traichov Rostov, did the new regime of the incumbent Todor Zhikov take over. Things immediately got better.

Russia stopped keeping Bulgaria in the doghouse, and began to ply her with riches. Bulgaria became a shiny two-edged Soviet knife between Romania and Yugoslavia, the two rebels, which could be turned to cut either way. It still is, and that is the reason for Soviet officers being in all ministries, and for Marshal Ivan Jakubowsky, commander of the Warsaw Pact Forces being stationed in Sofia.

In her present mood of Euphoria, Bulgaria probably would gladly accept membership in the Soviet Union, as the sixteenth of the Soviet Republics. Already she is far more Russian, in language, cultural attitude and loyalty, than conquered republics like Georgia and Armenia, or the three Baltic states, Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

Two obstacles prevent Bulgaria from joining up.

The Soviet constitution has a clause saying that only contiguous states can join Mother Russia, (joining Russia, indeed, was Czechoslovakia's idea when in 1960 her President Antonin Novotny made her a "Socialist Republic.")

—Romania, which became a "Socialist Republic" in 1965 but has no idea of joining Russia, lies between Tennessee-sized Bulgaria and the Soviet Border.

To take over Bulgaria, then the Soviets would have to conquer Romania first — which may already be part of the Soviet southward push — or to revise the U.S.S.R.'s Constitution cross the Black Sea, and take in Bulgaria directly. While this honeymoon lasts, and Soviet credits don't have to be paid back, either would make Bulgaria even snugger and happier in the arms of her bear-lover.

David Lawrence Says

Should United Nations Have New Secretary-General?

WASHINGTON — Maybe the United Nations should have a new Secretary-General, or perhaps the United Nations itself should decide whether Secretary-General U Thant was acting in a "neutral" capacity when he suggested that the General Assembly be asked to pass a resolution demanding the stoppage of the bombing of North Vietnam by the United States. Nowere in Mr. Thant's recommendation did he say anything about requiring reciprocal action by the North Vietnamese in their mortar attacks on the people of South Vietnam.

While George Ball, U. S. Ambassador to the United Nations, told newsmen that he did not think the Secretary General's discussion of Vietnam was "in any way helpful in furthering the serious and sensitive negotiations now in progress in Paris," there is no sign that the United Nations itself will do anything about it. This leaves U Thant free to make further comments which are not regarded by the United States and other countries as by any means "neutral."

Mr Ball said that the Secretary-General's statement on bombing was issued without any advance consultation with the United States, and added that he did not know whether there was any previous talk by U Thant with North Vietnam. It is evident, however, that the episode has produced a very unfavorable impression not merely among the countries which lean toward the side of the United States in the Vietnam War, but even in some of the countries which have up to this time not participated in such discussions at all. What has followed is a general uneasiness over the fact that the Secretary-General of the United Nations would publicly argue questions of vital importance without specific authority from the United Nations.

The United States, of course, is not contesting U Thant's legal right to express any opinion he desires. The U. N. Charter says that the Secretary General "May bring to the attention of the Security Council any matter which in his opinion may threaten the maintenance of international peace and security." But nowhere in the charter is any authority given him to project the issue to the General Assembly.

The real difficulty, however, is not in the formula whereby questions of worldwide significance can be debated in the Security Council or the General Assembly, but whether the Secretary-General himself should become an active participant. This is not the first occasion on which he has done this. He has from time to time made comments to the press on vital issues in international affairs and apparently feels that he has the unlimited privilege to do so.

But, while the U. N. Charter does authorize the Secretary-General to call the attention of the Security Council to matters which he believes may threaten the peace, it does not, by word or implication, authorize him to take sides in a dispute between states — except at the direction of the organization itself. The moment a Secretary-General becomes a partisan in such a controverly, he also raises doubts about whether he can be impartial in administering the U.N. organization. In particular, doubts arise about how unbiased he can be in his selection of policy-making officials for the secretariat.

On several occasions U Thant has taken verbal swipes against both the United States and the Soviet Union. Analysis of his utterances indicates that he has failed to take a neutral position even on delicate issues that have arisen between member nations.

U Thant is a capable man, and there should be a worthwhile function for him to perform in connection with the United Nations. Perhaps he might serve as one of a half-dozen counselors which the U.N. would find it helpful to appoint so that expert advice on both sides of controversial questions might be made available to all members. But the job of Secretary-General is supposed to be neither political nor one of bias on policy questions that could come before the United Nations.

If the Secretary-General of the U.N. were impartial in his statements, he could perform a great service in advancing the cause of the United Nations itself, which sadly needs a build-up in prestige. Military alliances today are in process of being strengthened and could lead to a major conflict and possibly a third world war.

Many Wallace Supporters in South Are Still Violently Racist

By JAMES K. BATTEN
Chicago Daily News Service

BATON ROUGE, La. — George C. Wallace, who once vowed after a political defeat that he would never be "outniggered" again, has barely mentioned segregation in his Presidential campaign. His big issue this year is "law and order."

But the word about Wallace's new "moderate" image hasn't yet trickled back to some of the Alabamian's more rustic supporters down south. Their approach to politics is as gamey as ever.

In Georgia, for example, there is Roy Harris, the old citizens council stalwart, now a key Wallace lieutenant. The 1968 campaign, Harris has assured reporters, will boil down to one thing — "and you spell it N-i-g-g-e-r."

But perhaps the most extraordinary player on Wallace's Dixie squad is Leander H. Perez Sr., the uncrowned king of Plaquemines Parish, La., and Wallace's most visible operator in this state.

Perez, now 77 years old but as bombastic as ever, would be unbelievable if he turned up in a novel. He left the bench in 1924, but he remains "Judge Perez" in Louisiana.

For years he has ruled his domain, a region of bayous and twisting creeks just out of New Orleans, with an iron hand.

Back in 1943, the story goes, he set up a road block of gasoline soaked oyster shells and set it afire to prevent the arrival of a sheriff appointed by Gov. Sam Jones against his wishes. Years later, Gov. Earl Long appointed a man to a ward post over Perez's objections. So Perez abolished the ward.

Judge Perez may just be the fiercest segregationist who ever lived. When school integration was impending in New Orleans in 1960, Perez was there to rally the opposition.

"Don't wait for your daughters to be raped by these congolese," he shouted to a cheering crowd. "Don't wait until the burrheads are forced into your schools. Do something about it now."

For his trouble, Perez was excommunited by the Roman Catholic Church.

Some men mellow with the passing years, but not Perez. His passions run as deep as ever, and his imagery is just as vivid.

After appearing in court here recently in Wallace's behalf to keep the Louisiana Democratic Party's rooster emblem away from Hubert Humphrey, Perez consented to an interview at his Baton Rouge hotel.

For openers, he announced that Humphrey was a "prime traitor" to America. When the reporter looked puzzled, Perez sent an aide scurrying into the next room for copies of a 1951 column by Westerbrook Pegler. "Apparently," said Perez in mock dismay, "you haven't done your research."

The column insisted that Americans for Democratic action was "Actually a Marxian socialist organization" and observed darkly that Humphrey, then a Senator from Minnesota," is a founding father of the ADA."

Referring to the Democratic representative from New Orleans, Perez muttered, "He's the worst the state has ever produced."

But things are looking up in America, Perez went on more cheerfully. The people have "Acute indigestion" from the leftist policies of both major parties. And so, he predicted confidentially, his friend George Wallace will be elected President in November.

If that happened, would he accept a position in the Wallace administration in Washington?

For a moment, Perez looked startled. Then he roared, "Washington is the hell-hole of America. Why should I want to go to Washington when I have the prettiest country in the world right here in Louisiana?"

Drew Pearson Says

French People Are Again Friendly to Americans

(Editor's Note: Though Drew Pearson has returned to the United States, his dispatches written from Europe will report further on the chaotic situation there. One from Paris is published today.)

PARIS — The people of France are trying to resume their old love affair with the American people — despite De Gaulle.

They are polite and cordial and seem to be going out of their way to make up for De Gaulle's studied affronts to the United States.

As a result, Paris is teeming with Americans once again. There was a time when the restaurants and night clubs were empty, and Life magazine featured a photo of David Schoenbrun as the lone American dining in Maxim's. Not today. Around September 1, Paris came alive again. The swank hotels George V and Plaza Athenee are busy with Americans and Air France is running comfortable full flights across the Atlantic.

Prague vs. Paris

France presents some interesting contrasts between what happened here last year and what happened in Prague one month ago.

In France, President de Gaulle gave a blunt ultimatum to the United States and all NATO powers to move out. All American military equipment, housing, barracks, telephones, oil lines, everything must be removed or else turned over to France.

This was a tremendous operation. The United States had led in making France the bulwark of an intricate defense system to protect it from a repetition of the invasions that had swept across France twice before — in 1914 and 1941. Both invasions had required American armies to be transported at great expense and loss of time across the Atlantic; so it was reasoned that the American army would set up its defenses in France in advance. These defenses included an expensive pipeline carrying oil across France.

All this — every scrap — De Gaulle decreed was to be yanked out.

The United States complied. NATO headquarters was moved to Brussels. All American troops, equipment, and that of other NATO members were removed from French soil.

In contrast, Czechoslovakia did not object to having Warsaw Pact armies — the counterpart of NATO — maneuver on her soil last summer. Czechoslovakia did not pull off the Warsaw Pact. It did not give an ultimatum to remove all Warsaw Pact communications.

Nevertheless, on the night of Aug. 20 Czechoslovakia was overrun by Warsaw Pact troops. It was as if NATO allies, instead of withdrawing from France, had overrun France.

U.S. Embassy Comes Alive

When you enter the American Embassy residence in Paris you see bicycles piled up in the guards' quarters at one side. They are not messengers' bicycles. Upstairs you hear small voices. American jazz music comes from a balcony. The garden where I once saw Secretary of State Jimmy Byrnes entertain Foreign Minister Molotov is a bit worn now. At one side is a football. Under a tree a 14-year-old is turning somersaults on a trampoline.

His mother, Mrs. Eunice Kennedy Shriver, explains that he is about to go back to Landon school in Washington, but is enjoying a vacation in Paris.

Mrs. Shriver has the gestures and mannerisms of her late brother, President John F. Kennedy. Two tragedies have left their mark. Her once auburn hair is now streaked with gray. But she is still as animated as in the days when her older brothers were influencing the American people. And she has not delegated the responsibilities of motherhood to a governess. The children come up to her for luncheon for advice and spending money for a trip downtown.

There are five Shriver children, aged three to fourteen — four of them boys. She had hoped for more girls. "You come out of the ether and ask, 'Is it a girl?' and you keep trying until you get one."

The three-year-old, a boy with a full head of hair, comes up to his mother to whisper something about going on the shopping trip. A guest remarks, "What a cute little girl."

"That settles it," says Mrs. Shriver. "He goes to the barber on Monday."

Youth on the Move

Down in St. Germain University students sit at little cafes drinking coffee. Or they mill around the streets. They are restless again. De Gaulle, who promised them new buildings, more professors, scholastic reforms, has been slow in producing. The Sorbonne is opening again with classes stuffed, sometimes 1,000 to a class.

Student strikes again are in the offing — partly justified, partly stirred up by an extremist minority.

All over the communist and non-communist world, students are on the move. It isn't merely in Paris and Mexico City, where President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz had to take over the university. It was also at the communist universities of Warsaw and Cracow, where the police cracked down much harder than they did at Columbia in New York City or outside the Conrad Hilton hotel in Chicago.

It was the force with which the poloce moved in on the universities that has movements in Poland since.

However, all over the world, young people are restless. In communist countries they want the old bureaucrats to retire, young people to step up. In Romania, Chairman Nicolae Ceausescu has promoted young men. In Poland, Gen Mieczyslav Moczar, a one time partisan leader, is demanding the promotion of young men.

In the United States, Harvard Law School graduates no longer flock to the top Wall Street law firms. They go into government, the Peace Corps or Vista. In Washington, George Crile, son of the famous Cleveland surgeon, just married to Josephs Alsop's stepdaughter, is joining the Cleveland police. Other college graduates also recognize that the big city police have the most challenging jobs facing America, and want to make a contribution to their country.

There are student extremeists bent on trouble, but most of the restlessness among young people today is healthy.

Bulgarians Are Proud to Pay Back Russia for Lavish Aid

BY GEORGE WELLER
Chicago Daily News Foreign Service

SOFIA, Bulgaria — Bulgaria loves Russia.

In the 90 years of Bulgaria's statehood, nobody ever cared about her the way the Russians do. She was the little goose girl of the Balkens, always being seduced and deserted by big powers, always innocent, honest, uncomplex, trustful.

Bulgaria's dreams always ended with the losing of her wars: Pro-Kaiser the first time, Pro-Hitler and Mussolini the second.

And then along came the impossible fairy prince, a traveling salesman with a valise full of Marxism and plenty—plenty of rubles. He gave Bulgaria a fast line from Moscow, asked her only to be obedient and she would wear colors. And it all is coming true.

In Sofia whatever the Soviets say, whatever they want is good.

Supple, foxy Todor Zhikov, the party secretary, disappeared last week. I was told simply: "He is out of town."

He came back from Moscow with a treaty. More oil, gas and electrical energy for Bulgaria. Russia lends, builds helps.

Should Romania refuse to let the Soviet kilowatts cross her frontiers into Bulgarian factories big brother Russia will simply knock Romania cold. And it will serve those Latins right too, blocking Slav Socialism that way, say the Bulgarians.

The fanciful West imagines that Bulgarians, because they are solid, honest folk, are quivering and blushing over the coercion of Czechoslovakia by their troops. Actually there is not a quiver, not a blush, to be seen. The Bulgarians are genuinely proud to be able to pay back part of Russia's lavish aid.

Thanks to censorship, the Bulgarians know nothing about how the Czech industrial machinery has run down, how the Soviets owe Prague $350,000,000 (M). The occupying Hungarians know what they are doing and are ashamed. But all Bulgarians know is that for Bulgaria "Socialism has meant an overflowing Soviet cornucopia of an incredible $1.5 billion worth of easy credit.

Three-quarter of Bulgaria's trade goes to the eastern bloc, and a whopping 53 per cent of it to Russia. Such lopsided selling spelled "servitude" to the Romanians five years ago and to the Yugoslavs 20 years ago. They got out, but not the Bulgarians. They love it and the price — civil liberty — seems cheap.

A diplomat with a lifetime of service here says: "This is not a servile people, but it is a serviceable people. In return for visiable benefits, they are ready to do whatever they are asked. It is especially agreeable to be asked by Russia, whose government helped them shake off Turkey in 1817 in the name of Christianity."

From 10 factories in the whole country to 120 is a dizzy transition from rags to riches. The Bulgarians can hardly believe it. They produced no steel in 1940 but made 1,000,000 tons this year. Their products are sometimes crude, but no matter they still can be sold in the Eastern Countries.

Mongolia, of all places, has chosen to use Bulgaria as a demonstration ground of how Marxism, plus lavish Soviet handouts, can change a rural nation. Hundreds of Mongolian soldiers are on duty in Bulgaria— besides the unseen Soviet troops which have already been protested by worried Albania.

The working class is being sweated to produce Bulgaria's almost incredible industrial growth rate of 12.5 per cent a year. Manual laborers get only $1.50 a day, and shoes cost 10 days' wages. But the Bulgarians were always hard up, even as a nation of small farmers. And they never had so much to be proud of before.

What makes Bulgaria's growth so exciting is that it has all come suddenly in their second decade of Communism, the first decade was difficult. The original small clique of Communists, with the Soviet army standing smilingly by, legally murdered 2,138 members of the opposition, according to official figures, they sent 3,629 people to jail for 10 years to life. Britain and the United States nevertheless were conned into signing Peace treaties.

Suspicious Period

Then Joseph Stalin went through a suspicious period when he turned against the Bulgarian Georgi Demitrov, first secretary of the Communist International. Only after the Bulgarians buchered legally their leading Communist nationalist Traichov Rostov, did the new regime of the incumbent Todor Zhikov take over. Things immediately got better.

Russia stopped keeping Bulgaria in the doghouse, and began to ply her with riches. Bulgaria became a shiny two-edged Soviet knife between Romania and Yugoslavia, the two rebels, which could be turned to cut either way. It still is, and that is the reason for Soviet officers being in all ministries, and for Marshal Ivan Jakubowsky, commander of the Warsaw Pact Forces being stationed in Sofia.

In her present mood of Euphoria, Bulgaria probably would gladly accept membership in the Soviet Union, as the sixteenth of the Soviet Republics. Already she is far more Russian, in language, cultural attitude and loyality, than conquered republics like Georgia and Armenia, or the three Baltic states, Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

Two obstacles prevent Bulgaria from joining up.

The Soviet constitution has a clause saying that only contiguous states can join Mother Russia, (joining Russia, indeed, was Czechoslovakia's idea when in 1960 her President Antonin Novotny made her a "Socialist Republic.")

—Romania, which became a "Socialist Republic" in 1961 but has no idea of joining Russia, lies between Tennessee-sized Bulgaria and the Soviet Border.

To take over Bulgaria, then the Soviets would have to conquer Romania first — which may already be part of the Soviet southward push — or to repose the U.S.S.R.'s Constitutional cross, the Black Sea, and take in Bulgaria directly. While this honeymoon lasts, and Soviet credits don't have to be paid back, either would make Bulgaria even snugger and happier in the arms of her bear-lover.

Editor, The Freeman:

Now that the Onteora School budget has finally been passed, I feel that I must answer a letter by Mr. Hollyday printed in the Sept. 18 Kingston Freeman.

The gentleman apparently failed to seek facts before making his statement. Before I opened my mouth, I had facts by going to the sources, the budgets, the schools and the State School Commission in Albany.

It was following my call to Dr. Stanley Raub in Albany and my visit to the schools on a Thursday that on Friday the Woodstock School issued a note through the school children that the library books and all textbooks and supplies purchased before July 1st could and must be used as well as all athletic and physical education equipment.

The gentleman failed to mention that, when the meeting at Boiceville first started to get out of hand that I had asked that all present put aside emotions and let us "Reason together." And only when members of the school board reacted emotionally did I finally ask questions which proved embarrassing to that body.

Dr. Snyder called me the next morning and after a fifty minute conversation during which I named by source of information, Dr. Stanley Raub, and expressed the belief that unless the administration and the board changed their attitudes and admitted mistakes in handling the situation, feared the budget would be defeated a third time. So at Woodstock, we had the "unprecedented" appearance of a state official, namely Dr. Stanley Raub. I was delighted to see this informed and stable individual there and to have him speak after Dr. Snyder and some members of the school board, expressed their regrets over mistakes made in the handling of contingencybudget. I then stated that I was sure that the mistakes were made in the over anxiety of all concerned in trying to have a budget adopted that they felt was the best budget they could present, and I too felt that the budget must pass for the safety and welfare of our children.

However, I feel that the School Board, teachers and parents must realize and make the children realize that they have a responsibility for providing the finest education possible, but as free of waste and with regard for the property that we the taxpayers provide.

And the electorate must become and remain informed as to school problems and finances. After all we are educating the electorate of the future. So remain concerned and knowledgeable before another budget must be adopted.

Sincerely,
MRS. ANTHONY J. DeLISIO

I would like to take exception with Mr. Wendell Heilman's letter which recently appeared in your paper. It is grossly inaccurate in many aspects.

I am a Republican working for the election of John Dyson to Congress. I feel that this year, more than ever, we must have responsive and responsible leadership and representation for our district and our nation. I feel that only John Dyson can give us that leadership.

Mr. Dyson did indeed have a rally for volunteers like myself who are working for his election. The fact that there were three thousand people present, including over 300 Republicans, understandably distresses Mr. Heilman and the other supporters of Mr. Fish, because the rally's large size is indicative of the tremendous support which has generated around John Dyson.

I would like to point out further that nearly everyone present at the rally made generous contributions toward its cost. It is my understanding that these donations far exceeded the cost of the rally, and that the remainder will be used to defray the other expenses of the campaign. Further, everyone who worked on the affair was an unpaid volunteer.

Mr. Heilman would do well to remember that President Kennedy ran for Congress while single, and under thirty. We need young men like John Dyson in Washington. Mr. Heilman, who was not present on Sunday, should realize that the citizens of our district will not be swayed by his petty personal attacks on Mr. Dyson. We are concerned about the issues facing our district and our nation. At this time in our history it is important to put country above party. We demand a Congressman who will speak out on the issues now and in Washington. John Dyson is that man!

Sincerely,
David Watson

The School Tax

Highland Avenue
Kerhonkson, New York
Sept. 21, 1968

Editor, The Freeman

The article that is in this letter is a piece of wisdom passed on to me by a very wise person, Mother, and friend. I wish all to read it and take heed, for in my estimation it speaks a sound truth.

I, The Tax Dollar

A magnificent role has the much abused tax dollar. Here it speaks in its own defense.

I dispel the tempest of ignorance which threatens calamity to the community and the nation.

I provide the laboratories, libraries, and classrooms wherein the scientists, the statesmen, ministers, and teachers of tomorrow may find their strength.

I build bulwarks which tend to ford the tides of time. I shape the key to intelligent public opinion which unlocks the doors to economic, political and social stability.

I yield returns more priceless than gold, more lasting than steel, more potent than the pen or sword; the returns of intelligent thinking minds.

I insure the rights of childhood.

I am the school tax.

We, the Rondout Taxpayers, especially those of us who have children in school, have, as stated so well in in an old cliche "bitten off our nose to spite our face." I, for one, did not register or vote immediately. I waited to hear all the pros and cons on the subject and when I finally went to school to vote and heard our taxpayers build up resentment on the subject, I became so infuriated with the many mixed ideas I couldn't even write my own name. We taxpayers have absolutely no qualms over the money we spend for our night's bowling, evening at the local pub, paying a large sum for a newly organized tennis club, or many other numerous social activities. This is our "out." That we won't give up. Actually it is our balance. Taxpayers, our children need a balance also. They need everything we can give them because they are our most priceless possession.

Look at the sum of ten million dollars that the state granted the Catskill Reformatory to undo the wrong that has been done to so many individuals. Unfortunately we taxpayers are griping about the money we are spending to educate and make sound useful citizens out of this generation. It could be our children tomorrow in this very same place if we do not enlighten our ideas as to what has to be done.

I will concede that some of the ideas in the budget were far-fetched, but on the whole it was sound.

A very distressing example is the destruction of our outdated books. This should definitely be eliminated as I feel there is someone, somewhere who could profit from their use. The old cliche holds much sense here also—"waste not, want not."

We surely cannot send our children to school with the idea that their education is too costly. The children's attitude is generally transmitted by their parents, so therefore we certainly must eliminate the criticism of our school system.

I feel we have a marvelous school, facilities and faculty. I say "Bravo" to the school board and everyone who is contributing to its growth.

We as the taxpayers must realize the school cannot exist without our aid. We give birth to a child and cannot expect it to raise itself, anymore than we can purchase a new car and expect it to run itself without gasoline and servicing. Therefore we should exhibit intelligence instead of ignorance and do everything in our power to conform to the needs of our children and community.

Now to end this letter I want to state that I feel qualified to voice my opinion since I am the mother of a son who was a 1966 graduate of R.V.C.S., at present have a daughter who is a Junior, and a son who is in elementary school. As my memory goes over the past 15 years and my association with R.V.C.S. I feel my tax dollar has definitely been a tremendous profit.

We taxpayers must open our eyes to see this world progressing and our children with it. We must open our minds to understanding their needs and open our hearts to help those who are less fortunate. We will find that this is reaping a fine harvest.

Sincerely,
MRS. ROGER S. TERWILLIGER

Mr. Heilman, who was not present on Sunday, should realize that the citizens of our district will not be swayed by his petty personal attacks on Mr. Dyson. We are concerned about the issues facing our district and our nation. At this time in our history it is important to put country above party. We demand a Congressman who will speak out on the issues now and in Washington. John Dyson is that man!

Sincerely,
David Watson

The School Tax
Highland Avenue
Kerhonkson, New York
Sept. 21, 1968

Editor, The Freeman

The article that is in this letter is a piece of wisdom passed on to me by a very wise person, Mother, and friend. I wish all to read it and take heed, for in my estimation it speaks a sound truth.

I, The Tax Dollar

A magnificent role has the much abused tax dollar. Here it speaks in its own defense.

I dispel the tempest of ignorance which threatens calamity to the community and the nation.

I provide the laboratories, libraries, and classrooms wherein the scientists, the statesmen, ministers, and teachers of tomorrow may find their strength.

I build bulwarks which tend to ford the tides of time. I shape the key to intelligent public opinion which unlocks the doors to economic, political and social stability.

I yield returns more priceless than gold, more lasting than steel, more potent than the pen or sword; the returns of intelligent thinking minds.

I insure the rights of childhood.

I am the school tax.

We, the Rondout Taxpayers, especially those of us who have children in school, have, as stated so well in in an old cliche "bitten off our nose to spite our face." I, for one, did not register or vote immediately. I waited to hear all the pros and cons on the subject and when I finally went to school to vote and heard our taxpayers build up resentment on the subject, I became so infuriated with the many mixed ideas I couldn't even write my own name. We taxpayers have absolutely no qualms over the money we spend for our night's bowling, evening at the local pub, paying a large sum for a newly organized tennis club, or many other numerous social activities. This is our "out." That we won't give up. Actually it is our balance. Taxpayers, our children need a balance also. They need everything we can give them because they are our most priceless possession.

Look at the sum of ten million dollars that the state granted the Catskill Reformatory to undo the wrong that has been done to so many individuals. Unfortunately we taxpayers are griping about the money we are spending to educate and make sound useful citizens out of this generation. It could be our children tomorrow in this very same place if we do not enlighten our ideas as to what has to be done.

I will concede that some of the ideas in the budget were far-fetched, but on the whole it was sound.

A very distressing example is the destruction of our outdated books. This should definitely be eliminated as I feel there is someone, somewhere who could profit from their use. The old cliche holds much sense here also—"waste not, want not."

We surely cannot send our children to school with the idea that their education is too costly. The children's attitude is generally transmitted by their parents, so therefore we certainly must eliminate the criticism of our school system.

I feel we have a marvelous school, facilities and faculty. I say "Bravo" to the school board and everyone who is contributing to its growth.

We as the taxpayers must realize the school cannot exist without our aid. We give birth to a child and cannot expect it to raise itself, anymore than we can purchase a new car and expect it to run itself without gasoline and servicing. Therefore we should exhibit intelligence instead of ignorance and do everything in our power to conform to the needs of our children and community.

Now to end this letter I want to state that I feel qualified to voice my opinion since I am the mother of a son who was a 1966 graduate of R.V.C.S., at present have a daughter who is a Junior, and a son who is in elementary school. As my memory goes over the past 15 years and my association with R.V.C.S. I feel my tax dollar has definitely been a tremendous profit.

We taxpayers must open our eyes to see this world progressing and our children with it. We must open our minds to understanding their needs and open our hearts to help those who are less fortunate. We will find that this is reaping a fine harvest.

Sincerely,
MRS. ROGER S. TERWILLIGER

Charged In Death

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Donald J. Szetela, 32, was charged with second-degree manslaughter Wednesday in the beating of Walter Prucnal, 62, who died Monday night in a hospital here, police said.

Leaving Scene Is Charged to Area Driver

Accused of leaving the scene of an accident which resulted in injuries to a woman passenger, William Carey, 43, of Lake Katrine, is slated to appear at a later date before Saugerties Town Justice Calvin Cody.

According to Kingston State Police, Carey reportedly was driving a 1961 car on Route 32 Wednesday when the vehicle left the pavement and crashed into fence posts near Route 212 in the Town of Saugerties. Carey, troopers said, allegedly left the scene but was picked up several hours later by Trooper Patrick Sheehan and booked for the violation.

Edna Spring, of 151 First Avenue, Kingston, the owner of the car and a passenger at the time of the mishap, was taken to Benedictine Hospital by Saugerties Ambulance Service. She was treated for a severe laceration of the left knee and a possible fracture.

Inspectors Meeting

The 104 election inspectors of the 26 election districts in the City of Kingston have been called to a special instructional meeting 8 o'clock tonight at the county courthouse. Mrs. Valerie Quick Sheeley, deputy commissioner of the County Board of Elections, said the meeting has been called for the purpose of instructing the inspectors on the method of registration of prospective voters for the Nov. 5 election.

He also said that "oppression is not the birthright of white people, but of people," and he added, "I welcome black identity," which brought about a sustained applause.

The school's chief administrator had stated earlier that, although he opposed authoritarianism, he was, in the last analysis, "the final authority" in the college in a formula that had to be maintained to insure academic discipline.

He said, "I feel as badly as you do that we have suffered from overkill and over strength," and that this was the result of "unchecked power."

The president further stated, however, that there were those "who would run away from pressure."

"We may have our differences of opinion," Dr. Numaier continued, "but I hope they will not be resolved by my fear or your fear."

Admitting that administrators like himself are fallible, Dr. Neumaier pointed out that "a framework of checks and balances" must be established so that no single group on campus holds a monopoly of power.

For students who advocated an increased voice for themselves in the conduct of a college's affairs, Dr. Neumaier said that they must be willing to see their own limitations, judge their own fallibility, and work for an enlightened coalition.

No Injuries In School Bus, Car Accident

A three-vehicle rearend collision involving a school bus was investigated Wednesday afternoon by State Trooper Patrick Sheehan of Lake Katrine, who reported no injuries.

Trooper Sheehan's report noted that Frank Tobin, 50, of Rosendale, driving a 1968 school bus owned by Arthur Mulligan, stopped to discharge passengers and Ben Wax, 64, of Paterson, N. J., stopped behind the bus. A pickup truck driven by Clifford Jackson, 59, of Rosendale, reportedly hit the rear of Wax's car and pushed it into the rear of the bus which was starting to proceed on its run.

Jackson, troopers said, was cited for following too closely.

City Firemen Summoned for Brush Fires

Kingston firemen were called Wednesday at 1:12 p. m. after brush fires were reported in the vicinity of Ulster Street Extension and North Street.

Three engines responded to the alarm in command of Capt. Robert Schatzel and on arrival firefighters found 11 separate large fires in progress. It was noted on fire department records the workmen from the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp. were clearing the brush from the area. Construction workers assisted firemen in extinguishing the fires. Fire units were back in service at 3:30 p. m.

president of the National Student Association. Vice chairman is Ray Appleton, former national coordinator of Republican Nelson A. Rockefeller's youth group, the New Majority.

Humphrey youth groups all must raise their own money at the local level, says Spencer Oliver, youth effort coordinator at Citizens for Humphrey headquarters in Washington.

"We're trying to motivate young people to become involved with the Humphrey-Muskie ticket," said Oliver. "We think that drawing the distinctions between Humphrey, Nixon and Wallace will motivate them because the vested interest they have will be greatly affected" th "vested interest" being such programs as federal aid to education and the like.

The GOP View

The Republican view of Ted Cormaney, executive director of the Young Republican Federation, is that "we have taken the attitude that our opposition is not the Democrats but the apahetic voter. If we just turn out our people we don't have to grab at other people."

He hopes to count 50,000 young workers under his organization by election day. Their principal activity is voter registration and canvassing in such areas as military bases, moderately-priced high-rise apartments and inexpensive subdivisions where there are heavy concentrations of young adults.

Cormaney says these canvassers offer services—registration help, transportation on election day and the like—rather than a candidate hard-sell.

"The first person who offers to perform a service for these people gets their vote 7 out of 10 times," he claims.

A Census Bureau survey of persons not registered to vote in 1966 found that 25 per cent of unregistred persons in the 21-34 group could not qualify because of residence requirements, a higher proportion than in any other group.

A Gallup Poll of 21-to-29-year-olds found 2½ times as many as the national average had lived less than a year at their present address, and many jurisdictions require one-year residence for voting.

Inadequate Motivation

"The relatively poor performance of young adults in terms of registration and voting can be explained in large degree by the great mobility of this group and restrictive residence requirements," Gallup concluded.

A study by Survey Research Center on nonvoting of youth agreed that residence and registration requirements are on barrier, but it also observed:

"Nonvoting among the young is in part due to inadequate motivation. Political interest among the less well-educated seems to develop slowly through life's experience; this development is hindered by such mundane but absorbing and inevitable problems as finding a spouse or rearing young children."

Gallup, however, said he found that 21-to-29-year-olds exhibited as much interest in politics as the national average, showed greater willingness to volunteer for party work than any other age group and were about as willing as the national average to contribute $5 to their party if anyone asked them.

In the last four presidential elections, Gallup found voters in the 21-29 group favored the Democratic candidate by, successively, 6, 1, 4 and 3 percentage points more than the electorate as a whole.

But in a July poll, Gallup found only 38 per cent of the 21-29 group considered themselves Democrats, compared to 46 per cent of the over-all population.

Inadequate Motivation

"The relatively poor performance of young adults in terms of registration and voting can be explained in large degree by the great mobility of this group and restrictive residence requirements," Gallup concluded.

A study by Survey Research Center on nonvoting of youth agreed that residence and registration requirements are on barrier, but it also observed:

"Nonvoting among the young is in part due to inadequate motivation. Political interest among the less well-educated seems to develop slowly through life's experience; this development is hindered by such mundane but absorbing and inevitable problems as finding a spouse or rearing young children."

Gallup, however, said he found that 21-to-29-year-olds exhibited as much interest in politics as the national average, showed greater willingness to volunteer for party work than any other age group and were about as willing as the national average to contribute $5 to their party if anyone asked them.

In the last four presidential elections, Gallup found voters in the 21-29 group favored the Democratic candidate by, successively, 6, 1, 4 and 3 percentage points more than the electorate as a whole.

But in a July poll, Gallup found only 38 per cent of the 21-29 group considered themselves Democrats, compared to 46 per cent of the over-all population.

Memoriam

In loving memory of Michael P. Santoroski, who passed away one year ago today, September 26, 1967.

He wished no one a last farewell,
Nor even said good-bye,
He was gone before we knew it
And only God knew why.
His busy hands are resting now,
His work on earth is done
God needed him in Heaven
So He took our loving one.

DYSON AND RECRUITERS — Democrat Congressional candidate John Dyson met this week in Kingston with recruiters for the various U. S. armed forces. He was reportedly inquiring as to what the different services had to offer today's young men. (L) are S/Sgt. William Hickock, U. S. Marines; T/Sgt. Robert Gardner, U. S. Air Force; Dyson and Sgt. Edward Kean, U. S. Army. Not pictured are Chief John Drake, U. S. Navy and AE 1 William Quinn, U. S. Navy.

Dyson Attacks Welfare System

John Dyson, Democratic candidate for Congress, today lashed out at the present welfare system and declared: "We must redesign the outmoded welfare system and concentrate on turning poor people into productive, self-sufficient members of society." Dyson spoke before the Dutchess County Social Worker's Club at the Children's Home in Poughkeepsie where he released his sixth white paper," Poverty and Welfare."

Dyson, outlining the solutions to the present system, stated: "The vast human resources of our depressed areas cannot be tapped unless we improve education, health, housing and job opportunities. We need to develop jobs in the public sectors, like the WPA program, to fill the employment gap and employ those who cannot find employment in the private sector."

Speaking on education, the Democratic nominee said: "The quality of education must be upgraded in our rural and urban areas. School boards should increase teacher salaries and training qualifications to lure the most able teachers to these areas."

Speaking on housing, the Millbrook publisher stated: "The rebuilding of ghetto areas in our cities will need federal and state funds for low and middle income public housing. We must see to it that the new public and private housing projects that replace the slums have rents within the reach of the former slum-dwellers.

Dyson concluded: "The money that all levels of government allot for poverty and welfare programs should be considered investments — investments in the development of valuable human resources that will yield a high return in later years."

Citizen Group Set for Finch In Fifth Ward

Joseph Spada, publicity director for John (Jack) Finch, Democratic candidate for alderman in the new Fifth Ward, has announced the formation of a Citizen's Committee for Finch in the ward.

Spada said today, "Due to the large response for Finch's candidacy in the ward, we are mobilizing interested citizens to actively promote the election of this outstanding educator and civic minded person."

Spada pointed out that Finch has been a local teacher for more than 15 years and has shown a "sincere and dedicated interest in the welfare of children." Finch is the father of two children.

Spada said that Finch, as a teacher, parent and home owner, is keenly aware of the economic pressures facing residents of the ward and would closely scrutinize any and all expenditures before casting his vote if elected this November.

Headquarters for the Citizens Committee for Finch is 156 Downs Street. Persons wishing further details on the organization are advised to contact Spada at that address.

Five Sentenced In Court Here

Sentence was imposed on five defendants in county court Wednesday before County Judge Raymond J. Mino.

John Ottignon, 22 of Spring Valley, who pleaded guilty to reckless endangerment, second degree and possessing a weapon as a felony, was sentenced to one year in the county jail on each count with sentences to run consecutively. Ottignon was charged in the investigation of an incident on April 7 in which a man in one car fired a .38 revolver at a passing vehicle on the Thruway. Joseph Traficanti appeared for the defendant.

Ronald Newman, 20 of Brooklyn, who entered a plea of guilty to attempted burglary, was sentenced to six months in the county jail. The case involved the break-in at a drug store and gas station in Woodstock Aug. 8, 1967. Charles Saccoman appeared for the defense and offered a plea for clemency.

Leroy Coach, 20 and Raymond Santiago, 23, both of the Bronx, who entered guilty pleas to a charge of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, were sentenced to one year in county jail. The charge stemmed from a car theft May 30.

Also involved in the case was Carmilo De Jesus, 19, of the Bronx, who entered the same guilty plea, but was sentenced to four months in county jail. Traficanti entered pleas of clemency for all three of his clients.

Assistant District Attorney James H. Fisher appeared for the prosecution.

Name Bechtold To Coordinate City Campaigns

C. John Bechtold, Republican mayoral candidate last year, has been named to coordinate GOP aldermanic campaigns in Kingston.

The announcement was made by John R. Mayone, city Republican chairman who also gave notice of a meeting of all Republican candidates, committeemen, assistant and junior committeemen tonight in Surrogate Court, Ulster County Office Building.

The agenda consists of discussions of plans for each aldermanic campaign and participation in the national campaign and brief addresses from representatives of H. Clark Bell, the assembly candidate, Hamilton Fish, congressional candidate, Jay P. Rolison, senatorial candidate and Thomas Mayone, candidate for sheriff.

In a statement today, Mayone said:

"In this type of campaign where we have only the aldermen candidates at the local level, it is the function of the City Committee to make itself available to the county, state and national candidates. It is my policy that in this type of situation our function should be to completely subrogate ourselves and our organization to the men running these campaigns. In short, we become their "troops" for their campaign. I have had various meetings with these candidates, and have offered them the fullest aid and cooperation of the City Committee. It remains but to properly coordinate our efforts.

Concerning the aldermen in the 10 wards where we have republican candidates, as you know, these campaigns must be organized and conducted on a ward basis. There is little that can be done in the way of a city-wide effort in these races. It is up to each aldermanic candidate and his committeemen to organize his group within each Ward. I have appointed Vice Chairman C. John Bechtold to be in charge of the aldermanic campaigns, and John stands ready to assist in every way possible."

Rosendale Man Seriously Hurt; Issued Summons

While driving his car west on Abeel Street near the city line at 12:50 a. m. today, John S. Metsopulos, 22, of Star Route, Box 64, Creek Locks Road, Rosendale, was seriously injured when the vehicle went out of control and slammed into guard rails.

Authorities said the man narrowly escaped death when a length of rail crashed through the left front of the 1961 sedan and passed through the auto into the trunk.

Metsopulos was treated at scene and then rushed to Kingston Hospital by Doctors Ambulance. He suffered a compound fracture of the left leg, and fractures of the pelvis and skull in addition to mulitple severe lacerations and other injuries. His condition was listed as satisfactory.

According to police reports, the car was westbound when the driver lost control as the vehicle veered off the left side of the street, struck guard rails and continued on and crashed into a second section of guard rails.

Kingston firemen were dispatched to the scene to wash gasoline that flowed from a ruptured tank on the car off the pavement.

Police cited Metsopulos for failure to keep to the right and driving a motor vehicle at a speed not reasonable and prudent. The summons are returnable later before City Judge Hubert A. Richter.

Vandalism, Harassment Are Probed

Vandalism and harassment complaints involving the smashing of glass in automobiles, shooting holes through store windows, and destroying shrubbery in various parts of Kingston, were under investigation today by city police.

Police records noted that someone fired a pellet through a window at Schecter's Market at 84-86 North Front Street, last night.

Walter Brandt of 63 Grant Street, complained to authorities that he was driving his 1965 car on lower Broadway Tuesday night and three young men threw a large rock that hit the top of his vehicle and smashed the windshield. Brandt estimated the damage between $300 and $350.

Other complaints have been made to city police about school children damaging or destroying shrubbery.

All complaints are under investigation.

Mutz was one of six Wawarsing area men arrested in a March 1 narcotics raid in Ellenville by law enforcement authorities operating under a combined venture of the United Narcotics Control by Law Enforcement (U.N.C.L.E.) The group includes District Attorney Joseph P. Torraca's investigator, Thomas F. Mutz and the five others were charged with criminally selling a dangerous drug, second degree; criminal possession and conspiracy in the second degree.

Others in the group are Frank Vega, 40 and Louis Rosado, 30, both of Maple Avenue, Ellenville; Victor Sanchez, 31; Harry Guzman, 23 and Benedetto Lopez, 23, all of Ellenville.

Authorities at the time revealed that all the defendants were narcotics users except Mutz. Authorities also reported that a quantity of heroin valued at $400 to $500 was confiscated.

NEW ADDITIONS — New additions to the interior of the Woodstock Dutch Reformed Church are shown in the photo depicting the new choir loft at the rear of the sanctuary and the reinstalled organ in the loft with a tone chamber built above the ceiling. A dedicatory recital and hymn sing will be conducted Sunday at 3:30 p. m. (Pete Powell Photo).

Dutch Reformed Church Sets Dedicatory Recital Sunday

A recital and hymn sing at the Woodstock Dutch Reformed Church Sunday will serve as a dedication of the new additions to the interior of the church.

In recently completed renovations the upper part of the sanctuary was opened to permit the installation of a completely resonant area for the choir and a rigid chamber was built above the church ceiling. In addition, a new six-speaker gyrophonic projector was added allowing for the separation of flute and diapason voices.

The organ recital will be given by the Rev. Steven Middernacht, pastor of Christ's Lutheran Church of Woodstock. The senior choir and the congregation will also sing hymns against scriptural backgrounds and prelude arrangements.

The Rev. Middernacht studied organ at Hope College, Holland, Mich., while he was studying for the ministry.

The church alterations were designed by architect Albert E. Milliken to conform to the traditional colonial lines of the structure. The work was done by Folmer Nissen and Son of Boiceville and Woodstock.

According to the pastor, the Rev. Donald Hicks, the original lines of the interior were restored by the alterations since the church had a similar balcony across the back when the sanctuary faced in the opposite direction prior to the alterations of 1868.

Innocent Plea For Man Charged With Piracy

CHAMPLAIN, N.Y. (AP) — An attorney has entered a mandatory plea of not guilty before a U.S. commissioner here in behalf of a man charged with air piracy and kidnaping after allegedly forcing a pilot to fly him to Cuba last July.

Commissioner Joseph Kelly of nearby Peru said Leonard S. Bendicks, 33, who was being held in Clinton County Jail in lieu of $100,000 bail, would be transferred to Albany and then to Miami, Fla.

It was not known when that action would be taken.

Bendicks, a 33 - year - old former school teacher in Williamsport, Pa., faces a maximum penalty of death if convicted on either charge.

Bendicks is the first person charged with air piracy who has safely reached Cuba, then returned to this country and been arrested.

He was apprehended Tuesday at this village on the Canadian-U.S. border after deportation by Canadian authorities.

How he got to Canada from Cuba was not disclosed.

Bendicks is charged in the incident July 12, when a pilot was forced at gunpoint to fly a single - engine charter plane from Key West, Fla., to Cuba.

Claims Waste From State Fair Emptied in Lake

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A Syracuse University professor says he has photographic proof that garbage and untreated human waste from last month's State Fair was pumped into a stream that empties into Onondaga Lake.

Daniel Jackson, a water expert and long-time proponent of efforts to clean up the lake, said his pictures supported charges made last month by Assemblyman Charles Stockmeister, D - Rochester.

Stockmeister, chairman of a joint legislative committee on natural resources and conservation, said the fair, which attracted about 600,000 persons in seven days, was polluting the lake with sewage and garbage.

Fair director Bernard W. Potter said the charges were "political". The garbage was not dumped into the stream but had been buried at a landfill site, he said.

He admitted, however, that sewage treatment at the fair grounds was inadequate.

Innocent Plea For Man Charged With Piracy

CHAMPLAIN, N.Y. (AP) — An attorney has entered a mandatory plea of not guilty before a U.S. commissioner here in behalf of a man charged with air piracy and kidnaping after allegedly forcing a pilot to fly him to Cuba last July.

Commissioner Joseph Kelly of nearby Peru said Leonard S. Bendicks, 33, who was being held in Clinton County Jail in lieu of $100,000 bail, would be transferred to Albany and then to Miami, Fla.

It was not known when that action would be taken.

Bendicks, a 33 - year - old former school teacher in Williamsport, Pa., faces a maximum penalty of death if convicted on either charge.

Bendicks is the first person charged with air piracy who has safely reached Cuba, then returned to this country and been arrested.

He was apprehended Tuesday at this village on the Canadian-U.S. border after deportation by Canadian authorities.

How he got to Canada from Cuba was not disclosed.

Bendicks is charged in the incident July 12, when a pilot was forced at gunpoint to fly a single - engine charter plane from Key West, Fla., to Cuba.

Claims Waste From State Fair Emptied in Lake

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A Syracuse University professor says he has photographic proof that garbage and untreated human waste from last month's State Fair was pumped into a stream that empties into Onondaga Lake.

Daniel Jackson, a water expert and long-time proponent of efforts to clean up the lake, said his pictures supported charges made last month by Assemblyman Charles Stockmeister, D - Rochester.

Stockmeister, chairman of a joint legislative committee on natural resources and conservation, said the fair, which attracted about 600,000 persons in seven days, was polluting the lake with sewage and garbage.

Fair director Bernard W. Potter said the charges were "political". The garbage was not dumped into the stream but had been buried at a landfill site, he said.

He admitted, however, that sewage treatment at the fair grounds was inadequate.

Black Market Sales in Vietnam Thriving on U.S. Goods From PX

SAIGON (AP) — The director of South Vietnamese customs said today about $120 million worth of goods from American military post exchanges wound up on the black market last year.

Drastic Measures

Gen. Duong Thieu Sinh told the official government news agency this was equivalent in value to all commercial goods imported into Vietnam in 1967. He said Vietnamese and American officials were taking drastic measures to cut such diversion of PX goods.

Sinh apparently was talking both about goods stolen from the PX system and goods resold on the black market by allied troops who have PX privileges.

PX officials recently disclosed that since 1966, when the present Vietnamese post exchange system was set up, goods valued at $38 million have been lost—about 60 per cent to thieves.

From February 1967 to January of this year, the loss totaled $19.1 million, the PX officials said. Thus the other $100 million in Sinh's estimate must come from the illegal resale of PX goods. Sinh's is the first official estimate of the extent of such illegal resales.

"We have no control over an individual after he walks out of the store," a PX official said recently. "If he sells it, there is nothing we can do."

Some American soldiers are known to sell goods to Vietnamese. But Thai, Filipino and South Korean troops in Vietnam—who all have full PX privileges—have gained the reputation of being PX profiteers because they often are seen buying large quantities of items very popular on the black market.

Stringent security since last October has cut theft of PX goods. PX sales records have been computerized and strict accounting is made of purchases of items such as tape recorders, radios and other consumer goods highly salable on the black market. The government also has kept the most notorious black market areas in Saigon closed.

But black marketeers simply switched to selling goods out of boxes with which they can flee at the approach of police.

Urge Regents Increase State Aid

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Educators have urged the State Board of Regents to increase state aid to schools, but simultanously have cautioned against undermining the authority now enjoyed by local school boards.

Other recommendations or complaints unfolded before the regents at a legislative conference Wednesday indicated a dissatisfaction with the state laws governing teacher - state labor relations and concern with what was termed "new attitudes permeating secondary schools and colleges" on the part of students.

And, although most educators agreed that school districts were struggling against rising expenses, many called for an increase in teacher salaries.

Kenneth E. Buhrmaster, chairman of the New York State Educational Conference, urged the enactment of a new state-aid formula "that can more accurately measure our educational needs and our local resources, and one which will adapt to changing socio - economic conditions."

Included in this, Buhrmaster said, would be an increase in the operating expense ceiling for the 1969-70 school year from $760 to $900 per pupil.

But, Buhrmaster cautioned, "the state government should exercise extreme care in issuing mandates to local government or in assuming authority for governmental duties that are rightly the function of local government."

The state's Taylor Law — which governs employe-state relations and bans strikes by public employes—was attacked by one labor leader because, he said, it "misleads" teachers into believing that have collective bargaining.

Thomas Mannix, president of the State Federation of Teachers, told the regents that having "no law" would be better than the Taylor Law.

In the same line, Mrs. Catharine O'D. Barrett, president of the State Teachers Association, said the Taylor Law should provide an additional step beyond fact - finding to solve teacher - school board disputes.

Show - cause hearings, she said, should be held after mediation and fact-finding have been completed and the "public employer fails or refuses to accept the fact - finder's recommendations."

Mrs. Barrett also said her group was calling for a minimum salary of $7,200 a year. The current state minimum is $6,400 for an inexperienced teacher with a bachelor's degree.

Dr. Elmer G. Bowes, president of the State Association of Secondary School Administrators, attacked what he called the new attitudes of students in colleges and high schools.

He said plans were in the making for a "high school student union" in New York City that would demand an end to censorship in student publications, dress code revisions and a student voice in policy and curriculum decisions.

"We can't adopt that attitude," he said. "We, in positions of authority, must take more effective action than we have in the past."

Another financial matter was raised by Dr. Frederick Shore, representing the State Association of School Business Officials, who asked for special state financial support for costly and specialized educational programs, such as those for the educationally disadvantaged and for vocational students.

He also urged the regents to request the legislature to relieve some of the fiscal burden placed on cities by constitutionally mandated tax limits.

Shore said the cities must have a greater taxing authority than now granted them by the state constitution.

The new KLH* Model Twenty-One.

The Model Twenty-One looks pretty much like a little FM radio. But looks can be deceiving. Turn it on and it will flood your room with music.

Turn it on and this incredible little radio produces an amount and quality of sound out of all proportion to its size and price.

The fact is, the Twenty-One is a complete FM receiving system. Besides its own self-contained speaker, it has outlets for external speakers (including a special KLH auxiliary speaker†), for making tape recordings or for use as a tuner in a separate sound system.

You can turn off the internal speaker when you want the tuning dial at hand and the sound from an external speaker across the room. Or you can play an extension speaker simultaneously in another room.

The Twenty-One isn't stereo. And it doesn't play records. It's just the best FM radio you ever heard.

House Settlement Worries Some

Early Indicators Give Nixo n a Comfortable Margin

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Early political indicator gives Richard M. Nixon a comfortable lead in his bid for the White House, but House Republican leaders still worry about the outcome of the presidential contest if it must be settled in the House.

Democrats who think about the same possibility can visualize another bloodletting that would sap the strength of their party and aggravate the damage it already has suffered this year.

The election would go to the House for the first time since 1824 if Nixon, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and George C. Wallace's American Independent Party divide the 538 electoral votes cast by the states so that no candidate polls a majority. In the House, each state casts one vote regardless of its size.

For 10 months, House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford has reminded Republicans that they now hold a majority of the House delegations from only 18 states. They could gain the 31 seats they need to win control of the House without winning a majority of the 26 state delegations they would need to elect a president by the House.

1964 Low

After hitting bottom in the 1964 election, the GOP gained 49 seats in 1966 to restore them to a more respectable status as the minority party. Gaining another 31 to win control of the House will be tougher unless there is a National Republican landslide. And it is even tougher to pinpoint eight more states in which the GOP can win a majority of the House delegations.

Knowledgeable Democrats who are gloomy about Humphrey's chances are not yet ready to concede a sizable Republican pickup of House seats in the Nov. 5 election.

But they do wonder how some of the Democrats in the House may vote if the presidential election must be settled in that chamber. Can they assume that all or nearly all would vote for Humphrey? or would a substantial number of them feel bound to vote for the candidates who carried their districts—for Nixon or Wallace?

Set Precedent

House Democrats set a new precedent after the 1964 election by stripping away the seniority from two of their members who had publicly supported Barry M. Goldwater, the Republican presidential nominee. The two were John Bell Williams, now governor of Mississippi and a Wallace backer, and Rep. Albert W. Watson of South Carolina, who resigned his seat and won reelection as a Republican.

It may have been easy to discipline two members for disloyalty to the national ticket. It would not be so easy if 15 or 20 or more defected from Humphrey in an election by the House and voted for Nixon or Wallace because those candidates had carried their districts.

Ford says that an election by the House would involve wheeling and dealing and he objects to the idea.

The 1968 election may prod Congress into action on a constitutional amendment to overhaul the electoral college method of electing presidents. Many of the members have complained for years about the system without ever agreeing on a substitute.

Machine Gets the Berries

By United Press International

Harvest blueberries and strawberries by machine? Anyone rash enough to suggest anything like that a few years ago would have been told it was impossible.

Today there are such machines. A self-propelled blueberry harvester, for example, has harvested as much as two tons of berries an hour. It replaces 150 hand pickers.

Our mechanized age has also produced mechanical harvesters for apples, cherries, oranges, tangerines, asparagus, cucumbers, tomatoes and potatoes. Some are efficient, others less efficient.

In addition to reducing the number of workers needed to harvest a crop, mechanical harvesting has a tendency to encourage expansion of operations to a sufficient size to fully utilize the harvesters.

More Plantings

In the case of orchards, mechanical harvesters could conceivably lead to more and more fruit trees being planted on level land since the machines are more difficult to use on steep hills and rough terrain.

There will be other changes. Workers will need training in the operation of mechnical harvesters and will probably need some mechanical aptitude too.

There are problems, such as uniformity of ripening, which will have to be solved before mechanical harvesting can be used on certain vegetables.

In areas where there is uncertain climate and uncertain moisture—such as the midwest—crops seldom ripen uniformly. Under these conditions, mechanical harvesting can be wasteful.

The answer to this problem is the development of varieties which will ripen uniformly.

Reluctant to Switch

Even though mechanical harvesters are currently available, some growers are accustomed to hand labor and are reluctant to make a change. Other growers do not use them because they have a sufficient hand labor force and because the prices being received for produce are sufficient to allow the continued use of hand labor.

There is a decided disadvantage to mechanical harvesting—it bruises fruit and vegetables.

To date, no one has been able to develop a mechanical harvester that harvests with the gentleness of the hand—with tender, loving care as the TV commercial says.

So it would seem that hand harvesting will never die out when the quality of a fruit or vegetable is of prime importance.

House Settlement Worries Some

Early Indicators Give Nixo n a Comfortable Margin

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Early political indicator gives Richard M. Nixon a comfortable lead in his bid for the White House, but House Republican leaders still worry about the outcome of the presidential contest if it must be settled in the House.

Democrats who think about the same possibility can visualize another bloodletting that would sap the strength of their party and aggravate the damage it already has suffered this year.

The election would go to the House for the first time since 1824 if Nixon, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and George C. No Change In Greek Politics

When the Greek military junta freed former Premier Panyotis Canellopoulos from five months of house arrest his first act was to leave home "to breath some fresh air."

The air he breathes may be fresh but he will find little change in the political climate despite a new constitution to which Greeks are expected to give overwhelming approval in next Sunday's (Sept. 29) referendum.

Keep Promise

The government freed Canellopoulos and another one-time premier, George Papandreou, in keeping with a promise to free all political prisoners not accused of crimes before the referendum.

Two thousand other prisoners regarded by the junta as Communists were not released.

Although the referendum may be regarded as a first step in the junta's promise of a year and a half ago to return the country to parliamentary rule on a "wholesome" basis as quickly as possible, it is being carried out under circumstances considerably less than democratic.

The country remains under a state of siege and the junta under Premier George Papadopoulos plainly intends to remain in power indefinitely.

Twelve of the new constitution's articles dealing with civil rights, press freedoms, court procedures and elections will not go into effect until the junta decides the country is ready for them.

Cannot Rule

As for that almost forgotten man, King Constantine, in exile in Italy, the new constitution strips him of most of his powers, leaving him the right to reign but not to rule.

Indians Corps Making Plans

Finishing their competition season with two first places, recently, the Kingston Indians Drum and Bugle Corps is now planning for a bigger and better season next year.

The Indians are starting a drive to double the present membership. They invite all young men (14 to 21) with a strong competitive spirit to join and help bring the national title to Kingston. Auditions are scheduled for Sunday, 1:30 p.m., at Dietz Stadium for the color guard; drum and bugle auditions will be held at 6 p.m., Sunday, in the Municipal Auditorium.

Younger boys (eight to 14) may join the Troop 12 Indians by attending the next rehearsal, Monday, at 6:30 p.m. in the scout room of the Old Dutch Church.

Isolated Incidents Break Syracuse Calm

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A virtual calm, broken only twice by rock - throwing incidents which injured two women, marked this central New York hub of industry and higher education Wednesday night.

A predominately Negro section on the south side had been the scene of sporadic vandalism for the three previous nights and for two nights the week before.

The two rock - throwing incidents that resulted in head injuries for the two women were the only ones confirmed by police.

Hit in Head

A rock hurled by a youth struck Mrs. Ethel Gorton, of suburban Mattydale, on the head as she was driving along Castle Street, one of the earlier trouble spots. She was treated at Community General Hospital and discharged.

In the second incident, Mrs. Anna Ball, 54, of Syracuse suffered lacerations of the head when a group of Negro youths stoned her car at an Interstate Route 81 interchange near Adams Street, on the fringes of the troubled area. She was treated at Crouse-Irving Hospital and discharged.

For the most part, streets throughout the south side, including those bordering on a sprawling low - income housing project, were virtually deserted.

No sidewalk gatherings of youths were reported throughout the evening, unlike previous nights. Observers said the area was "quieter than on any normal evening."

Some rock - throwing was reported several blocks from the area, on the southwest side, but this was brief and no damage was reported.

Police said there was no evidence linking that incident with the disturbances that began Sunday night when police attempted to arrest two teenagers on South State Street.

Earlier in the day, Police Chief John F. O'Connor was both criticized and praised for his actions during the disturbances.

Patrolman Robert Smith, president of the Syracuse Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, said his organization felt that O'Connor had not been tough enough with the youths.

He issued a statement calling for a curfew and a "get tough" policy, and said:

"We feel he has bent over backward and cooperated to the upmost with these people and apparently they are taking advantage of him."

Two weeks ago, O'Connor authorized the use of firearms, if necessary, to halt arsonists.

Smith, whose group claims 402 of the city's 405 policemen, said a curfew for persons under 21 would allow police to make arrests and to disperse gatherings when individuals could not show cause for being on the streets.

A civil rights leader, however, said he though O'Connor was doing "a beautiful job."

Frank Render, 32-year-old director of the local Human Rights Commission, also said he thought the trouble "had run its course."

Render said he had talked to many youths but could not pinpoint any cause for the incidents.

"This rock-throwing business seems to be a symbol more than anything else," Render said.

He said the incidents — "involving fewer than 30 youngsters," real young kids, 12 and 13"—could not be described as racial, although there might be racial overtones.

Also, he said, the majority of residents in the troubled areas were "shocked and sick and tired" by the actions of the vandals, some of whom "definitely were emotionally disturbed."

"I think we're going to be able to get older youths, young adults whom these kids can identify with, to help out on the streets and prevent this type of thing," Render said.

The current rash of disturbances began Sunday night when youths hurled rocks and bottles and two policemen were injured.

Monday night, tear gas was used to break up a gang preparing to loot a drug store.

Tuesday, a white policeman and television cameraman were assaulted and three motorists were injured in separate incidents.

The current rash of disturbances began Sunday night when youths hurled rocks and bottles and two policemen were injured.

Monday night, tear gas was used to break up a gang preparing to loot a drug store.

Tuesday, a white policeman and television cameraman were assaulted and three motorists were injured in separate incidents.

UP FROM THE DEEP — Two mid-18th Century brass cannons and an anchor, believed to be from a British war ship, were found in the waters of Lake Champlain near Plattsburgh by three 14-year-old boys who were skin diving. The cannons, one shown here through the anchor, weigh 2,500 pounds each. State historians expressed hope the remains of the vessel that the cannons came from might not have disintegrated. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Upstate Boys Find Artifacts— Reminders of French-Indian War

PLATTSBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — The French and Indian War was nearing an end in 1759 when the French ship "Muskellunge" and two smaller French vessels slipped into Lake Champlain to spy upon the British.

British forces controlled much of the lake after recapturing forts lost earlier. About 200 miles to the north, other British troops were laying seige to Quebec, whose fall paved the way for a British victory in the war.

Historians disagree on whether the Muskellunge fought a skirmish with the British ships, but the three French vessels were scuttled by their crews.

Reminders of the incident appeared over the weekend when two bronze cannons were found by three 14-year-old boys who were diving off Crab Island, east of Plattsburgh.

State archaeologists said the cannon presumably came from the "Muskellunge" and expressed hope that the ship would be found in the next few days.

The cannons, manufactured in 1748 in England, weigh about 900 pounds each and are six feet long. They carried the markings of a crown and cross, the insignia of King George II, and the letters "G R" with the number"2."

The breaches of the cannons bore the inscription "A. S. Chalch" and below it "Fecit (made) 1748." The Department of Naval History at the Smithsonian Institute in Washington said Chalch was a noted gunmaker employed by the Willage Arsenal in England in the 18th centure. The cannon fired 24-pound cannonballs, the department said.

The Muskellunge, which presumably captured and mounted the weapons, was the only vessel sunk in the lake that was known to be equipped with such large cannons.

James Miller of Plattsburgh, a member of the State Committee on Underwater Archeology, said the discovery of the cannons should soon lead to the recovery of the ship.

Peter Vernooy and Mike Davidson, both of Plattsburgh, and Patrick Munn of Cliff Haven enlisted the aid of other divers to lift the cannons from the water after they spotted them.

The cannons were placed outside of the home of two of the boys, but there was a legal question whether they would be able to keep them.

A lawyer for the Bureau of Surplus Real Property of the State Office of General Services, said that artifacts found on the bottom of lakes in New York belong to the state. The state has discussed the question of ownership with the families of Davidson and Vernooy, he said.

The discovery has prompted other divers to go into the lake, leading to the finding of muskets, anchors, and parts of a ship.

1.6 Per Cent Increase Announced by Ford

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. announced Wednesday a 1.6 per cent increase in prices for its new models, which was in line with the General Motors increase and much less than the Chrysler Corp. boost.

Officials of Chrysler, third largest of the automakers but first to announce its increase in prices for 1969 models, were reported studying Ford and GM pricing lists to determine whether to cut back on their boosts.

Ford said its list price increases would average $47.

Earlier this week, GM announced an increase of 1.6 per cent or $49 per car average, which was approved by President Johnson. The Chrysler increase—2.9 per cent or an average of $84 per car—was announced last week and drew criticism from White House advisers.

Earlier Wednesday Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said he had information compiled by auto critic Ralph Nader which indicated "enormous profit margins" are enjoyed by the auto firms.

In anouncing higher prices for 1969 models, Ford said that "labor rates will be up more than five per cent in the coming model year," and that "prices of key materials such as steel, aluminum, and copper have risen significantly."

Commenting on Nelson's report before Ford announced its prices, Emil Mazey, secretary-treasurer of the United Auto Workers, put labor costs in auto production at 29 per cent.

"If you have a $3,000 car the labor cost would be roughly $870,' said Mazey.

Pointing to what he termed the "tremendous profit" made by the auto companies, Mazey said, "they could reduce the price of a car by $100 and still make more profit than the average manufacturing concern in the U.S.A."

Ford's new list prices do not include the seven per cent federal excise tax or dealers' handling and preparation charges. The company said these would make the increase listed in showrooms $50.

Chrysler officials said they would study Ford prices before making a final decision on the cost of their new cars. For the last two years Chrysler has announced higher new model prices then reduced those prices following smaller increases by GM.

The smallest of the four U. S. automakers, American Motors, has not announced its prices for 1969 models but is expected to do so later this week or early next week.

All new prices announced by the Big Three did not reflect cost of front seat head restraints which federal regulations will require on all cars built after Jan. 1, 1969. Ford and GM both suggested retail list prices for the head restraints of $16, while Chrysler suggested $26.

More Than Just Some Talking By These Washington Lunchers

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 40 casual but professional-looking people, most of them young, crowded into the windowless basement room, eating their lunches out of brown bags and listening to a speaker.

After only a few minutes, the lunchers interrupted the speaker and started asking questions and expressing their own views.

The Thursday Group, as it is called, is like that.

Its 40 to 60 participants eat their lunches during the weekly sessions because they are federal employes on their lunch hours. They meet in the headquarters building of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, where most of them work.

Speakers are limited to 10 minutes of introductory remarks because the members want to develop and express their own ideas rather than to listen to another lecture. Details of the discussions are off the record, but it can be reported that the talk runs heavily to the issues of civil rights and poverty.

The Thursday Group is part of an expanding new movement of young people who are trying to shake up the federal bureaucracy from within.

And they do more than just talk.

Since its beginnings just over a year ago. The movement has caused considerable interest and some concern—at top levels in the administration.

Several of the Thursday Group were leaders in launching a government-wide organization last spring called Federal Employees Against the War in Vietnam. The effort produced about 2,000 signatures to a petition calling on President Johnson to end the war and get on with meeting "critical domestic needs."

Out of that effort grew a permanent organization called Federal Employees for a Democratic Society—nicknamed FEDS.

Madeleine Golde, vice chairman of FEDS, says the group has no ties with Students for a Democratic Society, a leading element in last spring's student revolt at Columbia University.

But she and other leaders of the FEDS movement agreed in a series of interviews that their ideas and goals closely parallel those of SDS and the New Left.

Miss Golde, 26, a researcher in the welfare department and an active Thursday Group Member, says the movement isn't designed as internal subversion of the system, explaining "We wouldn't be in government if we were against it." But she adds: "We think there are some basic changes needed in the system."

Miss Golde, a native of Great Neck, N.Y., and holder of a master's degree in social work from Columbia, sums up the thrust of the movement his way:

"We're impatient—we don't want to wait any longer. We think there are changes that are needed if we're going to save the cities . . . if we're going to save the country."

Among the other main views expressed by the young bureaucrats are that the government:

Does too little consulting with the poor people and Negroes it is trying to help.

—Discourages many of the most promising applicants for federal work.

—Avoids a lot of creativity and new thinking by not allowing younger, lower-ranking employes to make their voices heard on policy issues.

The Thursday Group, formed in the summer of 1967, remains the active center of the movement.

Through its luncheon meetings, the Thursday Group has managed to bypass the normal channels and exchange views with high-ranking department officials, including HEW Secretary Wilbur J. Cohen.

Rotarians Hear About 3-Dollar Bill

The Rotary Club of Kingston, at its weekly luncheon meeting Wednesday at the Gov. Clinton Hotel, heard a local Kiwanian tell all about the Kiwanis three dollar bill.

At the outset of the program, Thomas A. Salsbury, program chairman for the day, introduced the speaker, Michael C. Starkman — a member of the local Kiwanis Club which is sponsoring the project to aid in its own scholarship fund.

The program, previously scheduled and postponed, was a presentation of the new Three Dollar Bill, its make-up and functioning as a collateral element to a retail poster with a changing screen.

Starkman traced the Chollar-Dollar, as it is also called, from the moment it is purchased for a dollar and fifty cents at a financial institution, to its end usage in various types of retail stores.

Describing the three dollar bill as a check for a dollar with a stub kept intact by the consumer, he told why different retailers would honor the document intact for three dollars, how the retailer benefits and earns a redemption, and how the financial institution, Kiwanis and the general public benefit.

The slogan "it gives to all — and costs nothing" in the final analysis was developed as a concept that benefits were there for all — and that the project was not one of just donation to a worthwhile cause.

Questions from the floor from attending retailers and bankers were answered with the comment, at conclusion, from one Rotarian that apparently every angle had been well developed via forms and reports, endorsements and documentation which Starkman said he has received.

Starkman reported that in a matter of 10 days or 2 weeks the retail poster would be distributed and Three Dollar Bills would be available at most financial institutions in the area.

Judge Committee Announced For Third American Awards

The committee of judges for the Third Annual American Award Program has just been announced by Richard L. Treat, vice president and general manager of The Kingston Daily Freeman.

Treat is serving his second year as chairman of this group, which was started by Montgomery Ward to give recognition to outstanding high school students.

The prominent Kingstonians who will serve for 1968-69 are Howard R. St. John, local attorney and president of the Ulster County Savings Bank; Dr. George B. Erbstein, president of the Ulster County Community College; the Most Rev. James McManus, CSsR, DD, bishop of the Archdiocese of New York; the Rev. William A. Studwell, pastor of Clinton Avenue Methodist Church; and Harry M. Thayer, president of Radio Station WGHQ.

Fortunate Support

In making the announcement of their appointment Treat said, "we are extremely fortunate in being able to obtain the support of such an outstanding group of dedicated, public-minded citizens, who are willing to take time out from their busy schedules to participate in this program to recognize and honor the youth of our area."

The Young American Award Program was originally pioneered by Montgomery Wards Kenosha, Wisc., retail store, and rapidly spread throughout the United States. In his original letter to David W. Mountford, local Wards store manager, Robert E. Brooker, chairman of that company's Board of Directors said, "Our most precious possession is our youth for they will decide the future of America and possibly the future of the world. There is a tendancy to over-publicize the behavior of a small portion of our young population that is reluctant to adjust to society. It is that small group of 'unadjustables' that creates the distored picture of young America today."

Brooker continued, "Montgomery Ward believes that there are more well-behaved, promising young Americans now than at any other time in the history of our nation. More parents are rearing better children into more productive citizens than is recognized or publicized."

The members of this committee, Treat said, will act as administrators of the program which has received such an outstanding reception from high-school principals as far away as Poughkeepsie and Ellenville.

"We have contacted each high school principal in our area and asked him to submit candidates from his student body. Each month the judges will meet and select that boy or girl whom they feel is most worthy of receiving recognition based on their overall high school achievements. This is not just a program to recognize outstanding honor students, winners are selected by taking into consideration all of their high school and extra-curricular activities," Treat explained.

The monthly recipient of this award will be honored at a dinner at which time they will be presented with a certificate of achievement. Their portrait will be drawn and placed in Wards Gallery of Honor. In June, the committee of judges will select the outstanding student from the monthly winners, and that boy or girl will be acclaimed the Young American Award Winner for the Mid-Hudson Valley in 1968-69. In June an Awards Banquet will be held at which time a suitable trophy will be presented to the honored student.

The first year's winner, John Glowienka of Red Hook High School, is now furthering his education at Dartmouth College. Last year's winner, David Roberts of Kingston High School, is studying at Princeton University.

Mountford, Wards local store manager has also expressed his pleasure at having such an outstanding panel of judges to coordinate the activities of the Young American Awards Program for 1968-69.

Hippie-Like Chimpanzee Hit With Chicago Residents

CHICAGO (AP) — Residents of a North Side neighborhood have been seeing a lot of monkeyshines lately.

Traffic comes to a standstill along busy Clark Street many afternoons as Mr. Jiggs—a 4-foot-tall, 90-pound chimpanzee

"I thought it was a hippie," a startled woman pedestrian exclaimed Wednesday as Mr. Jiggs sailed past her in his red jacket and black trousers, carrying a bag of groceries.

Mr. Jiggs just smiled and waved.

Grocery shopping is one of his favorite errands. He likes to test the freshness of the fruit with a quick bite.

The chimp, whose home is in New York, has been living in a North Side apartment with his owner, Ron Winters, while he performs in a downtown hotel.

There he rides a motorcycle, plays a violin, does acrobatic tricks and takes pictures of patrons with his camera.

Woolley Asks Rolison to Tell What He's Done

"We have a Republican incumbent who is asking that he be reelected on the basis of his experience. Yet what has he (Sen. Jay Rolison) offered in his two years that is identified with him and the district?" questioned A. E. Woolley before a bipartisan group at Ireland Corners, Gardiner, this week. Woolley is the Democratic candidate for New York State Senate for Ulster and Dutchess Counties.

"May I point out some of the legislation instituted by Mr. Rolison," Woolley continued. "He instituted bills: to extend bingo from 8 to 12 consecutive days; to allow summer beer license holders to sell beer in the winter; and to regulate or prohibit the keeping of chickens or other fowls. He also introduced such measures as limiting the water skier to 100 feet from shore."

"I challenge my opponent to point out one piece of legislation that will indicate his concern for the people he represents."

Smiling, Al Woolley continued, "I will probably refer to Rolison from now on as the "BBC Senator" (bingo, beer and chickens).

Judge Committee Announced For Third American Awards

The committee of judges for the Third Annual American Award Program has just been announced by Richard L. Treat, vice president and general manager of The Kingston Daily Freeman.

Treat is serving his second year as chairman of this group, which was started by Montgomery Ward to give recognition to outstanding high school students.

The prominent Kingstonians who will serve for 1968-69 are Howard R. St. John, local attorney and president of the Ulster County Savings Bank; Dr. George B. Erbstein, president of the Ulster County Community College; the Most Rev. James McManus, CSsR, DD, bishop of the Archdiocese of New York; the Rev. William A. Studwell, pastor of Clinton Avenue Methodist Church; and Harry M. Thayer, president of Radio Station WGHQ.

Fortunate Support

In making the announcement of their appointment Treat said, "we are extremely fortunate in being able to obtain the support of such an outstanding group of dedicated, public-minded citizens, who are willing to take time out from their busy schedules to participate in this program to recognize and honor the youth of our area."

The Young American Award Program was originally pioneered by Montgomery Wards Kenosha, Wisc., retail store, and rapidly spread throughout the United States. In his original letter to David W. Mountford, local Wards store manager, Robert E. Brooker, chairman of that company's Board of Directors said, "Our most precious possession is our youth for they will decide the future of America and possibly the future of the world. There is a tendancy to over-publicize the behavior of a small portion of our young population that is reluctant to adjust to society. It is that small group of 'unadjustables' that creates the distored picture of young America today."

Brooker continued, "Montgomery Ward believes that there are more well-behaved, promising young Americans now than at any other time in the history of our nation. More parents are rearing better children into more productive citizens than is recognized or publicized."

The members of this committee, Treat said, will act as administrators of the program which has received such an outstanding reception from high-school principals as far away as Poughkeepsie and Ellenville.

"We have contacted each high school principal in our area and asked him to submit candidates from his student body. Each month the judges will meet and select that boy or girl whom they feel is most worthy of receiving recognition based on their overall high school achievements. This is not just a program to recognize outstanding honor students, winners are selected by taking into consideration all of their high school and extra-curricular activities," Treat explained.

The monthly recipient of this award will be honored at a dinner at which time they will be presented with a certificate of achievement. Their portrait will be drawn and placed in Wards Gallery of Honor. In June, the committee of judges will select the outstanding student from the monthly winners, and that boy or girl will be acclaimed the Young American Award Winner for the Mid-Hudson Valley in 1968-69. German Native: Nothing Like U.S.

By WALTER S. CLARK

"Look at the doggies, Mommy."

Jodi, 2-year-old daughter of Joseph and Gertrude Cashara of 102 Hillside Terrace, was thousands of feet in the air aboard a German Boeing 707 Lufthannsa jet, en route to visit relatives she had never seen in Germany.

Jodi's mother and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dirks of 17 Greenkill Avenue, made the trip covering more than 6,000 air miles.

Mrs. Cashara hadn't seen her sister, Mrs. Martha Munch of Rehborn, Germany, for 11 years. Her parents had visited Germany three years ago.

While in Germany, Mrs. Cashara and her parents also visited her mother's brother, Victor Knittel in Wollstien.

The Kingston residents took off from New York City on Aug. 18 and landed at the airport in Frankfort the following day for a month's stay with relatives.

Jodi showed no sign of fright as the plane traveled at high altitudes. Her mother said, "she really loved it, she ran back and forth in the plane and made friends with the passengers." At times she stared downward fro ma window and her eyes brightened as she watched movements on the ground.

Mrs. Munch had expected her parents, but she had no idea her sister had made the trip until they arrived at the Munch home. "My sister screamed when she realized who I was," Mrs. Cashara said.

During the visit Mrs. Cashara and her parents with relatives took a trip on a Ginfhiem ship which docked at various cities while the tourists went ashore.

Jodi, who learned to speak a few words of German, saw a train and street cars for the first time. She also had her first ride on a bicycle. "She even played a slot machine, which are legal in Germany and once she won 40 pennies," the child's mother said.

Mrs. Cashara, a native of Rehborn, described Germany as "beautiful," and quickly added, "but there is nothing more beautiful than our United States, there is nothing anywhere that compares with our country here." She said she was not over-anxious to make another trip as she is very happy here.

Jodi's mother told of difficult times experienced by residents of Germany. She said her brother-in-law, the father of eight children, finds it hard to get along with the pay he earns — about $37.50 in American money a week. In Germany people are taxed 11 per cent on clothes and food and other necessities of life.

"Considering the tax they pay over there, I certainly have no complaint about the 4 per cent tax we pay over here," Mrs. Cashara said.

In Germany, the government pays for all medicines, doctors bills and all medical care, according to Mrs. Cashara. She recalled that all residents of Germany, including young children can purchase beer and other drinks. It is legal over there, she noted.

"It was a beautiful trip, but United States is more beautiful," Jodi's mother said. Her sister, Mrs. Munch plans to come to America in a couple of years, to see how people over here live. It will be her first visit to the States.

A Typical Cuban Court Day

By FENTON WHEELER
Associated Press Writer

HAVANA (AP) — In a hot, almost airless room, a militiaman turns toward the people and announces the Spanish equivalent of "all rise."

Two ordinarily dressed men and a woman, looking for all the world like fans headed for a night baseball game, enter the room. Taking their seats beneath a big color portrait Ernesto Che Guevara, they announce that Popular Court No. 6 of Vedado is in session.

One of nearly 400 People's Courts is ready to begin its weekly task. Before its session is over, a typical court may settle a neighborhood squabble, judge a worker who has a record of absenteeism, censure parents for not properly rearing their children, and penalize someone for spreading antigovernment rumors.

Court No. 6, which has more than one team of judges, has averaged eight cases a session for the past three months.

These three-judge courts—known before the Castro revolution as Correctional Courts—are restricted to hearing misdemeanors. Judges have the power to sentence the guilty as much as 18 months in jail, house arrest or labor on a state farm.

The main difference between the People's Courts and their predecessors is that judges now are ordinary citizens with no formal legal training. Exemplary workers and militant Castroites, they are chosen at mass assemblies by their colleagues to judge "antisocial conduct cases." They receive guidance and a cram course from the Justice Ministry, which operates the court system. Judges' terms usually run three to six months.

A typical court may be composed of a factory worker, a technician and a store employe.

The courts normally meet at night. Procedure is streamlined and the verdict swift, usually within 15 minutes after the trial is over.

Anybody living in the court's jurisdiction can step forward as either prosecutor or defender. Or the parties involved may prefer to go it alone. Anyone appearing before the court has the right to request replacement of a judge he thinks might be prejudiced against him. No written record of testimony is kept and the judges' deliberations sometimes consist of stepping outside to discuss the case over a smoke.

Trials normally are open to the public.

Form New Firm At Poughkeepsie

Richard A. Dwelley and Lewis T. Bolger Jr., former executives of Poughkeepsie radio station WKIP, announce the formation of Dwelley and Bolger, Inc., an agency to create and produce advertising marketing plans and community relations concepts for industrial, institutional and regional consumer clients.

Dwelley, the firm's president, said "The tremendous growth of the Mid Hudson Valley Region indicates a healthy and active business climate which we feel portends well for the future of a complete Advertising and Public Relations Agency." For 15 years he was an owner and manager of WKIP. The station was sold in December 1967.

Bolger, vice president of the new agency, has been the director of public relations at Saint Francis Hospital since April of this year. Prior to that he was vice president in charge of sales at WKIP. From 1956 to 1962, Bolger was a partner in Industrial Marketing Services, Inc., a New Jersey Advertising Agency.

Associated with the Dwelley and Bolger firm is William M. Ziegler Jr., a market development counsellor, formerly an account supervisor with J. Walter Thompson Agency, Compton Advertising and Young and Rubicam, Inc. Ziegler is president of Ziegler Associates, Inc., a New York City based marketing, advertising and community relations consulting firm. He resides in Stamford, Conn.

Richard Hogle, until recently associated with Markttting III of Hopewell Junction, will be the Art Director for the new agency. Hogle, who received his B.S. degree in Art Education from the State University College at New Paltz was Administrative Staff Artist with the U. S. Navy at Newport, R. I. His Kinetic light works have been shown at the Howard Wise Gallery in New York City, and at other galleries in this country and Europe. He is a resident of New Paltz.

Hercules Names Lamb to Jersey Executive Post

Ronald B. Lamb, formerly of Port Ewen Hercules, has been named manager of the Mountainside, N. J. plant of Haskon, Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Hercules Inc., Wilmington, Del.

A native of Preston, Idaho, Lamb joined Hercules in late 1960 as a shift foreman at the company's Bacchus, Utah, works near Salt Lake City. He then served as a shift supervisor there before moving to the Port Ewen plant in August, 1962, as a production supervisor, becoming department supervisor there three months later.

OLD FASHIONED SALE — The Gilberts merrily wheel a 1901 automobile, — which dates back to the year Walgreens was founded — to Walgreens' cent-sational 10-day Penny Sale which starts today. A penny extra entitles shoppers to two of the same item at a price so low it's almost like getting one free, a store spokesman noted. More than 120 Penny Sale specials in family health, beauty and home needs will be featured by Walgreen Drug Stores through Oct. 5.

ASQC Sponsors Course at UCCC

The Mid-Hudson Section of the American Society of Quality Control (ASQC) will sponsor a course in basic statistical quality control at Ulster County Community College starting Oct. 7, C. T. Tarr, education chairman of the section, annouced recently.

Area industrial firms are expected to provide most of the students, but registration is open to all. Prospective students should report to room 303 of the library building at the Stone Ridge campus on Oct. 7 between seven and 7:30 p. m.

Robert W. Reip of Port Ewen will be the instructor. Reip, supervisor of industrial engineering at Hercules, Inc., has taught similar courses to Hercules employes for seven years. He is a graduate of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, and has both a New York professional engineer's license and a quality engineer's certificate from ASQC.

ASQC is a national professional society of 22,000 members, embracing quality practitioners in industry, education and government. The Mid-Hudson section, 120 members strong, has sponsored educational programs for a number of years at Arlington and Kingston High Schools and at Vassar College.

MRS. DAVID A. SHEELEY
(Studio 54)

Petersen-Sheeley Nuptials Told

Miss Karen Kristense Peterson, daughter of Mrs. Gunner V. Petersen, Box 72, Bearsville, became the bride of David Arthur Sheeley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Croswell Sheeley, Box 74, Cottekill, on Saturday, Sept. 14, at the Overlook Methodist Church.

The Rev. James Cook officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Richard Jeffrey provided traditional wedding selections. White chrysanthemums and white gladioli decorated the church.

Given in marriage by Eugene H. Brandenberg, grandfather of the bride, the bride selected a gown of white silk faced peau de soie in empire fashion. The gown was styled with a sabrina neckline, long fitted sleeves and a detachable chapel length train. A coronet of seed pearls and crystals held her wide imported illusion veil and she carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums and gardenias.

Miss Kristine Helen Petersen, Bearsville, served as maid of honor for her sister. She wore a willow cage gown fashioned with a mandarin neckline and short sleeves, accented with lace. She wore a matching velvet leafed headpiece with chapel veiling and carried gold chrysanthemums.

Attendants were Miss Kathleen Kim Petersen, sister of the bride, Bearsville; and Mrs. Paul Morey, Woodstock. Their gold gowns were styled identically to that of the honor attendant and they carried rust chrysanthemums wtih green ribbons.

Miss Karen Suzann Ireton, cousin of the bride, Cary, N.C., served as flower girl. She wore a floor-length A-line gold dress accented with white lace around the arms and neck. She carried rust chrysanthemums with green ribbons and a gold bow in her hair.

Garin Sheeley, High Falls, was best man for his brother. Ushers were Richard Scism, Glenerie Park, Kingston; and Robert Lane, Hillcrest Gardens, Kingston.

After the wedding a reception for 75 guests was held at Deanie's Restaurant, Woodstock.

For her wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Ontario, Canada, the bride chose a gray dress with yellow trim and yellow accessories.

The bride is a 1967 graduate of Onteora Central School and attended Ulster County Community College.

Her husband is a graduate of Rondout Central School and Oswego State Teachers College and Delhi. He is employed by Brinnier and Larios as a construction engineer.

Music Appreciation

A meeting of the Music Appreciation Group was held at the home of Mrs. Conrad Heiselman on Friday, Sept. 20. The program was in charge of Mrs. Arthur Pedersen and related to the change in musical trends. She quoted several news items written by music critics commenting on music being performed by such masters as Craft, Cliburn and Casals. Other items noted the work of Bernstein and Copland as evidence of the direction in which the modern performer is moving. Recordings by Richard Strauss and Schostakovitch concluded the program.

Mrs. Richard Morse assisted the hostess in serving refreshments and Mrs. Ray Craft presided at the tea table.

Hostesses for the next meeting will be Mrs. Jane Pedersen and Mrs. Hans Decker.

Hints from Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Mommies:

Know those darling little kiddie pools that are so inexpensive?

When they spring a leak—or the hard plastic cracks—DON'T discard them. They make the most wonderful sandboxes imaginable!

They are easy to move around because they're small.

Another good thing about them is, when it gets too bad to play outside, that sandbox can be moved into the garage or put on the porch. And in winter, it can be brought down into the basement so they can play the year round.

Whoever said a sandbox was just for summer fun?

And what little kiddo doesn't love his sandbox?

Even if you don't want a wading pool, keep in mind they make great sand containers.

Heloise

P.S. Sacks of sand can be bought at lumber yards and garden shops.

Dear Heloise:

When typing letters that require blind carbon copies to be sent, don't remove the original letter and then type the names of those who are to receive the blind carbons. Just leave all copies in your typewriter.

Put a small slip of paper in front of the original and then type away. The names will show up on all the carbons, but there will be NO imprint on the original—just on the little slip of paper you have inserted.

This little trick has saved me many valuable minutes.

Yes, doll, think I can.

It's tiring to continually be pushing and pulling that mattress so it is in line with the box springs.

I suggest you buy a thin sheet of foam rubber and put it between your mattress and box spring.

It's not absolutely necessary for the foam rubber to be as big as the entire bed, but it should cover at least half of the box spring.

The sheets of foam rubber can be found in most large department stores or can be ordered from mail order stores.

Letter of Laughter

Dear Heloise:

Regarding that "Letter of Laughter" from the housewife who found other women's untidiness to be an inspiration for her to go home and clean up her own . . .

I've suspected for years that I am one of those women!

But now I have the perfect alibi for which I have been searching so long.

Gee, it sure feels good to be the source of somebody's inspiration!

Mid-Hudson Group For Education Of Youth to Meet

The general meeting of the Mid-Hudson Association for the Education of Young Children will be held on Monday, Sept. 30 at 5:30 p.m. in Dutchess County Community College, Poughkeepsie.

Children need everybody working for them in these days of stress. With the theme for the year in mind, Partners Working Together for Today's Children, the first general meeting of the year should give techniques, methods and suggestions for involving school professional help, parents, aides and volunteers in working with children.

The presentation and overview will be presented by Mrs. Hilde Rohmer, a consultant for OEO, for Head Start and Day Care. Mrs. Bohmer's diversified background in education and social work make her eminently qualified to lead this discussion.

At the conclusion of her talk, there will be a break for supper which has been arranged for from a mobile catering service; a short business meeting after which smaller discussion groups will be in charge of a leader and a consultant who are well grounded in their fields.

The list of consultants for the various groups are Mrs. Barbara Close, Miss Myra Woodruff, Miss Zaida Swan, Mrs. June Roush, Mrs. Evelyn Dvorkin and Mrs. Bertha Campbell. Tiny Tips

KNITTING HINT

If you want to keep colors when you are knitting, run the yarn ends through drinking straws.

USE VINEGAR

When you have ripped a hem or a seam from a garment and holes from the thread are left showing, dampen a cloth with vinegar, put under the garment and press. The holes should disappear.

USE BOBBY PINS

Clip bobby pins to the side of the garment you are knitting and use them as gauges to measure your work. You also can use a bobby pin to anchor the end of your ball of yarn—it avoids tangles and snarls.

ANOTHER POTATO USE

When making cuttings of some of your favorite plants, try using potatoes as the rooting medium. Cut the eyes from the potatoes so that they will not grow; then insert stem of cutting into potato and plant. The sugar and starches in the potato hasten the rooting. This will not work on soft stemmed plants.

Rummage Sales

MOTHERS' SOCIETY

The Mothers' Society of Highland will have a rummage sale on Oct. 23. Public is invited.

Music Appreciation

A meeting of the Music Appreciation Group was held at the home of Mrs. Conrad Heiselman on Friday, Sept. 20. The program was in charge of Mrs. Arthur Pedersen and related to the change in musical trends. She quoted several news items written by music critics commenting on music being performed by such masters as Craft, Cliburn and Casals. Other items noted the work of Bernstein and Copland as evidence of the direction in which the modern performer is moving. Recordings by Richard Strauss and Schostakovitch concluded the program.

Mrs. Richard Morse assisted the hostess in serving refreshments and Mrs. Ray Craft presided at the tea table.

Hostesses for the next meeting will be Mrs. Jane Pedersen and Mrs. Hans Decker.

Army of Pretty Guides Set for New Olympics

A talented group of young women are being prepared by the Mexican Organizing Committee for a special role in Mexico's XIX Olympics—that of guide/interpreter for distinguished foreign visitors to the Games.

Over a thousand people from 20 to 35 years old have joined the Olympic guide corps to become "edecans." That is the word in Spanish but it comes from a phonetic rendering of the French aide-de-camp. Like those versatile military assistants, the chic, uniformed edecan of the Mexican Olympics will be a combination of guide, companion, and advisor.

Edecans are assigned to three V.I.P. types: International Olympic Committee and sports federation members; the foreign press; and a third group composed of athletes, participants in the cultural program and specially invited guests.

The edecan takes over as soon as the arrival of an Olympic visitor if official. She makes or confirms hotel reservations, greets her charge at the airport, whisks him through immigration and customs, and escorts him to his lodgings. The edecan then makes out a complete itinerary for the visitor, scheduling visits to sports installations, museums and tourist spots.

She arranges theater and concert tickets and sets up interviews with Olympic, government, and sports officials.

These guide/interpreters were first carefully screened and then given intensive training. In addition to Spanish, edecans are fluent in at least two other languages, most of which are represented in the guide corps (Swedish, Swohili, Hindu etc.).

In order to ground the girls in the archeology, art, and symbology imparted by the Mexicans on the Olympics this year, a special seven-week training course in Mexico's National School of Anthropology and History has been given to each guidette in subjects ranging from archeology to contemporary art. A series of lectures by outstanding Mexican experts in artistic, political and economic life round off the course.

The training program prepares the edecans to inform their guests on the history, geography, economy, art, culture and political background of Mexico, as well as on Olympic history and the sports to be presented in Mexico's Olympics.

Babies Are Bundles of Joy?

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI)—Whoever named newborn babies bundles of joy never changed a dirty diaper at 2 a.m. or tried to coax an affectionate response from a cross-eyed, bald-headed infant.

As a guess, it seems likely the term came from a doting-at-a distance grandparent. Even adoring fathers know better.

What every woman should know about babies, particularly the expectant mother walking around in a glow of anticipatory love, is that infants are more like lumps than bundles, and the joy involved rests more in what the little lump will become than what he is.

By the time the baby is a few months old, of course, it all changes and infant enters a delightful stage of coos and smiles.

Speaking from experince, when I first brought my tiny daughter home from the hospital I was horrified to find my mother-love tested by a rain of wet and soiled diapers, burping problems and spitting up.

Adding to my mounting hysteria would be the women who would tell me, "This is the wonderful time—enjoy it while you can. You'll miss it when the baby starts to grow."

One night I sobbingly confessed to my husband the fear that I was an unnatural mother. He said he thought most women felt as I did. Not entirely reassured I began to question friends.

"I didn't think my kids were fun until they were old enough to take to the zoo," one friend, whose two children are teenagers, told me.

"I felt as if I were in prison," another said, although it didn't stop her from having a second baby recently.

Then my daughter took over by giving me a broad grin that obviously was intentional, not intestinal. She made noises at me ranging from the traditional "coo" to something that sounded like "glonk," was said in a loud voice and obviously meant, "Hurry up and change me, mommy, I'm hungry."

Almost overnight the lump had turned into a real person who loved carrots and hated her vitamin drops. I melted into a puddle of sentimental slush on that first smile and never hardened again.

But I wish someone had told me what every mother ought to know.

CAN YOU FIND MISTAKES IN NEW NEIGHBORHOOD?

Fall is moving time for thousands of Americans. Even though you are not being uprooted yourself, you may find newcomers moving into your neighborhood. The ins and outs of becoming acquainted are important to old and new residents alike. You should be able to spot eight errors in the following story made by either the newcomers or their neighbors.

Joan and Jack moved into their new home on a Saturday. By that evening they had their barrels unpacked and Jack disposed of the excelsior by piling it in the road and burning it. When the fire died down, Joan started to prepare supper and found she had no salt, so she ran next door to borrow some. Helen, the neighbor, was just on her way out, but told Joan she would find salt on the back of the stove.

The next morning Joan and Jack were up early. They intended to work on their new garden, but found their youngsters, Billy, 2, and Cathy, 4, continually underfoot. Joan said, "Cathy, take Billy and go play in the sandbox next door." Jack, seeing that leaves and grass clippings had blown over onto his lot, raked them up and threw them back on the property next door. While they were working, the neighbor's cat wandered over, and Joan promptly gave it some milk.

Later, some of the other families came out to relax or work in their yards. Joan, thinking the couple to their left rowed from someone she had particularly attractive, asked them to dinner that night. They refused, but Joan felt she had made a friendly move.

Several days later, Joan was washing windows when Helen dropped in unannounced. Joan offered her a cup of coffee. They chatted for a few minutes and Helen asked Joan to join the neighborhood Mother's Club. Joan accepted at once, and that night she and Jack decided they had made their move most successfully.

• • •

Their mistakes, mostly not of a serious nature, were:

1. Burning packing is dangerous, if not illegal.
2. Joan should not have borrowed from someone she had not met.
3. She should not have sent her children to her neighbor's sandbox without permission.
4. Throwing clippings — even his own — on a neighbor's lawn is not the way to make friends!
5. People resent others who feed their animals, causing them to wander away from home.
6. Joan should have let the older residents invite her to a meal first.
7. Helen should have called first to let Joan prepare for her visit.
8. Joan should have waited a bit before joining any group. Once in, it may be hard to get out.

Two-Phase Bath

When you take your bath, make sure you have all your bath equipment ready: towel, robe, bath brush or sponge mitt and pumice. Your favorite soap, scented bath oil or baby oil and baby powder are ideal to pamper anyone's skin. After you have filled your tub with warm water and added two capfuls of oil, make your bath a two-phase ritual. First scrub yourself with the bath brush to help activate blood circulation, then use the pumice stone to remove dead skin cells from rough spots of feet, knees and elbows. For the second phase, lie quietly in the water and think pleasant thoughts while the oil smooths all your skin to baby softness. After you emerge from the tub and dry with a fluffy terry towel, shower yourself with powder. Even Cleopatra would envy you the lasting comfort of your bath.

Army of Pretty Guides Set for New Olympics

A talented group of young women are being prepared by the Mexican Organizing Committee for a special role in Mexico's XIX Olympics—that of guide/interpreter for distinguished foreign visitors to the Games.

Over a thousand people from 20 to 35 years old have joined the Olympic guide corps to become "edecans." That is the word in Spanish but it comes from a phonetic rendering of the French aide-de-camp. Like those versatile military assistants, the chic, uniformed edecan of the Mexican Olympics will be a combination of guide, companion, and advisor.

Edecans are assigned to three V.I.P. types: International Olympic Committee and sports federation members; the foreign press; and a third group composed of athletes, participants in the cultural program and specially invited guests.

The edecan takes over as soon as the arrival of an Olympic visitor if official. She makes or confirms hotel reservations, greets her charge at the airport, whisks him through immigration and customs, and escorts him to his lodgings. The edecan then makes out a complete itinerary for the visitor, scheduling visits to sports installations, museums and tourist spots.

She arranges theater and concert tickets and sets up interviews with Olympic, government, and sports officials.

These guide/interpreters were first carefully screened and then given intensive training. In addition to Spanish, edecans are fluent in at least two other languages, most of which are represented in the guide corps (Swedish, Swohili, Hindu etc.).

Thinking of Forming Combo?—Takes Talent, Financing

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Many a teen-ager dreams of forming a rock combo and finding fame and fortune in today's white-hot pop music market.

And many a teen-ager has his hopes destroyed when he faces the fiscal facts of life. It takes more talent to become another Rolling Stone or a member of the Fifth Dimension. It also takes plenty of cold cash.

This was disclosed in a talk with Jim Pendergast, a young San Franciscan who has been road manager and is now "investor" in a hopeful group called the Mint Tattoo. It consists of only three musicians: Bruce Stephans, lead guitar and lead singer; Burns Kellogg, bass guitar; Gregg Thomas, drums. The first two are from Sacramento, Thomas is from Chicago; all are 21 and shaggy-haired in the rock tradition.

Need a Hit Record

The Mint Tattoo is one of those groups that hasn't quite made it. To make it, you need to score with a hit record, and the trio hopes to do just that with a new recording contract. Meanwhile the boys are struggling to survive in the rock jungle.

It isn't easy. Pendergast figures that the guitars, drums and an electric piano amount to an investment of $2,000. The big expense comes with the speaker cabinets that blast the sound to the youthful audiences. Each player has four cabinets, for a total cost of $6,000.

"You need strong amplifiers for the voices to be heard over the instruments," Pendergast explained. "After each engagement, the equipment usually has to go back into the shop for repairs.

Traveling Expensive

"Tubes blow and transistors wear out. Often the instruments need to be repaired as well."

Travel is an expensive item for rock groups. Pendergast cited one well-known group that toured the United States and England, earning $136,000 in salaries. Take-home pay was $6,000.

"It's hard to get financing for rock groups," Pendergast pointed out. "Banks are reluctant, considering musicians bad risks. It's also difficult to get insurance for the equipment, which can be damaged in crowds or lost in air travel; I heard Lloyds of London turned down the Jefferson Airplane.

"Most rock musicians pay for their equipment on time—or else get their parents to buy it."

Why do these young people remain with what appears to be a losing proposition? Because rock is their bag. And because if they do make top billing, the can earn $10,000 a night.

U.S. Sub Program Limitation Will Give Russia a New Lead

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Present plans to limit the U.S. nuclear submarine program will drop this country behind the Russians in undersea warfare capability in the years to come, according to Senate defense specialists.

Taking former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara to task, the Senate military preparedness subcommittee said in a report Monday that the decision to stop building U.S. nuclear subs after 1971 should be changed.

"The U.S.S.R. is giving major emphasis to qualitative improvement of its submarine fleet and brings into question the validity of our assumption that the United States is, or will be, qualitatively superior the panel said.

McNamara argued in a "record of decision" given the subcommittee before he left the Pentagon earlier this year that the U.S. submarine attack fleet should be held at 69 nuclear and 36 diesel vessels.

The Senate panel said, however, that McNamara's argument underestimated Russia's submarine capability.

While security regulation prohibit detailed discussion of the document, the panel said, its conclusions "were based upon intelligence estimates of Soviet nuclear attack submarine performance characteristcs which were erroneously too low and have since been revised upward on two occasions.

Although Russia has a larger fleet—350 compared to this country's 146 subs—McNamara determined that the U.S. lead in nuclear propulsion gave America a quality lead over Soviet quantity. Of the U.S. total, 105 are attack boats, 33 nuclear powered and 72 propelled by diesel. The forty-one others are Polaris missile firing subs.

The Senate report said Russia had difficulties originally in developing nuclear propulsion but now is producing "nuclear submarines at a rapid rate."

Innocent Plea By Rydzewski, Insanity Basis

William J. Rydzewski, 26, of Eddyville, appeared in county court Wednesday before Judge Raymond J. Mino, and through his attorney Harry Gold entered a plea of innocent by reason of insanity. Judge Mino said he would approve an application to the court to obtain the services of a psychiatrist, and the case was adjourned to Wednesday, Oct. 2, at 11 a. m.

Rydzewski is charged in the grand jury indictment with kidnaping in the second degree; assault, second, and sexual abuse, first. The charges are in connection with the alleged kidnaping and attempted assault upon an 11-year-old Woodstock girl on July 21. The offender in the crime was the object of a 13-state alarm.

Assistant District Attorney James H. Fisher appeared for the prosecution.

Thinking of Forming Combo?—Takes Talent, Financing

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Many a teen-ager dreams of forming a rock combo and finding fame and fortune in today's white-hot pop music market.

And many a teen-ager has his hopes destroyed when he faces the fiscal facts of life. It takes more talent to become another Rolling Stone or a member of the Fifth Dimension. It also takes plenty of cold cash.

This was disclosed in a talk with Jim Pendergast, a young San Franciscan who has been road manager and is now "investor" in a hopeful group called the Mint Tattoo. It consists of only three musicians: Bruce Stephans, lead guitar and lead singer; Burns Kellogg, bass guitar; Gregg Thomas, drums. The first two are from Sacramento, Thomas is from Chicago; all are 21 and shaggy-haired in the rock tradition.

Need a Hit Record

The Mint Tattoo is one of those groups that hasn't quite made it. To make it, you need to score with a hit record, and the trio hopes to do just that with a new recording contract. Meanwhile the boys are struggling to survive in the rock jungle.

It isn't easy. Pendergast figures that the guitars, drums and an electric piano amount to an investment of $2,000. The big expense comes with the speaker cabinets that blast the sound to the youthful audiences. Each player has four cabinets, for a total cost of $6,000.

"You need strong amplifiers for the voices to be heard over the instruments," Pendergast explained. "After each engagement, the equipment usually has to go back into the shop for repairs.

Traveling Expensive

"Tubes blow and transistors wear out. Often the instruments need to be repaired as well."

Travel is an expensive item for rock groups. Pendergast cited one well-known group that toured the United States and England, earning $136,000 in salaries. Take-home pay was $6,000.

"It's hard to get financing for rock groups," Pendergast pointed out. "Banks are reluctant, considering musicians bad risks. It's also difficult to get insurance for the equipment, which can be damaged in crowds or lost in air travel; I heard Lloyds of London turned down the Jefferson Airplane.

"Most rock musicians pay for their equipment on time—or else get their parents to buy it."

Why do these young people remain with what appears to be a losing proposition? Because rock is their bag. And because if they do make top billing, the can earn $10,000 a night.

Clay Says He'll Fight On Nov. 11

By HARVEY SHAPIRO
UPI Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Cassius Clay will have six weeks in which to shake off the rust from 18 months of ring inactivity for what the 26-year-old dethroned heavyweight champion considers "a world championship" fight Nov. 11 at the 9,000-seat State Fairgrounds Coliseum.

"I am still the physical champion of the world whether the World Boxing Association thinks so or not," says Clay who prefers to be called Muhammed Ali, his Muslim name.

The 15-round bout against a yet unnamed opponent has been sanctioned by the seven-member Columbus Boxing Commission headed by John Hewitt. Ohio does not have a state boxing commission.

The announcement came at a press conference here Wednesday attended by Clay, his manager, C. B. Atkins of Chicago, local promoters William Holloway and Bill Cummings. Atkins, Holloway and Cummings are co-promoters.

Will Be TV Fight

There is a strong possibility, according to Atkins, that the fight will be carried on national television by the American Broadcasting Co. or on closed-circuit theater television.

Clay, who will be fighting on a percentage basis, "should make $200 to 300 thousand," Atkins said.

Atkins had been trying for six months to arrange a fight for Clay but state boxing commissions in Pennsylvania and Nevada turned down his request as did the district boxing commission in Washington, D.C.

The big question, even in Clay's mind, was whether or not he could get back to fighting trim in just six weeks.

"I've got 20 pounds to lose. It's almost impossible," he said.

The former heavy king, who was stripped of his title by the WBA for refusing to serve in the Armed Forces, has a choice of several top flight opponents including former champion Floyd Patterson, Buster Mathis, Leotis Martin and George Chuvalo.

Wants Joe Frazier

But he really wants a shot at Joe Frazier, recognized champion in five states including New York and Pennsylvania.

"Frazier has mentioned that he won't feel satisfied until he fights me, even though Jimmy Ellis (Clay's former sparring partner) is the WBA champion, many people think Frazier is the champ.

"Whoever fights me, he really has a good chance. I've been off a long time. I've been under a lot of pressure."

The former champ's longest previous layoff in the past was three months.

"There ain't no time. A champion trains as much as six months for a title fight and I've got six weeks. But I'm glad to be active again. I feel I owe it to the American people and the world to entertain them as world champion," he said with a mixture of brashness and conviction.

Following the scheduled 15-rounder, Clay plans to fight in about three weeks on an Indian reservation. Before the Columbus fight was finalized, he had been invited to fight on the Salt River tribe's reservation in Phoenix, Ariz.

Clay began training Tuesday by walking 15 miles from Chicago's South Side to the Loop.

Wednesday night, he sparred seven rounds with three Columbus heavyweights in a local gym.

Atkins said Clay will train "in the ghetto areas," possibly in New Jersey or several other large cities before returning to Columbus about 10 days before the fight.

Yonkers Feature To Aussie Horse

YONKERS, N.Y. (UPI)—Murray Craze, a 9-year-old Australian import, rallied in the last quarter mile at Yonkers raceway Wednesday night and won the featured $5,250 pace going away. The time was in a sizzling 2:00 4-5.

Driven by Vernon Dancer, who was pinch-hitting for his brother Stanley, Murray Craze allowed the 6-5 favorite, Escapade Lobell, and 2-1 second favorite, Tactile, to run themselves out in setting a quick :29 first quarter and :58 4-5 half, before making his move.

In the backstretch, the second turn around, Murray Craze easily sped out in front and came home by 2 1-2 lengths ahead of Tactile. Another length back was Escapade Lobell. The winner paid $17.60, $6.80 and $3.20.

In the Daily Double, the combination of 2-2 paid $13.40 as Carmine Abbatiello won both ends. He took the opener with Firm Yankee (3.40) and came back in the second with Afton Pandora ($10.00).

ND Picked Over Purdue in Saturday Colossal

By STEVE SNIDER
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—The key to this week's big one is Leroy Keyes, Purdue's versatile All-America halfback.

"We've had him working at defensive halfback part-time," says Jack Mollenkopf of Purdue. "He'll be on Jim Seymour when needed."

"We're not worried about Keyes on defense," counters Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame. "Terry Hanratty has learned to pick alternate receivers if Seymour is covered. We're worried about Keyes on offense. We couldn't stop him last year."

Keyes always has a big game against Notre Dame. He ran well in last year's victory and as a defender has blanked Seymour on attempted scoring passes from Hanratty two years in a row.

But the guess here is Notre Dame will win it this time, 28-24. Keyes was injured slightly against Virginia. So was Purdue quarterback Mike Phipps, though both will be in the lineup against Notre Dame.

KHS Prepared for Big Trouble at Linton

By DENNIS R. CARO
(Freeman Sports Staff)

KINGSTON—It isn't often that a Kingston High School football team takes an unbeaten, untied and unscored upon record into a crucial game, but Saturday, against Schenectady powerhouse Linton, the Maroon is going to do just that.

Kingston had a surprisingly easy time decimating a young, injury-ridden Vincentian Institute squad last week; surprising at least in the light of what Coach Frank Modica had to say about his boys before the contest.

But Linton is a horse, as they say, of another fire department, champions in a league where the schools are two to three times as big as Kingston.

The Dorpian Blue Devils are big, fast, and very, very tough on defense.

Modica, who had scouts for Linton's 20-0 victory over defending Diocesan League champs Catholic Central exuded a confidence Wednesday that was far different from his pre-game comments a week ago.

"They look real good," he said. "They're really only average size, but they're a hard nosed ball club and they've got a hard nosed coach."

Modica said Linton stacks a 4-4 and a 4-3 defense, and the Maroons are going to try to run right through it.

"You can't have a different offense each week," he said. "We're going to keep it simple, and go with pretty much the same attack we ran against Vincentian.

"We're strong at guard and center, and if they play us one on one we ought to move."

Modica said however, that the running attack figures to be more balanced. "Last week we ran more than 90 per cent of the plays to the strong side (toward the slot). This time I think we're going to be coming back to the weak side a bit more often.

"We found a weakness to the right against Vincentian and we stayed right at it. Naturally we'll do the same at Linton if they have a similar weakness, but I don't think that'll be the case."

"As long as our ground game is working, though, we're going to stay with it. We're not going to throw just for the sake of having a balanced attack."

Run From Power-I

Linton moves from a power-I formation with Ken Avery doing most of the heavy work, and Modica has enough respect for the big fullback to make some slight defensive shifts.

"We're still going to go with the basic 6-2 and 4-4, but we've changed some of the individual assignments. The ends are going to have to play tough, but the linebackers are going to have to be very cautious.

"You can't let a strong running attack get away from you up the middle, and their quarterback goes to a lot of screens. From what we know he doesn't look like a deep passer."

Modica has made some offensive changes too, replacing right guard John Berardi who is out with a sprained ankle, with Mike Sabino and split end Joe Holland.

Holland, who dislocated a finger on his right hand in practice will be replaced by Fred Kachura, who Modica said is "more than adequate." He was a week late getting back because he had to work, but he was our 'Tiger of the Week' against Vincentian, an honor given to the boy who makes the most tackles.

Luis Tiant One-Hits Yankees for His 21st

NEW YORK (UPI) - - Luis Tiant, making his first start since Sept. 9, allowed only a first inning single to Mickey Mantle and set an all time Cleveland ERA record Wednesday while pitching the Indians to a 3-0 victory over the New York Yankees for his 21st triumph.

Tiant's ninth shutout of the year, and third in four tries against New York, lowered his ERA to 1.60. The previous Indian team record was 1.81 set by Stan Coveleski in 1917.

Mantle touched Tiant for a solid line single to right center with two out in the first inning. But Tiant then retired 18 Yankees in a row before Roy White reached base on an error by first baseman Duke Sims with two out in the seventh and Joe Pepitone followed with one of only two walks allowed by Tiant.

But the hard throwing Cleveland righthander, who struck out 11 batters to raise his season total to 263, then whiffed Tom Tresh for the third time to end the threat and set the Yankees down in order over he final two innings.

The Indians collected 11 hits off loser Stan Bahnsen and reliever Dooley Womack. They got the only run they needed in the third inning when Jose Cardenal singled to left, Dave Nelson walked and Sims got a ground rule double.

Cleveland picked up another run in the seventh on Cardenal's ground rule double and Nelson's triple. Nelson provided the final run in the ninth when he bunted his way onto first and came all the way home on a pair of Yankee errors after he stole second.

It was the second time within five days that the Yankees, who concluded their home season, were held to one hit. Ray Culp of Boston turned the trick on Saturday.

Culp Skein Reaches 39

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Ray Culp pitched his fourth straight shutout, extending his scoreless inning streak to 39, and Carl Yastrzemski singled in a first-inning run Wednesday night as the Boston Red Sox edged the Washington Senators 1-0.

It was Culp's 16th win of the season and his seventh straight as he allowed just six hits. He struck out 11 and walked three.

Mike Andrews led off the game with a single off losing pitcher Jim Hannan. Andrews moved to third on Dalton Jones' single and scored the only run of the game on Yastrzemski's single.

With two out in the inning, Hannan was lifted after loading the bases with two walks. Dick Bosman came on and retired George Scott on a fly to end the inning and Bosman and Bob Humphreys, who came on in the eighth, blanked the Red Sox the rest of the way.

Seaver Blanks Braves On Three-Hitter, 3 to 0

ATLANTA (UPI) — Tom Seaver pitched a three-hitter Wednesday night, retiring 19 batters in a row during one stretch, as the New York Mets defeated the Atlanta Braves 3-0 before the smallest home crowd in the Braves' history in Atlanta —2,639.

Seaver, who picked up his 16th victory of the year against 11 setbacks, struck out three and walked none.

The 23-year-old right-hander gave up scratch infield singles to Felix Millan and Tito Francona in the first inning and then retired the Braves in order until Walt Hriniak singled to lead off the eighth inning. Hriniak was retired when Sonny Jackson hit into a double play.

The Mets scored single runs off starter and loser Milt Pappas in the second and third innings. J.C. Martin singled to lead off the second inning, went to second on a single by Ron Swoboda and scored on a single by Bob Heise. The third-inning run came when Cleon Jones, who had three hits, got his second of two doubles, went to third on an infield out and scored on a sacrifice fly by Ed Charles.

The Mets' final run came in the eighth when Jones singled, took third on two throwing errors and scored on a single by Art Shamsky.

The loss was Pappas' 13th loss against 12 victories. This marked his first losing season in the major.

San Diego State Top Small Team

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The San Diego State Aztecs, kingpins of the small-college football world the last two seasons, are at it again this year. They lead the first Associated Press weekly poll of the 1968 campaign by a hefty margin.

The Aztecs, winners over Texas-Arlington 23-18 and Northern Illinois 40-21 in their only starts, collected 12 first-place votes and 256 points in the balloting by a regional panel of 16 sports writers and broadcasters. San Diego State placed first in the final 1966 and 1967 AP polls.

The Eastern Kentucky Colonels, who crushed Hillsdale 63-0 in their opener last Saturday, hold the runner-up position with 144 points, including one first-place vote.

North Dakota State, runner-up to San Diego State in last year's final poll, is third this week with 108 points. State is 2-0 on victories over the Omaha branch of the University of Nebraska and South Dakota State.

Lenoir Rhyne, which beat Wofford 14-6 in its opener last Saturday, is fourth. Akron, 2-0, is fifth followed by Texas-Arlington, Northern Michigan, Central Michigan, Fairmont, W.Va., and Texas A&I.

Hodges in No Danger

ATLANTA (UP)—New York Mets' Manager Gil Hodges remained under oxygen early today in an Atlanta hospital where he was admitted after suffering a heart attack Tuesday night during the Atlanta-Mets baseball game.

Medical officials said Hodges' attack was not severe, and estimated he would be in the hospital "at least two weeks."

Dr. Harry Rogers, Atlanta team physician who was with Hodges Tuesday when he complained of chest pains and who visited the 44-year-old manager prior to Wednesday night's game, said Hodges appeared to be getting along well.

Dr. Linton Bishop, a heart specialist who first confirmed the chest pains were "a small coronary thrombosis," said 'There is no doubt in my mind that Mr. Hodges will be able to resume his full duties in the future."

Coach Rube Walker will close out the season as Mets manager. Wednesday night, Tom Seaver took the mound for the Mets and shut out the Braves 3-0 on three hits.

Hodges first told Dr. Rogers he had suffered the recurring chest pains nearly a week. He left the Mets' dugout during th second inning of Tuesday's game, but did not leave for the hospital until the seventh inning.

Mrs. Hodges, informed of the apparent heart attack, flew from New York to Atlanta early Wednesday to be with her husband who was in intensive care at Crawford Long Hospital.

See Arlington Defense Big Threat to Sawyers

SAUGERTIES — Saugerties High School, fresh from a 27-7 rout of Highland, a former Ulster County Athletic League (UCAL) foe, opens its season in the Dutchess County Scholastic League Saturday against Arlington.

Arlington dropped its season opener to Newburgh 19-0, but Saugerties Coach Fred Seither noted "they stopped them cold up the middle," and wondered whether the Sawyers' blockbuster fullback Roger Praetorius would face similar treatment.

"Arlington has a good, big front line," Seither said. "They average about 200 pounds. I really don't know if we can run up the middle on them, but we're certainly going to find out.

"We'll run right at them, and if it doesn't work we'll try something else."

Praetorius' ailing knee was drained Monday, Seither said, and the senior fullback hasn't practiced all week. He should, however, be ready for a light workout Friday.

Weak Against Pass?

Arlington stacks a 6-2 defense, holding the linebackers in tight and occasionally shooting them. Its the type of defensive alignment that is normally weak against a passing attack, but Seither said "its surprising but nobody's really thrown that well against them."

Saugerties quarterback Holly Carnight, who threw extremely well against Highland went for the most part with play action passes, Seither said, and the Arlington linemen block hard on the offensive ends at the line of scrimmage.

"If the ends don't get out quick enough, Carnight may not have time to find a receiver."

In other DSCL action, Beacon High School is at Our Lady of Lourdes, Roosevelt High School is at Poughkeepsie and Cardinal Farley Military Academy is at Roy C. Ketcham High School in Wappingers Falls.

Roosevelt cashed in on a Joe Schrotz to Ken Hornbeck pass in the last 12 seconds to squeak by Our Lady of Lourdes last Saturday, while Beacon routed Cardinal Farley 32-0.

Need Strong Effort

Poughkeepsie downed Ketcham 13-7, but with Beacon expected to have an easy time on Riverview field the Pioneers are going to have to be on their toes to stay on top of the league.

Saugerties will also have to be on its toes, Seither said. "We made a lot of mistakes against Highland that we just can't afford against a team like Arlington."

In addition to five fumbles, the Sawyers were hit for 120 yards in penalties. "You just can't do that and continue to get away with it," Seither said.

U.S. Hurler Fans 20 in World Play

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — Slim Steve Nielsen struck out 20 batters and gave up only one hit en route to the 6-0 victory over Japan Wednesday night in the World Softball Tournament.

The game, played late Wednesday night, was one of six games rained out Tuesday.

The victory was the second 6-0 decision of the night for the United States, which downed previously unbeaten Canada by the same score earlier in the night.

Japan's only hit came on a sharp single in the sixth inning by Keisuke Kaneko. The 20 strikeouts is a world tournament record.

In other games Wednesday, Mexico ripped the Virgin Islands 10-2 and the Philippines edged New Zealand, Canada hammered winless South Africa 8-0.

Rebuff Royalty At Jersey Track

There was little respect for royalty at Atlantic City Wednesday.

Queen of the Stage, who also happened to be queen of the juvenile filly set last year when she won seven of eight starts, led from start to finish in the $7,500 feature at Atlantic City Wednesday but then was disqualified for interference in the stretch.

Big Rock Candy, victim of the bumping when he tried to make his stretch move, was awarded first place as Queen of the Stage was moved down to second. Third place went to Navy Admiral.

Queen of the Stage returned to the races by winning an overnight test at Aqueduct Sept. 13 after being idle with an injury since last October.

Time for the mile and one-sixteenth was 1:42 flat and Big Rock Candy returnd $8.80, $3.20 and $2.40.

Al Hattab outraced Flagstaff and Traffic Mark to win the $30,000 added Hawthorne Juvenile Stakes at Hawthorne Park. Negotiating the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:49 4-5 under Ray Broussard, Al Hattab further established himself as one of the country's best 2-year-olds.

He returned $7.00, $3.80 and $2.60, Flagstaff paid $5.40 and $3.60 and Traffic Mark was worth $2.60 to show.

Rokeby Stable's Oak Spring rallied in the stretch to nip favored Cup Race by a length and one-quarter in the $12,000 feature at Belmont, Mt. Mansfield was third.

Oak Spring, a 3-year-old gelded son of Swaps, toured the seven furlong turf course in 1:24 1-5 and paid $19.20, $8.40 and $6.60.

Favored Mr. Joe F. outlasted Kobuk King by a length and one-half to pay $3.20 in the $10,000 added El Camino Stakes at Bay Meadows, Surf's City ($21.00) won the big race at Detroit and My Searcher was a $7.40 winner at Lincoln Downs.

There were 71,386 people in attendance as Michigan was upset by California, besting by more than 1,600 the 69,729 fans who saw Louisiana State host Texas A&M.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The key to this week's big one is Leroy Keyes, Purdue's versatile All-America halfback.

"We've had him working at defensive halfback part-time," says Jack Mollenkopf of Purdue. "He'll be on Jim Seymour when needed."

"We're not worried about Keyes on defense," counters Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame. "Terry Hanratty has learned to pick alternate receivers if Seymour is covered. We're worried about Keyes on offense. We couldn't stop him last year."

Keyes always has a big game against Notre Dame. He ran well in last year's victory and as a defender has blanked Seymour on attempted scoring passes from Hanratty two years in a row.

But the guess here is Notre Dame will win it this time, 28-24. Keyes was injured slightly against Virginia. So was Purdue quarterback Mike Phipps, though both will be in the lineup against Notre Dame.

KHS Prepared for Big Trouble at Linton

By DENNIS R. CARO
(Freeman Sports Staff)

KINGSTON—It isn't often that a Kingston High School football team takes an unbeaten, untied and unscored upon record into a crucial game, but Saturday, against Schenectady powerhouse Linton, the Maroon is going to do just that.

Kingston had a surprisingly easy time decimating a young, injury-ridden Vincentian Institute squad last week; surprising at least in the light of what Coach Frank Modica had to say about his boys before the contest.

But Linton is a horse, as they say, of another fire department, champions in a league where the schools are two to three times as big as Kingston.

The Dorpian Blue Devils are big, fast, and very, very tough on defense.

Modica, who had scouts for Linton's 20-0 victory over defending Diocesan League champs Catholic Central exuded a confidence Wednesday that was far different from his pre-game comments a week ago.

"They look real good," he said. "They're really only average size, but they're a hard nosed ball club and they've got a hard nosed coach."

Modica said Linton stacks a 4-4 and a 4-3 defense, and the Maroons are going to try to run right through it.

"You can't have a different offense each week," he said. "We're going to keep it simple, and go with pretty much the same attack we ran against Vincentian.

"We're strong at guard and center, and if they play us one on one we ought to move."

Modica said however, that the running attack figures to be more balanced. "Last week we ran more than 90 per cent of the plays to the strong side (toward the slot). This time I think we're going to be coming back to the weak side a bit more often.

"We found a weakness to the right against Vincentian and we stayed right at it. Naturally we'll do the same at Linton if they have a similar weakness, but I don't think that'll be the case."

"As long as our ground game is working, though, we're going to stay with it. We're not going to throw just for the sake of having a balanced attack."

Run From Power-I

Linton moves from a power-I formation with Ken Avery doing most of the heavy work, and Modica has enough respect for the big fullback to make some slight defensive shifts.

"We're still going to go with the basic 6-2 and 4-4, but we've changed some of the individual assignments. The ends are going to have to play tough, but the linebackers are going to have to be very cautious.

"You can't let a strong running attack get away from you up the middle, and their quarterback goes to a lot of screens. From what we know he doesn't look like a deep passer."

Modica has made some offensive changes too, replacing right guard John Berardi who is out with a sprained ankle, with Mike Sabino and split end Joe Holland.

Holland, who dislocated a finger on his right hand in practice will be replaced by Fred Kachura, who Modica said is "more than adequate." He was a week late getting back because he had to work, but he was our 'Tiger of the Week' against Vincentian, an honor given to the boy who makes the most tackles.

Luis Tiant One-Hits Yankees for His 21st

NEW YORK (UPI) - - Luis Tiant, making his first start since Sept. 9, allowed only a first inning single to Mickey Mantle and set an all time Cleveland ERA record Wednesday while pitching the Indians to a 3-0 victory over the New York Yankees for his 21st triumph.

Tiant's ninth shutout of the year, and third in four tries against New York, lowered his ERA to 1.60. The previous Indian team record was 1.81 set by Stan Coveleski in 1917.

Mantle touched Tiant for a solid line single to right center with two out in the first inning. But Tiant then retired 18 Yankees in a row before Roy White reached base on an error by first baseman Duke Sims with two out in the seventh and Joe Pepitone followed with one of only two walks allowed by Tiant.

But the hard throwing Cleveland righthander, who struck out 11 batters to raise his season total to 263, then whiffed Tom Tresh for the third time to end the threat and set the Yankees down in order over he final two innings.

The Indians collected 11 hits off loser Stan Bahnsen and reliever Dooley Womack. They got the only run they needed in the third inning when Jose Cardenal singled to left, Dave Nelson walked and Sims got a ground rule double.

Cleveland picked up another run in the seventh on Cardenal's ground rule double and Nelson's triple. Nelson provided the final run in the ninth when he bunted his way onto first and came all the way home on a pair of Yankee errors after he stole second.

It was the second time within five days that the Yankees, who concluded their home season, were held to one hit. Ray Culp of Boston turned the trick on Saturday.

Culp Skein Reaches 39

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Ray Culp pitched his fourth straight shutout, extending his scoreless inning streak to 39, and Carl Yastrzemski singled in a first-inning run Wednesday night as the Boston Red Sox edged the Washington Senators 1-0.

It was Culp's 16th win of the season and his seventh straight as he allowed just six hits. He struck out 11 and walked three.

Mike Andrews led off the game with a single off losing pitcher Jim Hannan. Andrews moved to third on Dalton Jones' single and scored the only run of the game on Yastrzemski's single.

With two out in the inning, Hannan was lifted after loading the bases with two walks. Dick Bosman came on and retired George Scott on a fly to end the inning and Bosman and Bob Humphreys, who came on in the eighth, blanked the Red Sox the rest of the way.

Seaver Blanks Braves On Three-Hitter, 3 to 0

ATLANTA (UPI) — Tom Seaver pitched a three-hitter Wednesday night, retiring 19 batters in a row during one stretch, as the New York Mets defeated the Atlanta Braves 3-0 before the smallest home crowd in the Braves' history in Atlanta —2,639.

Seaver, who picked up his 16th victory of the year against 11 setbacks, struck out three and walked none.

The 23-year-old right-hander gave up scratch infield singles to Felix Millan and Tito Francona in the first inning and then retired the Braves in order until Walt Hriniak singled to lead off the eighth inning. Hriniak was retired when Sonny Jackson hit into a double play.

The Mets scored single runs off starter and loser Milt Pappas in the second and third innings. J.C. Martin singled to lead off the second inning, went to second on a single by Ron Swoboda and scored on a single by Bob Heise. The third-inning run came when Cleon Jones, who had three hits, got his second of two doubles, went to third on an infield out and scored on a sacrifice fly by Ed Charles.

The Mets' final run came in the eighth when Jones singled, took third on two throwing errors and scored on a single by Art Shamsky.

The loss was Pappas' 13th loss against 12 victories. This marked his first losing season in the major.

San Diego State Top Small Team

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The San Diego State Aztecs, kingpins of the small-college football world the last two seasons, are at it again this year. They lead the first Associated Press weekly poll of the 1968 campaign by a hefty margin.

The Aztecs, winners over Texas-Arlington 23-18 and Northern Illinois 40-21 in their only starts, collected 12 first-place votes and 256 points in the balloting by a regional panel of 16 sports writers and broadcasters. San Diego State placed first in the final 1966 and 1967 AP polls.

The Eastern Kentucky Colonels, who crushed Hillsdale 63-0 in their opener last Saturday, hold the runner-up position with 144 points, including one first-place vote.

North Dakota State, runner-up to San Diego State in last year's final poll, is third this week with 108 points. State is 2-0 on victories over the Omaha branch of the University of Nebraska and South Dakota State.

Lenoir Rhyne, which beat Wofford 14-6 in its opener last Saturday, is fourth. Akron, 2-0, is fifth followed by Texas-Arlington, Northern Michigan, Central Michigan, Fairmont, W.Va., and Texas A&I.

Hodges in No Danger

ATLANTA (UP)—New York Mets' Manager Gil Hodges remained under oxygen early today in an Atlanta hospital where he was admitted after suffering a heart attack Tuesday night during the Atlanta-Mets baseball game.

Medical officials said Hodges' attack was not severe, and estimated he would be in the hospital "at least two weeks."

Dr. Harry Rogers, Atlanta team physician who was with Hodges Tuesday when he complained of chest pains and who visited the 44-year-old manager prior to Wednesday night's game, said Hodges appeared to be getting along well.

Dr. Linton Bishop, a heart specialist who first confirmed the chest pains were "a small coronary thrombosis," said "There is no doubt in my mind that Mr. Hodges will be able to resume his full duties in the future."

Coach Rube Walker will close out the season as Mets manager. Wednesday night, Tom Seaver took the mound for the Mets and shut out the Braves 3-0 on three hits.

Hodges first told Dr. Rogers he had suffered the recurring chest pains nearly a week. He left the Mets' dugout during th second inning of Tuesday's game, but did not leave for the hospital until the seventh inning.

Mrs. Hodges, informed of the apparent heart attack, flew from New York to Atlanta early Wednesday to be with her husband who was in intensive care at Crawford Long Hospital.

U.S. Hurler Fans 20 in World Play

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — Slim Steve Nielsen struck out 20 batters and gave up only one hit en route to the 6-0 victory over Japan Wednesday night in the World Softball Tournament.

The game, played late Wednesday night, was one of six games rained out Tuesday.

The victory was the second 6-0 decision of the night for the United States, which downed previously unbeaten Canada by the same score earlier in the night.

Japan's only hit came on a sharp single in the sixth inning by Keisuke Kaneko. The 20 strikeouts is a world tournament record.

In other games Wednesday, Mexico ripped the Virgin Islands 10-2 and the Philippines edged New Zealand, Canada hammered winless South Africa 8-0.

See Arlington Defense Big Threat to Sawyers

SAUGERTIES — Saugerties High School, fresh from a 27-7 rout of Highland, a former Ulster County Athletic League (UCAL) foe, opens its season in the Dutchess County Scholastic League Saturday against Arlington.

Arlington dropped its season opener to Newburgh 19-0, but Saugerties Coach Fred Seither noted "they stopped them cold up the middle," and wondered whether the Sawyers' blockbuster fullback Roger Praetorius would face similar treatment.

"Arlington has a good, big front line," Seither said. "They average about 200 pounds. I really don't know if we can run up the middle on them, but we're certainly going to find out.

"We'll run right at them, and if it doesn't work we'll try something else."

Praetorius' ailing knee was drained Monday, Seither said, and the senior fullback hasn't practiced all week. He should, however, be ready for a light workout Friday.

Weak Against Pass?

Arlington stacks a 6-2 defense, holding the linebackers in tight and occasionally shooting them. Its the type of defensive alignment that is normally weak against a passing attack, but Seither said "its surprising but nobody's really thrown that well against them."

Saugerties quarterback Holly Carnight, who threw extremely well against Highland went for the most part with play action passes, Seither said, and the Arlington linemen block hard on the offensive ends at the line of scrimmage.

"If the ends don't get out quick enough, Carnight may not have time to find a receiver."

In other DSCL action, Beacon High School is at Our Lady of Lourdes, Roosevelt High School is at Poughkeepsie and Cardinal Farley Military Academy is at Roy C. Ketcham High School in Wappingers Falls.

Roosevelt cashed in on a Joe Schrotz to Ken Hornbeck pass in the last 12 seconds to squeak by Our Lady of Lourdes last Saturday, while Beacon routed Cardinal Farley 32-0.

Need Strong Effort

Poughkeepsie downed Ketcham 13-7, but with Beacon expected to have an easy time on Riverview field the Pioneers are going to have to be on their toes to stay on top of the league.

Saugerties will also have to be on its toes, Seither said. "We made a lot of mistakes against Highland that we just can't afford against a team like Arlington."

In addition to five fumbles, the Sawyers were hit for 120 yards in penalties. "You just can't do that and continue to get away with it," Seither said.

Rebuff Royalty At Jersey Track

There was little respect for royalty at Atlantic City Wednesday.

Queen of the Stage, who also happened to be queen of the juvenile filly set last year when she won seven of eight starts, led from start to finish in the $7,500 feature at Atlantic City Wednesday but then was disqualified for interference in the stretch.

Big Rock Candy, victim of the bumping when he tried to make his stretch move, was awarded first place as Queen of the Stage was moved down to second. Third place went to Navy Admiral.

Queen of the Stage returned to the races by winning an overnight test at Aqueduct Sept. 13 after being idle with an injury since last October.

Time for the mile and one-sixteenth was 1:42 flat and Big Rock Candy returnd $8.80, $3.20 and $2.40.

Al Hattab outraced Flagstaff and Traffic Mark to win the $30,000 added Hawthorne Juvenile Stakes at Hawthorne Park. Negotiating the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:49 4-5 under Ray Broussard, Al Hattab further established himself as one of the country's best 2-year-olds.

He returned $7.00, $3.80 and $2.60, Flagstaff paid $5.40 and $3.60 and Traffic Mark was worth $2.60 to show.

Rokeby Stable's Oak Spring rallied in the stretch to nip favored Cup Race by a length and one-quarter in the $12,000 feature at Belmont, Mt. Mansfield was third.

Oak Spring, a 3-year-old gelded son of Swaps, toured the seven furlong turf course in 1:24 1-5 and paid $19.20, $8.40 and $6.60.

Favored Mr. Joe F. outlasted Kobuk King by a length and one-half to pay $3.20 in the $10,000 added El Camino Stakes at Bay Meadows, Surf's City ($21.00) won the big race at Detroit and My Searcher was a $7.40 winner at Lincoln Downs.

Michigan Drew Largest Crowd With 71,386

NEW YORK (UPI) — The University of Michigan drew the largest college football crowd in the country last Saturday, marking the third time in four years that Ann Arbor has been the site of the biggest crowd for the first full week of the season.

There were 71,386 people in attendance as Michigan was upset by California, besting by more than 1,600 the 69,729 fans who saw Louisiana State host Texas A&M.

Shrunken UCAL Opens 1968 Season Saturday

By DENNIS R. CARO
(Freeman Sports Staff)

The Ulster County Athletic League opens its football season Saturday with contests at Highland, Marlboro and Liberty, but the lines of strength in the six team circuit have already been drawn.

The lack of an adequate budget at Onteora and the lack of an adequate turnout at Wallkill have carved the respective top and bottom off the league, forcing playoff games to round out the schedule.

The top four teams are assured of at least two games in the playoffs, with a chance to come out on top regardless of season record, and at least one of those playoff berths is up for grabs.

Liberty, Rondout Valley and Pine Bush, all coming off impressive non-league wins last Saturday, apparently have a hammerlock on the first three spots, but the fourth could be awarded by default.

Neither Highland, Marlboro or New Paltz managed to get on the scoreboard last week.

Ganders Impressed

Defending UCAL champs Rondout Valley slammed Western Sullivan League hopeful Tri-Valley 33-0 in its opener, and will journey to Highland Saturday.

The Golden Ganders started practice late while awaiting a budget vote but Coach Chick Meehan is ready to heap more grief on Lem Atkins shoulders. Atkins' Highlanders were bombed 27-0 by a rusty Saugerties squad and may have trouble getting momentum for this one.

The Invaders, Woody Witherwax's Liberty Indians, stepped all over Cornwall, one of the better rated teams in the Orange County League, and New Paltz' Bill Freer may be putting his head in a meat grinder for the second week in a row.

The Huguenots were clobbered 20-0 by Millbrook last week.

Pine Bush Rolling

Pine Bush is at Marlboro for what should be the most interesting game of the Saturday slate. The Bushmen pinned the first loss on Minisink Valley's sophomore coach Dick Wilson last week while Marlboro was being decimated by Valley Central 38-0, but the Dukes figure to be up for this one.

Valley Central is the biggest school in the Orange County League and an odds on bet to go undefeated. Marlboro was not expected to go anywhere against the powerful Vikings and Coach Jack Kroh's boys played like it.

Pine Bush, however, was definitely up for Minisink, after a tough 6-0 loss in last season's opener and Don Hauck's Bushmen could have trouble getting up the same drive against the Dukes.

In independent action, Ellenville, coming off a 7-7 tie with defending WSL champ Jeffersonville, hosts Carmel.

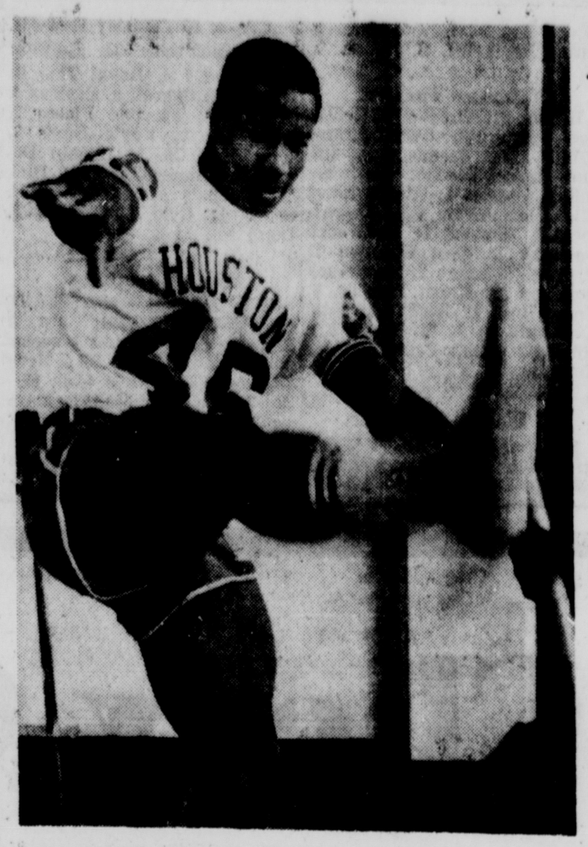
Appoint Hannon, Siena's New AD

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Siena College Wednesday announced appointment of basketball coach Tom Hannon as acting athletic director.

Hannon, 29, is the first layman to hold the post, succeeding the Rev. Peter A. Monaghan who resigned to devote his time to teaching.

Hannon, who will continue as varsity cage coach, has a 30-37 record at Siena, where he is starting his fourth year.



MAN WITH A DREAM — "I have a dream and that dream is 20 touchdowns and 1600 yards. The man doing the dreaming is 11th ranked University of Houston's FB-HB Paul Gipson who already has four touchdowns and 288 yards to his credit this season. He limbers up before drill. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Yesterday's Stars

PITCHING—Luis Tiant, Indians, pitched a one-hitter—Mickey Mantle's first-inning single—in 3-0 victory over Yankees.

HITTING—Gates Brown, Tigers, hit three-run homer in the ninth inning in 4-3 victory over Orioles.

Paul Gipson's Dream: 20 TDs—1,600 Yards

By DARRELL MACK
UPI Sports Writer

HOUSTON (UPI)—Paul Gipson has a dream.

The powerful University of Houston fullback-halfback wants to score 20 touchdowns and run for 1,600 yards this season—something no other college back has done.

A drama major, he also wants to be an actor. "I'd like to be the first colored Tarzan," Gipson confided.

But his No. 1 goal now is to lead Houston to a 9-0-1 record and he thinks he can do that by scoring 20 touchdowns and rushing for 1,600 yards. The major college rushing record is 1,570 set 20 years ago, and the single-season touchdown record is 24 set by Lupino of Arizona in 1954.

At his present pace, the 6-foot, 200-pound Gipson will score 20 touchdowns and gain 1,440 yards, which would top O. J. Simpson's 1967 output of 1,415. Gipson has scored four times and ran for 288 yards, while Houston beat Tulane and tied Texas.

Compares With Blanchard

Coach Bill Yoeman of Houston compares Gipson with Doc Blanchard, Army's famous Mr. Outside of the mid-40's. Yeoman was center on those Army teams.

"Gip isn't as fast," Yeoman said. 'Doc could run 9.9 or 9.8 (compared to Gipson's 10.0 or 10.1), but Gipson has the same kind of power Blanchard had. He's a very good blocker and a good receiver. He's also the best passer on our team."

Gipson's biggest asset is his strength. He was so muscular during his junior year in high school that he drank vinegar to soften the muscles—it works much the same way vinegar works on pickles, Gipson said.

Another asset is his body control and the combination of the two enables him to break tackle after tackle. He prides himself into thinking he can break any tackle and that no one defender can bring him down.

"Our high school coach taught us to roll with the tackle and then break through the side of the grip," Gipson said.

He polished off his techniques in body control in, of all places, a ballet class at school last semester. He took it accidentally as part of his drama training and was ready to drop out when he found he was the only male in the class.

But his teacher persuaded him to stay because many young actors in Hollywood are handicapped because they do not know ballet. Gipson stayed and found it helped his football play, too.

"My coordination is better now and my balance has improved greatly and I think my speed is picking up because I'm running on my toes more than before," he said. "When I learned how to do the steps and exercises properly, I felt stronger and in much greater control of myself."

Tulane coach Jim Pittman saw the results in a 57-yard run in the opening game.

"He broke on a draw play on us and I think every player on the team hit him," Pittman said. "He just busted tackles until finally he picked up a couple of blocks and then he really laid it back.

Rated With Simpson

"I would rate him right up there in a class with Simpson and Keyes and any other of the great backs in the country."

Texas' outstanding tackle Loyd Wainscott, who opened against Simpson last year and Gipson this year, went farther than Pittman.

"Gipson is the best runner I've ever faced," Wainscott said after Gipson ran over Texas for 173 yards. "I'd put him above Simpson because he doesn't get knocked down. You can stick him right in the mouth and he'll still get away."

Many coaches and players agree the biggest difference between Gipson and Simpson and Keyes is that Gipson was an unknown until the middle of last season while the other two came up with big buildups.

Gipson was dismissed from the squad for missing a bed check midway through his sophomore year and played in Warren McVea's shadow last year until McVea suffered an injury. Then Gipson took over and finished with 1,100 yards, seventh in the nation.

He won't be satisfied with that this year.

The case of the missing officials was solved with a phone call this morning.

Following two days of futile search for any man with authority in the German-American Football Association, contact was made with Fritz Marth, secretary of the GAFA at his home in Secaucus, N. J.

What about the case of the missing referee at last Sunday's mini-brawl between the Kingston Sport Club Kickers and the New York Hungarians at Oehler's Mountain lodge, we asked.

"I have not received any report personally," said Marth. "I suppose it has gone to Conrad Schuricht of Eastchester."

Two days of telephoning failed to lift either the association president — Harry J. Saunders of New York City or Schuricht. An office secretary said Saunders was spending a vacation in the Virgin Islands or some other Caribbean paradise.

Decline Comment

Marth declined comment on any phase of the mysterious disapperance of Referee Laszlo Molnar after he walked off the field and disappeared eight minutes before the end of the first half.

Kingston was leading 1-0 on the strength of a spectacular rebound goal by the Galloping Ghanian, Elliott Pobbi Asare. Molnar picked up the cards of the two players involved in the scuffle and just took off without notifying either the players, team officials or the press.

When corralled later, Molnar said he was declaring it no-contest and would not recommend a forfeit against Kingston.

Marth, the only one of three GAFA officials available by phone since Sunday, said it was unlikely the league would reveal the contents of Referee Molnar's report before the league's Arbitration Board meets tonight.

Meeting Friday

"They are scheduled to meet tomorrow (Friday)," said Marth. The Kingston matter will probably be taken up then after they have notified the principals."

Bill Oehler, proprietor of Oehler's who keeps close tabs with league headquarters, said the locals had not received any notice of a meeting as of yesterday.

"It could be in the morning mail due in about an hour," he said. "But we have found the procedure to be different.

"Under normal procedure," Oehler continued, "the arbitration board acts on the referee's report, makes a decision and informs all the interested parties. At this point those involved have the right to appeal, if they disagree with the findings of the board."

Meanwhile, the Kickers are scheduled to play Sunday against Sportfreunde Passaic at Wayne, N. J. in their first road test in the Premier division.

The Kingston High School football booster club will show the film of last Saturday's game with Vincentian Institute at 8 tonight in the High School Auditorium. Memberships may be purchased at the door.

Pete Gaining on Matty; Now Leads by A Point

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

Pete Rose is gaining on Matty Alou in the complicated "numbers game" which can decide the National League batting championship.

Something like $25,000 might be at stake for either batsman depending upon the outcome of the tight race—and both obviously are pressing. Each went 0-for-4 Wednesday night when Rose's Cincinnati Reds scored a 2-0 victory over Alou's Pittsburgh Pirates.

The frustrating night left Rose with a .3323 average and Alou with a .3315 mark as they come down to the closest finish of a batting race in the NL since 1931. The factor in Rose's favor is that he has batted 65 more times than Alou and, therefore, loses fewer points when he fails to hit.

Lose Points

Rose lost .0021 points Wednesday night, for example, while Alou lost .0025 points. All of which should answer all possible questions about why major league ball players suffer from a problem of insecurity when such trifles can determine their economic status.

Jim Maloney pitched a two-hitter and Mack Jones hit two homers for the Reds, who dealt rookie Dock Ellis his fifth loss against six victories. Maloney, an in-and-outer all season, was at his best with 11 strikeouts and no walks.

The St. Louis Cardinals downed the Philadelphia Phillies, 5-4, the Houston Astros shaded the San Francisco Giants, 3-2, the New York Mets topped the Atlanta Braves, 3-0, and the Chicago Cubs beat the Los Angeles Dodgers, 4-1, in other National League gams.

Nelson Briles, scheduled to pitch the second game of the World Series against the Detroit Tigers, raised his record to 19-11 with ninth-inning relief help from Joe Hoerner as the Cardinals broke a five-game losing streak. Briles also knocked in two runs with a double and a single as the Cardinals dealt 18-game winner Chris Short his 13th loss.

Aspromonte Saves Game

Bob Aspromonte singled home the winning run in the seventh inning and saved the game with a leaping catch of Willie McCovey's drive against the left field fence in the eighth as the Astros dealt 26-game winner Juan Marichal his ninth loss. Dave Giusti, who went 7 2-3 innings, raised his record to 11-14 with the victory.

Ron Santo's grand slam homer gave the Cubs their victory after Bill Singer held them to one hit for eight innings. Singer, who allowed only a fourth-inning infield hit by Billy Williams through eight innings, walked Willie Smith leading off the ninth and gave up a double to Williams. Dick Nen was intentionally walked before Santo hit his game-winning homer over the left field wall.

Vanderbilt Is Army's 151st Grid Opponent

WEST POINT — Vanderbilt University of Nashville, becomes the 151st opponent in history for Army when the Commodores come to Michie Stadium this Saturday. Kickoff time is 2 p. m. Tickets are available and may be purchased at the gate.

The members of the Southeastern Conference opened their 1968 campaign with a 25 to 12 win over Virginia Military while Army was taking the Citadel, 34-14.

Considered bigger, faster and stronger than the 1967 team, the Tennessee eleven has switched from a primarily passing attack to a balanced offense. The lack of an experienced quarterback may make things difficult at first but experienced lines plus talented linebackers could decide the issue. Linebacker Chip Healy at 6-4 and 225 pounds is the top candidate on the Vanderbilt squad.

Same Team Opens

Army's Coach Tom Cahill plans to go again with the starters who opened the season. While not overly pleased with the defense, he did find the offensive unit to his liking. The defense seemed to improve as the game progressed but there will be some changes made this week.

The backfield quartet of quarterback Steve Lindell (Princeton, Minn.), halfbacks Lynn Moore (Ponca City, Okla.) and Bill Hunter (Levittown, Pa.) and fullback Charlie Jarvis (Cornwells Hts., Pa.) came through in fine form. Jarvis had 157 yards rushing and scored once while Hunter returned a punt 90 yards for a touchdown. Their play gained them all-East honors in the weekly picks. Lindell completed 8 of 16 passes for 138 yards and a touchdown and ran for another score.

Jensen Kicked Well

The place kicking of sophomore Arden Jensen (Ruthton, Minn.) gave the Cadets 10 points on four conversions and field goals of 39 and 26 yards. That could prove valuable in the games to come.

The defense alignment will have Tom Wheelock (Falls Church, Va.) as the General, Dick Luecke (Parma, Ohio) and Bill Price (Lubbock, Tex.) at ends, Steve Yarnell (Key Biscayne, Fla.) and Bob Allardice (Pittsburgh, Pa.) at tackles and Joe Neuman (Grand Rapids) at middle guard. Captain Ken Johnson (Newburgh) and Jodie Glore (Ontario, Ore.) are the linebackers. Starting in the deep defense will be Dennis Hutchinson (Salt Lake City, Utah), Pete Dencker (Huntington) and John Brenner (Philadelphia, Pa.).

Two injured players were returned to the roster although they may see but limited duty against Vanderbilt. Getting the medical approval were quarterback Jim O'Toole (No. Riverside, Ill.) and defensive back Tom Haller (Yeagertown, Pa.). Both are lettermen, O'Toole being the backup for Lindell and Haller having played safely in 1967.

Vanderbilt scored in every game last year but Coach Cahill noted that Army only had one shutout in an 8 and 2 season in 1967.

Another Sellout for Army

WEST POINT — Tickets for the Army-Boston College game to be played at Michie Stadium on Saturday, Nov. 9, have all been sold, it was announced here today by Colonel Jerry G. Capka, Director of Aethletics.

The only game for which tickets are still available is the Vanderbilt game this Saturday, Sept. 28, at Michie Stadium. The games with California on Oct. 12 and Duke on Oct. 26 were announced as sell-outs earlier this month.

If Michie Stadium is filled to capacity — 29,425 — for the Vanderbilt game it will mark the first time in Army football history that every game on the home schedule has been sold out.

The tremendous response from Army's fans this year has revived speculation that a plan to increase the Michie Stadium capacity by 10,000 may be revived. The plans have been gathering dust for the past several years.

Traffic problems that would be created by such an addition is one of the biggest blocks to the additional seats, it is said.

Professional Golf Feud Widening on Two Fronts

NEW YORK (UPI)—The running battle between the PGA and the APG continued on two fronts Wednesday.

The committee of the Sponsors Association met with representatives of both the PGA (Professional Golfers Association) and the rebel APG (American Professional Golfers) in an attempt to iron out a settlement.

Meanwhile, the rival factions were also meeting in federal district court in Wilmington, Del.

In the court action, the PGA obtained a temporary restraining order blocking the fledgling APG from soliciting any prospective tournament player to participate in or conduct a 1968 qualifying school or entering into any agreement with a sponsor of a 1968 PGA golf tournament.

The order, signed by Chief Judge Caleb M. Wright, also prevents the new group from employing documents, mailing lists and confidential information transferred from the PGA to the APG by a former PGA employe.

The APG has 10 days in which to answer the complaint

The Sponsors committee suggested the formulation of a nine-man committee—composed of three sponsors, three PGA officials and three touring pros—to have complete authority and responsibility over the tour.

The tour would be under the direction of a tournament manager, who would be hired or fired only with consent of the board.

Shrunken UCAL Opens 1968 Season Saturday

By DENNIS R. CARO
(Freeman Sports Staff)

The Ulster County Athletic League opens its football season Saturday with contests at Highland, Marlboro and Liberty, but the lines of strength in the six team circuit have already been drawn.

The lack of an adequate budget at Onteora and the lack of an adequate turnout at Wallkill have carved the respective top and bottom off the league, forcing playoff games to round out the schedule.

The top four teams are assured of at least two games in the playoffs, with a chance to come out on top regardless of season record, and at least one of those playoff berths is up for grabs.

Liberty, Rondout Valley and Pine Bush, all coming off impressive non-league wins last Saturday, apparently have a hammerlock on the first three spots, but the fourth could be awarded by default.

Neither Highland, Marlboro or New Paltz managed to get on the scoreboard last week.

Ganders Impressed

Defending UCAL champs Rondout Valley slammed Western Sullivan League hopeful Tri-Valley 33-0 in its opener, and will journey to Highland Saturday.

The Golden Ganders started practice late while awaiting a budget vote but Coach Chick Meehan is ready to heap more grief on Lem Atkins shoulders. Atkins' Highlanders were bombed 27-0 by a rusty Saugerties squad and may have trouble getting momentum for this one.

The Invaders, Woody Witherwax's Liberty Indians, stepped all over Cornwall, one of the better rated teams in the Orange County League, and New Paltz' Bill Freer may be putting his head in a meat grinder for the second week in a row.

The Huguenots were clobbered 20-0 by Millbrook last week.

Pine Bush Rolling

Pine Bush is at Marlboro for what should be the most interesting game of the Saturday slate. The Bushmen pinned the first loss on Minisink Valley's sophomore coach Dick Wilson last week while Marlboro was being decimated by Valley Central 38-0, but the Dukes figure to be up for this one.

Valley Central is the biggest school in the Orange County League and an odds on bet to go undefeated. Marlboro was not expected to go anywhere against the powerful Vikings and Coach Jack Kroh's boys played like it.

Pine Bush, however, was definitely up for Minisink, after a tough 6-0 loss in last season's opener and Don Hauck's Bushmen could have trouble getting up the same drive against the Dukes.

In independent action, Ellenville, coming off a 7-7 tie with defending WSL champ Jeffersonville, hosts Carmel.

Appoint Hannon Siena's New AD

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Siena College Wednesday announced appointment of basketball coach Tom Hannon as acting athletic director.

Hannon, 29, is the first layman to hold the post, succeeding the Rev. Peter A. Monaghan who resigned to devote his time to teaching.

Hannon, who will continue as varsity cage coach, has a 30-37 record at Siena, where he is starting his fourth year.

MAN WITH A DREAM — "I have a dream and that dream is 20 touchdowns and 1600 yards. The man doing the dreaming is 11th ranked University of Houston's FB-HB Paul Gipson who already has four touchdowns and 288 yards to his credit this season. He limbers up before drill. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Paul Gipson's Dream: 20 TDs—1,600 Yards

By DARRELL MACK
UPI Sports Writer

HOUSTON (UPI)—Paul Gipson has a dream.

The powerful University of Houston fullback-halfback wants to score 20 touchdowns and run for 1,600 yards this season—something no other college back has done.

A drama major, he also wants to be an actor. "I'd like to be the first colored Tarzan," Gipson confided.

But his No. 1 goal now is to lead Houston to a 9-0-1 record and he thinks he can do that by scoring 20 touchdowns and rushing for 1,600 yards. The major college rushing record is 1,570 set 20 years ago, and the single-season touchdown record is 24 set by Lupino of Arizona in 1954.

At his present pace, the 6-foot, 200-pound Gipson will score 20 touchdowns and gain 1,440 yards, which would top O. J. Simpson's 1967 output of 1,415. Gipson has scored four times and ran for 288 yards, while Houston beat Tulane and tied Texas.

Compares With Blanchard

Coach Bill Yoeman of Houston compares Gipson with Doc Blanchard, Army's famous Mr. Outside of the mid-40's. Yeoman was center on those Army teams.

"Gip isn't as fast," Yeoman said. 'Doc could run 9.9 or 9.8 (compared to Gipson's 10.0 or 10.1), but Gipson has the same kind of power Blanchard had. He's a very good blocker and a good receiver. He's also the best passer on our team."

Gipson's biggest asset is his strength. He was so muscular during his junior year in high school that he drank vinegar to soften the muscles—it works much the same way vinegar works on pickles, Gipson said.

Another asset is his body control and the combination of the two enables him to break tackle after tackle. He prides himself into thinking he can break any tackle and that no one defender can bring him down.

"Our high school coach taught us to roll with the tackle and then break through the side of the grip," Gipson said.

He polished off his techniques in body control in, of all places, a ballet class at school last semester. He took it accidentally as part of his drama training and was ready to drop out when he found he was the only male in the class.

But his teacher persuaded him to stay because many young actors in Hollywood are handicapped because they do not know ballet. Gipson stayed and found it helped his football play, too.

"My coordination is better now and my balance has improved greatly and I think my speed is picking up because I'm running on my toes more than before," he said. "When I learned how to do the steps and exercises properly, I felt stronger and in much greater control of myself."

Tulane coach Jim Pittman saw the results in a 57-yard run in the opening game.

"He broke on a draw play on us and I think every player on the team hit him," Pittman said. "He just busted tackles until finally he picked up a couple of blocks and then he really laid it back.

Rated With Simpson

"I would rate him right up there in a class with Simpson and Keyes and any other of the great backs in the country."

Texas' outstanding tackle Loyd Wainscott, who opened against Simpson last year and Gipson this year, went farther than Pittman.

"Gipson is the best runner I've ever faced," Wainscott said after Gipson ran over Texas for 173 yards. "I'd put him above Simpson because he doesn't get knocked down. You can stick him right in the mouth and he'll still get away."

Many coaches and players agree the biggest difference between Gipson and Simpson and Keyes is that Gipson was an unknown until the middle of last season while the other two came up with big buildups.

Gipson was dismissed from the squad for missing a bed check midway through his sophomore year and played in Warren McVea's shadow last year until McVea suffered an injury. Then Gipson took over and finished with 1,100 yards, seventh in the nation.

He won't be satisfied with that this year.

- Case of the Missing Officials -

By CHARLES J. TIANO

The case of the missing officials was solved with a phone call this morning.

Following two days of futile search for any man with authority in the German-American Football Association, contact was made with Fritz Marth, secretary of the GAFA at his home in Secaucus, N. J.

What about the case of the missing referee at last Sunday's mini-brawl between the Kingston Sport Club Kickers and the New York Hungarians at Oehler's Mountain lodge, we asked.

"I have not received any report personally," said Marth. "I suppose it has gone to Conrad Schuricht of Eastchester."

Two days of telephoning failed to lift either the association president — Harry J. Saunders of New York City or Schuricht. An office secretary said Saunders was spending a vacation in the Virgin Islands or some other Caribbean paradise.

Decline Comment

Marth declined comment on any phase of the mysterious disapperance of Referee Laszlo Molnar after he walked off the field and disappeared eight minutes before the end of the first half.

Kingston was leading 1-0 on the strength of a spectacular rebound goal by the Galloping Ghanian, Elliott Pobbi Asare. Molnar picked up the cards of the two players involved in the scuffle and just took off without notifying either the players, team officials or the press.

When corralled later, Molnar said he was declaring it no-contest and would not recommend a forfeit against Kingston.

Marth, the only one of three GAFA officials available by phone since Sunday, said it was unlikely the league would reveal the contents of Referee Molnar's report before the league's Arbitration Board meets tonight.

Meeting Friday

"They are scheduled to meet tomorrow (Friday)," said Marth. The Kingston matter will probably be taken up then after they have notified the principals."

Bill Oehler, proprietor of Oehler's who keeps close tabs with league headquarters, said the locals had not received any notice of a meeting as of yesterday.

"It could be in the morning mail due in about an hour," he said, "But we have found the procedure to be different.

"Under normal procedure," Oehler continued, "the arbitration board acts on the referee's report, makes a decision and informs all the interested parties. At this point those involved have the right to appeal, if they disagree with the findings of the board."

Meanwhile, the Kickers are scheduled to play Sunday against Sportfreunde Passaic at Wayne, N. J. in their first road test in the Premier division.

To Show KHS Film

The Kingston High School football booster club will show the film of last Saturday's game with Vincentian Institute at 8 tonight in the High School Auditorium. Memberships may be purchased at the door.

Pete Gaining on Matty; Now Leads by A Point

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

Pete Rose is gaining on Matty Alou in the complicated "numbers game" which can decide the National League batting championship.

Something like $25,000 might be at stake for either batsman depending upon the outcome of the tight race—and both obviously are pressing. Each went 0-for-4 Wednesday night when Rose's Cincinnati Reds scored a 2-0 victory over Alou's Pittsburgh Pirates.

The frustrating night left Rose with a .3323 average and Alou with a .3315 mark as they come down to the closest finish of a batting race in the NL since 1931. The factor in Rose's favor is that he has batted 65 more times than Alou and, therefore, loses fewer points when he fails to hit.

Lose Points

Rose lost .0021 points Wednesday night, for example, while Alou lost .0025 points. All of which should answer all possible questions about why major league ball players suffer from a problem of insecurity when such trifles can determine their economic status.

Jim Maloney pitched a two-hitter and Mack Jones hit two homers for the Reds, who dealt rookie Dock Ellis his fifth loss against six victories. Maloney, an in-and-outer all season, was at his best with 11 strikeouts and no walks.

The St. Louis Cardinals downed the Philadelphia Phillies, 5-4, the Houston Astros shaded the San Francisco Giants, 3-2, the New York Mets topped the Atlanta Braves, 3-0, and the Chicago Cubs beat the Los Angeles Dodgers, 4-1, in other National League gams.

Nelson Briles, scheduled to pitch the second game of the World Series against the Detroit Tigers, raised his record to 19-11 with ninth-inning relief help from Joe Hoerner as the Cardinals broke a five-game losing streak. Briles also knocked in two runs with a double and a single as the Cardinals dealt 18-game winner Chris Short his 13th loss.

Aspromonte Saves Game

Bob Aspromonte singled home the winning run in the seventh inning and saved the game with a leaping catch of Willie McCovey's drive against the left field fence in the eighth as the Astros dealt 26-game winner Juan Marichal his ninth loss. Dave Giusti, who went 7 2-3 innings, raised his record to 11-14 with the victory.

Ron Santo's grand slam homer gave the Cubs their victory after Bill Singer held them to one hit for eight innings. Singer, who allowed only a fourth-inning infield hit by Billy Williams through eight innings, walked Willie Smith leading off the ninth and gave up a double to Williams. Dick Nen was intentionally walked before Santo hit his game-winning homer over the left field wall.

Professional Golf Feud Widening on Two Fronts

NEW YORK (UPI)—The running battle between the PGA and the APG continued on two fronts Wednesday.

The committee of the Sponsors Association met with representatives of both the PGA (Professional Golfers Association) and the rebel APG (American Professional Golfers) in an attempt to iron out a settlement.

Meanwhile, the rival factions were also meeting in federal district court in Wilmington, Del.

In the court action, the PGA obtained a temporary restraining order blocking the fledgling APG from soliciting any prospective tournament player to participate in or conduct a 1968 qualifying school or entering into any agreement with a sponsor of a 1968 PGA golf tournament.

The order, signed by Chief Judge Caleb M. Wright, also prevents the new group from employing documents, mailing lists and confidential information transferred from the PGA to the APG by a former PGA employe.

The APG has 10 days in which to answer the complaint

The Sponsors committee suggested the formulation of a nine-man committee—composed of three sponsors, three PGA officials and three touring pros—to have complete authority and responsibility over the tour.

The tour would be under the direction of a tournament manager, who would be hired or fired only with consent of the board.

Vanderbilt Is Army's 151st Grid Opponent

WEST POINT — Vanderbilt University of Nashville, becomes the 151st opponent in history for Army when the Commodores come to Michie Stadium this Saturday. Kickoff time is 2 p. m. Tickets are available and may be purchased at the gate.

The members of the Southeastern Conference opened their 1968 campaign with a 25 to 12 win over Virginia Military while Army was taking the Citadel, 34-14.

Considered bigger, faster and stronger than the 1967 team, the Tennessee eleven has switched from a primarily passing attack to a balanced offense. The lack of an experienced quarterback may make things difficult at first but experienced lines plus talented linebackers could decide the issue. Linebacker Chip Healy at 6-4 and 225 pounds is the top candidate on the Vanderbilt squad.

Same Team Opens

Army's Coach Tom Cahill plans to go again with the starters who opened the season. While not overly pleased with the defense, he did find the offensive unit to his liking. The defense seemed to improve as the game progressed but there will be some changes made this week.

The backfield quartet of quarterback Steve Lindell (Princeton, Minn.), halfbacks Lynn Moore (Ponca City, Okla.) and Bill Hunter (Levittown, Pa.) and fullback Charlie Jarvis (Cornwells Hts., Pa.) came through in fine form. Jarvis had 157 yards rushing and scored once while Hunter returned a punt 90 yards for a touchdown. Their play gained them all-East honors in the weekly picks. Lindell completed 8 of 16 passes for 138 yards and a touchdown and ran for another score.

Jensen Kicked Well

The place kicking of sophomore Arden Jensen (Ruthton, Minn.) gave the Cadets 10 points on four conversions and field goals of 39 and 26 yards. That could prove valuable in the games to come.

The defense alignment will have Tom Wheelock (Falls Church, Va.) as the General, Dick Luecke (Parma, Ohio) and Bill Price (Lubbock, Tex.) at ends, Steve Yarnell (Key Biscayne, Fla.) and Bob Allardice (Pittsburgh, Pa.) at tackles and Joe Neuman (Grand Rapids) at middle guard. Captain Ken Johnson (Newburgh) and Jodie Glore (Ontario, Ore.) are the linebackers. Starting in the deep defense will be Dennis Hutchinson (Salt Lake City, Utah), Pete Dencker (Huntington) and John Brenner (Philadelphia, Pa.).

Two injured players were returned to the roster although they may see but limited duty against Vanderbilt. Getting the medical approval were quarterback Jim O'Toole (No. Riverside, Ill.) and defensive back Tom Haller (Yeagertown, Pa.). Both are lettermen, O'Toole being the backup for Lindell and Haller having played safely in 1967.

Vanderbilt scored in every game last year but Coach Cahill noted that Army only had one shutout in an 8 and 2 season in 1967.

Another Sellout for Army

WEST POINT — Tickets for the Army-Boston College game to be played at Michie Stadium on Saturday, Nov. 9, have all been sold, it was announced here today by Colonel Jerry G. Capka, Director of Aethletics.

The only game for which tickets are still available is the Vanderbilt game this Saturday, Sept. 28, at Michie Stadium. The games with California on Oct. 12 and Duke on Oct. 28 were announced as sell-outs earlier this month.

If Michie Stadium is filled to capacity — 29,425 — for the Vanderbilt game it will mark the first time in Army football history that every game on the home schedule has been sold out.

The tremendous response from Army's fans this year has revived speculation that a plan to increase the Michie Stadium capacity by 10,000 may be revived. The plans have been gathering dust for the past several years.

Traffic problems that would be created by such an addition is one of the biggest blocks to the additional seats, it is said.

Four Appointed, Human Rights Review Board

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller today appointed four members to the new Human Rights Review Board created in the reorganization of the old State Commission for Human Rights.

They are:

J. Edward Conway of Albany and Lloyd L. Hurst of Rochester, both members of the old commision, and Mrs. Carmel and Albert Pacetta of Manhattan.

All four are lawyers and are Republicans.

Mrs. Marr has been serving as a legal aide at the United Nations. Paceta, a former New York City markets commissioner, has been serving as a consultant on consumer affairs to the State Agriculture Department.

Members of the board hear and decide appeals on discrimination cases and other civil rights matters. They serve full time, for an anual salary of $26,224.

The 1969 law that reorganized the old commission transformed the agency into a division of the state government and created the six - member review board. The law specifies that no more than four members can be members of the same political party.

Rockefeller has two more members to appoint and also will designate the board's chairman.

Eventually all members will serve six - year terms, but the terms of the initial appointees were staggered so that only two will expire annually.

Rockefeller designated today's appointees for terms ending June 30 in these years:

Conway 1970, Hurst 1972, and Mrs. Marr and Pacetta 1974.

At a reorganizational meeting of the Democratic Club, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Smith, the following officers were named to serve six-month terms of office: president, Mrs. Francis Smith; vice president, Bill Brush; secretary, Mrs. Margaret Shary; and treasurer, Robert B. Cole.

Ten and Twenty Years Ago

Sept. 26, 1948 — Fire in Lanesville destroyed an eight room house, and another fire near Lake Katrine forced four fire companies to fight for four hours to quell a brush and wood fire. Several other fires of unknown cause also kept area fire fighters busy.

The Ulster Greene County Boy Scouts of America announced a total of $4,031 turned in during a drive for 1968 operating funds.

Sept. 26, 1958 — Announcement was made of vast road construction plans for the coming year in the area. But, the elemination of the Washington Avenue Viaduct was reported still "up in the air."

Mike Todd, a well-known area bear hunter, readied to celebrate his 81st birthday in a Saugerties home. He was born in Dry Brook.

P-TA Meeting Set

An organizational meeting of the Rondout Valley Middle School Parent - Teacher Assn. will be held Tuesday, Oct. 8, in the Middle School cafeteria. Persons who join the group will be made charter members. Election and installation of officers is scheduled to take place at the meeting.

Dear Abby

Too Dressed for Movie?

By Abigail Van Buren

[© 1968 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: I am 22, and my friends tell me I'm attractive. My husband is in Vietnam, and we have a baby nearly a year old. I sometimes feel like I want to get away by myself, so I get all dressed up and go out for dinner and to a movie. My problem is there is always some man who thinks that just because I'm all dressed up and at a movie, or eating by myself, I'm trying to get picked up. I have had to change my seat in a show many times, and there have been times when I had to get up and leave. What do you suggest?

CONSTANTLY BOTHERED

DEAR BOTHERED: There is no reason why a lady should have to leave a theater for the reason you mentioned. If anyone tries to molest you, report him to the usher. And if anyone tries to pick you up, tell him he has the wrong girl and walk away.

Perhaps you are constantly bothered because you are TOO dressed up, and just don't look like a woman who prefers to be left alone. Suggestion: Contact the Red Cross. They sponsor get-togethers (dinners, sports activities, cards) for wives of servicemen who share your problem.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I am a girl of 14 who was raised on a farm. I have a girl friend who is my age, and she was raised on a farm, too.

Abby, I am so embarrassed to be with her. She wears combat boots, boy's pants, flannel shirts and her hair is squared off in the back and cut real short.

I don't think she owns a dress. She has no interest in boys and she smells like a barn. What can I do to make her more like a girl?

ALL GIRL

DEAR ALL: Nothing, probably. Boys will be boys, and unfortunately so will some girls if they lean that way.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I am a cashier in a theater and am faced with this problem so often you wouldn't believe it.

When two people run up to the ticket window and shove money at me to buy tickets for themselves and somebody else, whose money am I supposed to take? If I take the money from one, the other person gets mad at me. But why should I be expected to make that decision?

LYNDA DORIS

DEAR LYNDA: Take the money that is closer to you. If it's a photo finish, ask both the would-be "hosts" to please settle the question between them. And if it's any comfort to you, waiters have the same problem. Only they don't have the protection of a glassed-in box office.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: Recently you published a letter from a 13-year-old honor roll girl who thought she was mistreated because her mom wouldn't let her wear make-up or have boys over, and generally treated her like a 4-year-old.

Abby, please make it clear to teen-agers that while we are in our teens perhaps our parents should use even tighter restrictions on us. Our ideals and morals are just forming, and we need the struggles with our authorities to strengthen us, but we don't always want to "win."

There is the story of a freshman scientist who watched as a butterfly struggled to be rid of his cocoon. Feeling sorry for it, the young scientist made tiny slits in the sides of the cocoon to ease the way. The butterfly soon emerged. But its wings were not yet fully developed (the struggle strengthens the wings) and it was unable to fly, so it died shortly thereafter.

Thank you, Abby, for letting another teen have her say.

"15, RESTRICTED, AND GLAD OF IT."

This Hand Can Be Dangerous

By Oswald and James Jacoby

We watched today's hand played seven times in the nationwide charity game. Three times the bidding went as shown in the box with South making exactly three diamonds.

On three other occasions North passed the heart opening. Each time East reopened with one spade. One West merely bid two spades and East played in a part score, the other two Wests jumped to three and East continued to game. A diamond was opened at all tables, not that it mattered except to simplify East's problem. He ruffed his second diamond and wound up making five odd.

We hate to print this hand because it shows a bad bid which is rewarded. Long experience has shown that a pass with the North hand will be the best action, but experience is based on averages and this hand weights the averages the wrong way.

Opening lead ♣ A

Why did we spend so much time watching this one hand? When we watched it the first time something really extraordinary happened. West doubled South's opening heart bid. It turned out that West had learned the Culbertson system back in 1932. In his version of the system, you doubled to show an opening bid.

After West's double there was no problem getting to the spade game and making that easy overtrick.

The bid succeeded this time but we won't endorse it. In fact we want to take a strong stand against it. Most of he time this sort of double produces a diamond response from partner and the doubler has nowhere to go except into trouble.

This sort of trouble also frequently gets your opponents off the hook. If you stay out of the bidding they go merrily ahead into trouble. If you bid, you warn them.

'The Brides' – Taxing Start

NEW YORK (AP) — Some new television series can start with what the producer believes is the best and most interesting of the shows completed. Others —and ABC's "Here Come the Brides" on Thursday night was one—have to start at the beginning.

The idea is to set the scene, esablish the mood and clue the audience on the motives that will provide scripts for 13 weeks or 13 years, depending on its reception.

A Hardship

In the case of the new ABC entry, having to start at the beginning worked a hardship on all concerned, including the audience. In one hour we met the three heroes of the series, the brothers Belt who own timber land in post-Civil War Washington territory; were introduced to the resident heavy who runs the saw mill; glimpsed hordes of woman-hungry lumberjacks and, ultimately a bevy of beautiful girls who were being imported from New England to become the brides.

This taxed the 60 minutes but maybe the show will shake down enough to give viewers brave enough to return a chance to see its form and substance, if any.

Bob Denver, the lanky fellow from "Gilligan's Island," came back on CBS with another half-hour comedy series, "The Good Guys." If one finds Denver a funny fellow and if one thinks that being squirted on the head with cherry syrup is hilarious, "The Good Guys" will be the show for them.

Bob Hope returned for another season of comedy specials on NBC and his first show was devoted, naturally, to the political scene.

Hope's monologue was a swift succession of one-line cracks that were directed impartially at both major parties and their candidates.

Body and the Bodies

The body of the program, a switch in its usual format, was one long sketch—about politics, of course. Hope played a cab driver who looked like a presidential aspirant, summoned when the real politician cracked up and thought he was a ukelele player named Wee Willie.

Even for Hope, it wasn't much of a sketch, but it gave him a chance to make some more breezy jokes and to bring on a lot of pretty girls, from Zsa Zsa Gabor and Cyd Charisse to Angie Dickinson and Vikki Carr.

Recommended tonight: "The Ugliest Girl in Town," premiere, ABC, 7:30-8 EDT, London-made comedy series about an American boy who accidentally becomes the towns top girl model; "Blondie," premiere, CBS, 7:30-8, Will Hutchins and Patricia Harty in a TV adaptation of the comic strip; "Hawaii Five-O," premiere, CBS, 8-9, police action shot on location in the islands, with Jack Lord; "Journey to the Unknown," premiere, ABC, 10-11, British made suspense-horror anthology series starting with a story about a man in love with a mannequin in a store window.

A Hardship

In the case of the new ABC entry, having to start at the beginning worked a hardship on all concerned, including the audience. In one hour we met the three heroes of the series, the brothers Belt who own timber land in post-Civil War Washington territory; were introduced to the resident heavy who runs the saw mill; glimpsed hordes of woman-hungry lumberjacks and, ultimately a bevy of beautiful girls who were being imported from New England to become the brides.

This taxed the 60 minutes but maybe the show will shake down enough to give viewers brave enough to return a chance to see its form and substance, if any.

Body and the Bodies

The body of the program, a switch in its usual format, was one long sketch—about politics, of course. Hope played a cab driver who looked like a presidential aspirant, summoned when the real politician cracked up and thought he was a ukelele player named Wee Willie.

Even for Hope, it wasn't much of a sketch, but it gave him a chance to make some more breezy jokes and to bring on a lot of pretty girls, from Zsa Zsa Gabor and Cyd Charisse to Angie Dickinson and Vikki Carr.

Tough Security Rings Saigon After Bombing by Viet Cong

By JACK WALSH

SAIGON (UPI)—Viet Cong terrorists bombed Saigon's central marketplace today and stabbed and shot a government official in his home. Allied soldiers threw up the toughest anti-infiltration security ring around the capital in four months.

The mid-morning grenade explosion killed a woman and wounded 13 persons in the crowded, covered market where Saigon housewives barter for everything from live monkeys to plastic raincoats. The terrorist escaped in the confusion in the yard-wide aisles.

It happened a few hours after a two-man Viet Cong asassin team invaded the home of a 68-year-old South Vietnamese precinct official, shot and stabbed him. Officials said the man was critically wounded. His assailants escaped.

Government Casualties Higher

Meanwhile U.S. military spokesmen reported the number of South Vietnamese soldiers killed exceeded the number of American battle deaths last week for the 10th successive week.

South Vietnamee spokesmen said 473 of their troops died in battle last week. American headquarters listed 290 U.S. servicemen dead in the same period.

Communist loses were put at 2,867 killed, pushing the guerrilla death toll since Jan. 1, 1961, to 398,723, U.S. spokesmen said.

The weekly U.S. casualty and manpower report said the American troop commitment jumped 3,000 last week to 538,500.

Allied soldiers, acting on intelligence the Communists may try to infiltrate Saigon in three-man terror teams, clamped the tightest security ring around the city since the Communists' May offensive. They stopped all cars and trucks going into the capital and searched them for contraband.

Intelligence indications were the Communists may use this week's 22nd anniversary of their guerrilla war against the French as an occasion to launch the long-expected third Saigon offensive. U.S. commanders sent waves of B52 Stratofortress bombers against Red hideouts on Saigon's doorstep.

The closest fighting to the capital was a small flareup Wednesday 20 miles to the west. Government spokesmen said their troops killed 28 guerrillas, destroyed five sampans and seized 265 mortar shells. Allied losses were not reported.

It was one of four scattered battles in which spokesmen said a total of 293 Communists died, 218 of them in a fight with U.S. Americal Division troopers on the coast 310 miles north of Saigon.

U.S. officials in Saigon said a total of 1,762 American servicemen were wounded in action last week—making the total dead and wounded for the week 2,052, the highest in three weeks.

Four Children Are Drowned As Boat Sinks

NEW YORK (AP) — Four children drowned when a 15-foot outboard motor boat, carrying a total of 11 children and one adult, capsized and sank Wednesday in Jamaica Bay.

A Coast Guard and police search for the bodies of the young victims was halted because of darkness but was to resume today.

The drowning victims were identified as 3-year-old Anthony Martinez and his sister, Martha, 5; Kevin Frye, 9; and Shirley Anne Wise, 14, all of Edgemere, Queens.

Hanoi Rejects Role Of U.N. in the War

PARIS (UPI)—North Vietnam rejected anew any suggestion the United Nations become involved in the Vietnam War.

Nguyen Thanh Le, chief spokesman for Hanoi's war talks delegation, told newsmen Wednesday the Vietnamese problem "was not within the competence of the United Nations." Lee answered questions about North Vietnam's reaction to the hints of U.N. Secretary General Thant that the United Nations should call on the United States to stop bombing North Vietnam.

Hanoi Overjoyed

He said the North Vietnamese "are overjoyed at the number of countries at the U.N. which continue to declare their support for us and condemn the U.S. aggression."

Le made the statements after the 23rd session of the Vietnam War talks ended like the previous 22 — with "no progress."

Both sides rejected the suggestion that since the talks were unlikely to make any progress, they should be postponed until after a new U.S. president is sworn in.

No Break Up

"Hanoi has not indicated that they want to break up these talks and certainly from our side we have no intention of doing so," said the chief U.S. negotiator W. Averell Harriman.

Tough Security Rings Saigon After Bombing by Viet Cong

By JACK WALSH

SAIGON (UPI)—Viet Cong terrorists bombed Saigon's central marketplace today and stabbed and shot a government official in his home. Allied soldiers threw up the toughest anti-infiltration security ring around the capital in four months.

The mid-morning grenade explosion killed a woman and wounded 13 persons in the crowded, covered market where Saigon housewives barter for everything from live monkeys to plastic raincoats. The terrorist escaped in the confusion in the yard-wide aisles.

It happened a few hours after a two-man Viet Cong asassin team invaded the home of a 68-year-old South Vietnamese precinct official, shot and stabbed him. Officials said the man was critically wounded. His assailants escaped.

Government Casualties Higher

Meanwhile U.S. military spokesmen reported the number of South Vietnamese soldiers killed exceeded the number of American battle deaths last week for the 10th successive week.

South Vietnamee spokesmen said 473 of their troops died in battle last week. American headquarters listed 290 U.S. servicemen dead in the same period.

Communist loses were put at 2,867 killed, pushing the guerrilla death toll since Jan. 1, 1961, to 398,723, U.S. spokesmen said.

The weekly U.S. casualty and manpower report said the American troop commitment jumped 3,000 last week to 538,500.

Allied soldiers, acting on intelligence the Communists may try to infiltrate Saigon in three-man terror teams, clamped the tightest security ring around the city since the Communists' May offensive. They stopped all cars and trucks going into the capital and searched them for contraband.

Intelligence indications were the Communists may use this week's 22nd anniversary of their guerrilla war against the French as an occasion to launch the long-expected third Saigon offensive. U.S. commanders sent waves of B52 Stratofortress bombers against Red hideouts on Saigon's doorstep.

The closest fighting to the capital was a small flareup Wednesday 20 miles to the west. Government spokesmen said their troops killed 28 guerrillas, destroyed five sampans and seized 265 mortar shells. Allied losses were not reported.
